FEARFUL SCENES.

women and children dropped the windows to the ground. madly at overturned wives and children pinned beneath the wreckage, splintered timbers and twisted iron and steel flew through the crowd in two cars and shattered glass was sent in a shower. From the rear end of car No. 874 and the front end of car No. 887, which had come together in the rear-end collision, came the screams for help.

Fifty yards away at the power transmission station at the junction, word had been telephoned for help. Few tools were available to remove the wreckage, and one man dashed to a neighboring house and borrowed a meat saw with which he hacked his way through the splintered timbers and liberated a dozen sufferers.

Help was slow in arriving, and those who came to the relief of the stricken found a situation without parallel. Two cars were still filled with sufferers. Men, women and children were penned in, their limbs and bodies held imprisoned by the wreckage. Most of the injured had broken legs, the car seats snapped from their fastenings and piled back, one upon the other, the passengers being caught as though in a vise.

The hurry call for help brought scores of physicians and ambulances and autos and later on came the hearses, grim in their grayness as they neared the scene of the wreck. On improvised litters the wounded were carried out while the dead were laid aside to permit attention to the living. Candles were rushed to the scene of the wreck, for there was no better light. Lanterns flickered through the darkness, and finally came other cars on near-by tracks throwing their headlights upon a grewsome scene. One man pinned between two of the front windows, his body mangled and his face bearing evidence of horrible torture that came to him in the suddenness of the snuffing-out remained in the prominent position through two hours of rescue work. His body finally was liberated when the roof of the car was jacked up. He was the last of the dead to be removed.

HARD TO RESCUE.

Owing to the inaccessible place in which the wreck occurred, the ambulances and autos stationed a block away, and on the improvised litters of car seats, most of the victims were carried out. The gathering crowd hampered the work of rescue and only the arrival of policemen helped to expedite this feature of the grim tragedy.

Women from the cars that were unseated by the collision, tore their petticoats into ribbons and bound the wounds of the injured. Women from neighboring homes threw them open to the victims, tore sheets and linen into bandages. A physician who lives near the scene of the wreck was the first to bring medical assistance to the sufferers. He worked through two terrible hours, and there was a trail of blood from the wreck to his home, where the victims were sent.

It was more than two hours after the wreck occurred before modern relief equipment arrived. Then litters and stretchers were used to carry from the ground those victims who had been dragged from the wreckage. The injured were carried into special cars and rushed to the hospitals. Because the cars were not fitted for carrying passengers lying down, the victims were laid out in the aisles, and volunteer assistants climbed over the seats to minister to them as they were being transported to havens of mercy.

Tales of heroism, of self-sacrifice, of self-abnegation, sprang forth from the wreck as men, women and children were waiting for the arrival of help through the wilderness of broken and twisted timbers. One man, lying beneath a ton of warped and twisted metal, directed the rescue of four women, and refused to allow the rescuers to take him from the wreck. When the weight was pried from his body, his legs were found to be crushed. He probably will die.

The confusion about the scene of the wreck is indescribable. Police, trainmen and volunteers struggled through the wreckage in dim light trying to drag forth the bodies of the victims. They had no tools to work with and outside the cars stood men and women seeking relatives and friends. A photographer took a flashlight picture of

MEXICAN STUDENTS SHOW CONTEMPT OF AMERICANS.

Big Anti-American Demonstration Is Held at Capital and Violent Speeches Are Made—Many Refugees Arrive in United States Absolutely Destitute, While Bryan Has No Policy Formulated.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Several thousand students workers held an anti-American demonstration here this afternoon on the principal streets. There were cries against the American government who it was charged is responsible for the Tucson incident and the throwing of lights on Guaymas from boats in the harbor to aid the rebels. The crowd grew larger as several speeches at the statue of Charles IV were made. The police cavalry dispersed the gathering with little violence. The spirit of the Mexican press continues strongly anti-American.

RUINED AMERICANS QUITTING MEXICO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Destitute Americans are arriving in the United States on every boat from Mexican ports. Many of them face financial ruin in consequence of the series of revolutions which has paralyzed commercial and industrial enterprises and they are leaving the southern republic with reluctance.

American Consuls are empowered to draw upon the State Department for funds to bring Americans out of the various danger zones and in some instances, notably at Torreon, Ambassador H. L. Wilson has sent money to be expended by Consuls and Consular agents to relieve actual hunger.

Before Mexico passed through the travail which commenced with the Madero revolt against the Diaz regime, more than two years ago, most of the now indigent Americans were engaged in prosperous ranching and mining enterprises or other commercial pursuits. While the United States government has repeatedly warned them to flee and depend upon the government of the United States to guarantee a settlement of their claims against Mexico, the fear of delay in the adjustment of claims, and the hazard of the loss or destruction of all their property has made hundreds take the risk of remaining in the revolution-torn country within the last year. Within the last month, however, between four and five hundred have been brought to the United States at government expense.

MASSON READY TO SINK CRUISER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) July 13.—Didier Masson has invented an apparatus to carry twelve bombs on each flight together with a sighting system for dropping bombs from his aeroplane. The French aviator declares that within a few days he will attempt again to sink the Federal gunboats lying in Guaymas Harbor.

The insurgent investment of the gulf town yesterday led to an attack by the Yaqui Indians, who had grown restless of the delay. The result of the fight was not reported. Four cannons which have been repaired were sent south today on a special train.

HUERTA REFUSED WILSON'S REQUEST

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, July 13. — The American Ambassador's note of protest to the foreign office against permitting an anti-American demonstration here today had certain indirect results, although the government did not absolutely forbid the holding of what officials style "a popular manifestation of patriotism."

A demonstration took place in the capital this afternoon, but not more than 400 persons participated. There were no speeches and very few cries against Americans. The line of march was through the principal streets and the manifestants halted in front of a big Japanese store crying vivas for Japan. Small silk Japanese flags were carried with the Mexican colors. A detachment of police accompanied the procession, and the Minister of War, Gen. Blanquet, followed in an automobile.

Brig.-Gen. Samuel Garcia Cuellar, Governor of the Federal District, yesterday flatly refused permission for a demonstration on Sunday and ordered the police to disperse it if formed. The students late last night appealed to the Minister of the Interior, Dr. Aureliano Urrutia, who told them that he sympathized with them and would overrule the Governor's order on condition that they created no disturbance.

One of the government officials last night asked Ambassador Wilson for a statement regarding charges that the rebels had received aid from Americans. The Ambassador denied the truth of the allegation that an American warship at Guaymas threw the rays of its searchlights on the city during the recent fighting, thus enabling the rebels to take better aim. Regarding the charge that the United States Consul at Matamoras had attempted to induce Federal troops to join the rebels who had captured that town, the Ambassador said that although he had no report on that incident, if the Consul was guilty of violation of the principle of international law there would naturally be an investigation by the United States and satisfaction accorded Mexico.

The newspapers in their report of the Ambassador's statement eliminated the reference to the Guaymas matter, but printed the statement regarding the Matamoras affair. Among the papers there seems to be a growing tendency to avoid agitation, but the Independiente in an editorial today discusses the imminence of war with the United States and appeals to the rebels to united with the government in defense of the fatherland.

ROB AMERICANS IN DURANGO.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Details of the occupation of Durango by Mexican rebels are told by refugees who arrived here today on the Pacific Mail steamer City of Cydney.

Of those who arrived, one party of eighty-one persons traveled across the desert afoot and on mules from Durango to the coast, 160 odd miles, fighting off pursuing bandits.

When the rebels entered the city, the refugees say, they freed 400 prisoners from the jails, robbed banks of $500,000 in gold and sacked the entire city. Col. Hernandez of the Federal army was placed against a wall and shot.

K. W. Stepp, a civil engineer who was one of the passengers, was shot through both legs. Mrs. Thomas Matthews, who arrived with her husband and 12-year-old son, said just as they were leaving their home in Durango a band of the rebels threw dynamite and demolished their house. They fled with only the clothes on their backs, she said.

Other members of the party reported the murder of Oliver Palmer, a telegraph operator who had refused to open a safe in his office, and of the robbery of Theodore O. Hamn, American Consul at Durango.

BRYAN VACILLATES ON MEXICO POLICY

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The rising tide of anti-Americanism in Mexico finds Secretary of State Bryan still without any definite policy for the treatment of what was the biggest single problem of foreign relations which confronted him on the day he took office four months ago.

The reports of the last twenty-four hours, culminating in the announcement that an anonymous threat to blow up the American Embassy had been received by Ambassador Wilson and that the latter had been obliged to protest against the holding of an anti-American demonstration in the capital today, have caused quite a stir in Washington. That is, everywhere except at the State Department, where no serious apprehension is felt.

Mr. Bryan has no policy toward Mexico and State Department officials are, therefore, obliged to deal with the situation on a day-to-day basis.

Just now the principal business before the department is assisting of Americans in Mexico to flee from the country.

Americans are fleeing from Mexico by the hundreds. There is today a party of seventy refugees at Galveston, who have just come from Tampico. Most of the Americans are destitute and are calling on the State Department to furnish them with means to go to their homes in the States, or to the homes of friends and relatives.

It is estimated that at least one-third of the Americans formerly in Mexico, have fled the country.

PLOT TO KILL DIAZ AND HUERTA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, July 13.—A plot to assassinate President Huerta, Gen. Felix Diaz and Gen. Blanquet, the War Minister, has been frustrated by the arrest of one Deputy and ten others of no great prominence. It is said that the intention was to use bombs at some opportune moment when these officials were driving through the streets.

Documents were found on the prisoners identifying them as supporters of Zapata and setting forth an outline of the plot. Several of the prisoners have confessed. In a building somewhat remotely located they had practiced the throwing of bombs, studying the effect.

FAIL TO LOCATE STEAMER.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN DIEGO (Cal.) July 13.—Renewed efforts made today to get tidings of the steamer Jason, rumored to have been seized by Mexican insurgents, came to naught.

Wireless messages were received from the Pittsburgh at Empalme, the Denver at Topolobampo and the Glacier at Guaymas, and all reported inability to get in touch with the missing steamer.

MONDRAGON DUE IN GHENT TODAY.

[BY CABLE AND DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

GHENT, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gen. Mondragon, former Minister of War of Mexico, who was a close friend of former President Madero, but who is now emissary of the Huerta regime, ostensibly as delegate to the Ghent exposition, is due to arrive tomorrow. He took the White Star liner Olympic with several members of the Madero family from New York, a week ago.

It is reported here that he will take up negotiations with capitalists for a loan and the granting of railroad franchises in return for financial accommodations for the Mexican government. It is understood that Huerta is planning extensive internal improvements, including the construction of several important railroad lines in the southern part of the republic.

Gen. Manuel Mondragon,

Who is ambitious to become the Alexander Hamilton of Mexico. He has just arrived in Belgium, and is reported to be negotiating a foreign loan for the Huerta regime.

BATTLE FIERCELY FOR MONCLOVA.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

EAGLE PASS (Tex.) July 13.—Monclova, an important rebel stronghold in the State of Coahuila, 150 miles south of Eagle Pass, was captured by Federal troops under Gen. Maas after a desperate battle yesterday, according to advices received here today. The loss of life on both sides is reported to have been heavy.

Venustiano Carranza, revolutionary leader, is massing his forces, and probably will retake the town.

Gen. Maas waited until Carranza and the greater number of his troops had left Monclova for Candela before advancing on the city. Carranza made a forced march toward Monclova, when a courier brought news of the Federals' approach, but arrived too late to participate in the city's defense. The rebel garrison is said to have numbered 300 men, while Gen. Maas's command consisted of about 1000.

Francisco Delgado and Marcelino Galindo, merchants of Monclova, are reported to have been executed by Federals. Pedro Salinas, Chief of Police, was killed by his own men when he ordered them to surrender to the Federals.

Roumanians Rush Troops Across Danube to Seize Disputed Lands.

Serbs Continue Victorious Advance and Greeks Burn to Avenge Massacres.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 13.—The Balkan states appear to be again in the melting pot. There is no sign of peace at present. Greece and Servia have declined so far to agree to an armistice. The Turkish army is advancing by forced marches from Tchataldje and Bulair, apparently with the consent of Greece and Servia, to attempt the recapture of Adrianople and Thrace.

Roumania is said to be proceeding to occupy a much larger extent of Bulgarian territory than she previously claimed, and Greece is burning to avenge the Bulgarian massacres, concerning which horrifying details continually appear in official reports issued from Athens and Saloniki. According to these reports, ears and fingers of Greek women still wearing earrings and rings were found in the pockets of Bulgarian prisoners.

There is still talk of Russian interference and it is reported from St. Petersburg that the powers in concert have notified the Sublime Porte that they will not permit military operations beyond the Enos-Midia line fixed by the London conference. But the European concert is slow in moving.

No fresh fighting is reported and it appears that rumors regarding a revolution in Sofia are without foundation.

The Bulgarian government accuses Greece of circulating false accounts of Bulgarian atrocities, with a view to preparing the ground for future territorial claims, and expresses itself as willing to submit the whole matter to an international investigation.

In Bulgarian official circles in London it is announced that an agreement has been reached with Turkey to regard the Enos-Midia line as a provisional frontier pending final delimination by the international commission.

TURKISH TROOPS TAKE TCHORLOU.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 13.—The Tchataldje and Bulair armies are advancing by forced marches and have already occupied Tchorlou without opposition. The Bulgarians have evacuated Rodosto.

The greatest military activity prevails here and troops, artillery and provision convoys are being brought across the Bosporus from Asia Minor. Destruction of villages by the retiring Bulgarians has aroused a bitter feeling here.

The Porte is in communication with Belgrade, Athens and Bucharest and is said to have received assurances that neither Greece, Servia nor Roumania will conclude an armistice without consulting Turkey.

SERVIANS CAPTURE KUSTENDIL.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

VIENNA, July 13.—A high Austrian military authority attributes the defeat of the Bulgarians to the indecision of the government's policy. This reacted against the plan of campaign, destroying its efficiency and causing a lack of unity between the Cabinet and military staff. Contradictory orders resulted which had a dispiriting influence on the army.

Another important cause of the defeat was a shortage of officers and the presence of inexperienced recruits on the firing line.

There are persistent reports that the Servians have occupied the Bulgarian town of Kustendil. It is also reported that a force of Roumanians has arrived at Corabia and is preparing to cross the Danube into Bulgaria northwest of Plevna.

ROUMANIANS SET ARMY IN MOTION.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

BUCHAREST, July 13.—Official reports state that the Roumanian troops are advancing toward the quadrilateral comprising Silistria, Rustchuk, Shumla and Varna, which Roumania has decided to occupy. The Bulgarians are retiring before them.

BULGARIANS POUR SHOT INTO SERES.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

SALONIKA, July 13.—Refugees from Seres assert that the Bulgarian police set fire to the town in several places on Thursday. While the fire was raging throughout the city the Bulgarian guns on the adjacent heights bombarded houses, flying flags, notably the Consulates, which were crowded with fugitives, and poured shrapnel into the crowds fleeing the city.

DECLARES BULGARS CRUCIFIED SERVIANS

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 14.—The Daily Telegraph correspondent with the Greek army says the Greeks to date have captured eighty-two guns and 10,000 prisoners.

A Belgrade dispatch to the Telegraph says the Servian invasion of Bulgaria has been successful, but was confined to the district between the frontier and the Pirot-Kustendil line. The Servians are advancing and making good progress.

The Daily Mail's correspondent with the Servians sends the following:

"There has been no fighting since Wednesday. The weather is wet and the roads heavy. A Russian photographer who visited the scene of the Krivolak battle found evidence of the Bulgarians having crucified, mutilated and burned wounded Servians."

The Constantinople correspondent of the Mail reports long negotiations between Turkey and Roumania and believes that an understanding has practically been reached. Russia wants five torpedo boats, which Turkey is willing to lend on condition that Roumania supports her.

BULGARIANS CLAIM VICTORY.

SOFIA, July 13, 10:50 p.m.—A semi-official statement issued tonight announces that the Servians retreated all along the front today pursued by the Bulgarians. The Bulgars captured important positions in the Egri Palanka district. Eight Servian officers and 340 men were captured.

BULGARS CRUMBLE BEFORE SERB DASH

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 14.—A dispatch from Uskup to The Times says the fighting which the Bulgarians maintained for several days on the north side of Egri Palanka, was terminated Friday at midnight by a decisive Servian surprise advance, which resulted almost beyond the Servians' wildest hopes.

So complete was the surprise that under the dashing assault the Bulgarians crumbled and were chased to Patariza, where the Servians seized a position of the greatest strategical importance dominating and commanding a wide section of the frontier.

This capture, adds the dispatch, greatly reduces the chances of a Bulgarian counter invasion unless Gen. Demitrioff should be able to deliver a sledgehammer blow with overwhelming numbers.

ROUMANIANS ON ROAD TO SOFIA.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

VIENNA, July 13.—According to the Militarische Rundschau, Roumanian detachments have occupied Rustchuk, Turtukai, Dorritsch and Baltchik. They also landed at Rahova, which is the starting point of a good road to Sofia. The seeming intention is to dictate peace from Sofia unless Bulgaria speedily agrees to Roumanian demands.

MONITORS BLOCK BULGARIAN PORTS.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

LONDON, July 13.—Four Roumanian monitors are blockading Rustchuk, Sivistova, Nikopoli and Lom Palanka, according to an Odessa dispatch to the Post.

A Bulgarian gunboat and torpedo flotilla have sought refuge at Sebastopol from the Roumanian fleet.

SEATTLE (Wash.) July 13. — Twelve hundred dollars for the Greek war relief fund was raised at a mass meeting of local Greeks held in the Labor Temple today. A committee was appointed to raise additional funds among the business men. The money will be cabled to Athens tomorrow.

REBELS AGAIN HOLD RAILROAD.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, July 13.—The rebels are again in possession of the National Railroad from south of Saltillo to near San Luis Potosi. The tracks, which were repaired under the protection of Col. Maas, have again been destroyed. Conditions respecting the other railroad lines show no improvement.

The campaign against Zapata is vigorous but the rebels continue raiding and burning, only fighting when forced to do so. Occasional reports from American plantations and mines indicate that the rebels are operating freely and in many cases making the American plantations and mine owners the victims of forced loans.

A messenger yesterday communicated with Ambassador Wilson from a town south of Torreon to which he had ridden, declaring that the Americans at Torreon were beginning to suffer greatly on account of siege. The Ambassador authorized the messenger to draw upon the relief fund for relief purposes and carry the money back to Torreon.

It is expected that Francisco de la Barra will be granted a leave of absence from his post as Governor of the State of Mexico and will leave immediately for Italy.

HEAVY LOSS NEAR CHIHUAHUA. REBELS ARE BADLY BEATEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, July 13.—The rebels, who had run two military trains almost to Alberta, only seven miles south of Chihuahua, were defeated yesterday with the loss of 168 men by Col. Mancilla, according to a report last night to the War Department. The Federal loss is not given. It is added that the rebels before their retreat destroyed the trains.

SYLVIA AGAIN RELEASED.

LONDON, July 13.—[By Cable and A. P.] Sylvia Pankhurst was released from Holloway Jail tonight as the result of her hunger strike. Miss Pankhurst was sentenced on July 8 to three months imprisonment for incitement to commit disorders on June 29, when she led a mob to Downing street to attack the official residences of the Ministers.

DECLARES PANAMA CANAL PRACTICALLY COMPLETE

Official Organ of Isthmian Commission Says that Only Finishing Touches Remain to Be Done—Depth Will Be Attained as Soon as Rainfall Gatun Lake Up to the Required Level.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Panama Canal is practically completed and only finishing touches and supplemental draining work remains to be done.

According to the Canal Record, the official organ of the Canal Commission, the canal was practically completed on June 27, when the spillway of Gatun Lake was finally closed. The lake is to form one of the links in the canal and all that now remains so far as the link is concerned is for sufficient rains to fall to bring the lake level and the water throughout the greater length of the canal up to its final height of eighty-five feet above sea level. The water is now at approximately forty-eight feet above sea level, and the desired depth will be attained, it is calculated, not later than December 1, and should the rainfall in the meantime be above the normal it will be reached even sooner. As it is not intended to open the sluice gates again, the lake may be considered to be on its final rise to operating level.

The lake will have a channel 21 feet deep by October 1, but it is not intended to permit the water to enter Culebra Cut until the lake

THREE KILLED, SCORE HU IN OHIO TRAIN ACCIDE

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CAMBRIDGE (O.) July 13.—Three persons were killed, a fourth probably fatally injured, and a score of others hurt tonight when Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 15, the Wheeling-Chicago express, west bound, crashed into an interurban street car. The street car was demolished.

The accident was caused by a terrific storm which was passing over this section. The conductor of the street car had stopped his car and gone forward to the crossing and signalled the car to come ahead. He is stated to have seen the headlight of the oncoming passenger train, but believed it was a lightning flash.

AGED CHIEF GETS DIVORCE.

Squaw "Heap Scold," He Tells Court, Who Grants Him Decree.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] [Exclusive Dispatch.] Chief Tacluslve Dispatch.] Chief Tahola, head of the Quinault tribe of Indians, appeared yesterday in the Superior Court and was granted a divorce from his wife, Sadie, who he declared had deserted him for another brave known as "Nigger Joe," because of his dusky appearance. Chief Tahola is 94 years old. He told the court he had no regrets at having lost his squaw, who, he said, was inclined to "heap scold," but he wanted to be free so she could no longer make demands on him for money.

ters at the House end considerably torn up over the currency proposition, therefore affording a field for the exercise of executive influence which is more formidable than any that has been presented in connection with the tariff situation, while the Senate is driving along with the tariff President Wilson can consecrate his legislative attention on the removal of stumps for the currency reform field.

In the general investigation of lobby activities which this week, will get into full blast, the President may find some intellectual diversion as a mere observer. There is nothing in this matter that seems to call for executive suggestion or interference—at least so far as developments to date indicate.

THE TARIFF SCRAP.

If the Senate carries out the programme optimistically proclaimed by certain leaders, of passing the tariff bill after five weeks of debate, the action will not verify what Senators of all parties are saying in private. The debate will open formally on Wednesday with the speech of Chairman Simmons of the Finance Committee, in general charge of the measure, but there will be a prelude tomorrow in the shape of a few remarks on the agricultural schedule by Senator McCumber, Republican of North Dakota. The Republican leaders have gallantly declared there is no intention to prolong debate and it was on their assertions that the rosy views of having the measure at the conference stage in five weeks was based.

TALKING MATCH.

Many of the Democrats are doubtful of such an early termination of the matter, although things are so cut and dried as to make the outcome well known in advance. There is expectation that Senator La Follette will use up the better part of a week presenting his individual views as to what revision should be, that Senator Cummins may consume nearly, if not as much time. That Senator Smoot will be unable to get what he has to say into the records short of six days and that Senator Bristow will talk for a spell equal to that of any one of his oratorical competitors.

When it is remembered that the Senators constitute a bare handful of the Republican members and that nearly every Senator, Republican and Democratic, intends to have something to say at least for home consumption, optimism with respect to a speedy vote gets a severe jolt. Even with sessions beginning early in the morning, an hour or two ahead of the normal meeting time and extended into the late hours of the night it will take some hustling to finish in any five or six weeks and if currency is to receive a mention, looking to final legislative action after the tariff is out of the way, the prospects for any adjournment of the special session which will allow a recess before the beginning of the regular session in December is slight indeed. As a matter of fact, many Senators are making or have made their plans to camp right here on the job steadily until possibly this time or later next summer.

BORAX SMITH TO EXPLAIN.

Creditors Find He Transferred Nearly All His Stock in Tonopah Company to His Wife.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Creditors of Borax Smith, who have been conducting a search for tangible values, declare that they have uncovered a peculiar state of affairs in regard to his holdings in the West End Colsolidated Gold Mining Company of Tonopah.

They say that Smith had been the owner of 789,632 shares of the stock of this company, which owns a producing mine, but that at the present time he does not appear on the stock book of that company as a stockholder. This was a rather disappointing conclusion of the search, it is asserted, in view of the fact that Smith had appeared as president of the company, and apparently had been able to borrow a large sum from its treasury on securities of his Oakland companies.

Further search is said to have disclosed the fact that on March 15, 1912, Smith caused to be transferred 750,000 of his shares to his wife, Evelyn Ellis Smith.

Later these 750,000 shares were transferred by Mrs. Smith to B. F. Edwards, who is a brother-in-law of George Zabriskie, according to the statement. This was accomplished on Tuesday last, and on the same day the remainder of Smith's holdings in the company, 48,632 shares, were also turned over to Edwards, both transfers standing on the stock book under the date of July 8, 1913.

In the absence of further proof the creditors are unwilling to believe that these transfers were prompted by a purpose on the part of the boxar king to evade meeting any of his debts, as he had expressed a willingness to use his entire resources, whatever they might be, in satisfying the claims of his creditors.

Final Appeal to Congress.

Employers and Employees Ask Amendment of the Erdman Act.

Union Leaders Insist that the Railroads Must Grant All Their Demands.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] NEW YORK, July 13.—Whether a strike of upwards of 80,000 conductors and trainmen on forty-five eastern railroads shall be declared within the next few days depends largely upon whether the railroads recede from their present position and withdraw from their refusal to arbitrate the wage and other differences between the companies and the men.

This declaration was made tonight in statements by the men's representatives after the grievance committees from the various roads gathered here in conference had ratified the strike vote of the men recently taken and had authorized A. B. Garretson, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Conductors, and W. G. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, to issue the formal strike order to their respective organizations.

Peace prospects centered upon the attitude of the roads, the men declared, with the possibility that a way out of the deadlock would be supplied by tomorrow's conference in Washington where amendments to the Erdman law, under which previous disputes between the roads and their men have been arbitrated, will be considered with a view to pressing their speedy passage upon Congress. The general committee of the two organizations authorized Messrs. Garretson and Lee to delay the strike order long enough to permit them to attend the Washington conference between President Wilson, representatives of the railroads and their employees, and prominent public men.

Presidents Garretson and Lee left tonight for Washington.

Mr. Garretson explained that the debate on the amendments to the Erdman act before President Wilson would present a peculiar situation. He said:

"We will be there to urge that the Newlands bill be passed as drafted, and lined up with us will be the railroads. W. C. Brown, president of the New York Central; Samuel Rea of the Pennsylvania and Daniel Willard of the Baltimore and Ohio will represent the railroads and speak for the passage of the bill."

ROADS PREPARE FOR EMERGENCIES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] PHILADELPHIA, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Officials of the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Philadelphia and Reading railroads are reticent concerning the effect the threatened strike of conductors and trainmen of the eastern railroads will have on transportation to and from the city.

"I have nothing to say," was the reply of Theodore Voorhees, vice-president of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, when asked what he thought of the situation. Various officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad and of the Baltimore and Ohio similarly refused to speak. Nevertheless the controversy is assuming a definite stage which is most threatening. This is attested by the fact that another trainload of special officers was sent to Harrisburg today, making about 800 men in all. Despite statements to the effect that the men are there only for general instructions as a part of the annual summer encampment, the arrival is regarded with special significance.

At the Hotel Windsor, the conductors, brakemen and locomotive fire men, most of whom were here after their runs, joined the conference, the result of which was not announced. J. B. Hendrick and Thomas Enochs, representing the conductors and brakemen did not arrive as expected. Headquarters of the Brotherhood of Firemen have also been opened at this hotel and A. I. Kaufmann, has been placed in charge. He was out of the city today and it was said that he had gone to New York to take part in the conference there. That the railroads are making strenuous efforts to secure emergency crews was made evident by advertisements in all the morning papers here and the opening of an employment bureau. The effect that the trainmen would have upon the Philadelphia food and coal supply could not be but disastrous.

PAROLE EX-BANK CASHIER.

Former Official of Defunct Oregon Institution Freed When Receiver Declared Dividend.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] SALEM (Or.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Coincident with an announcement that State Superintendent of Banks Wright had declared a dividend of 20 per cent. for the depositors of the defunct First State Bank of Philomath, making a total of 80 per cent. declared, is another that James Evans, cashier of the bank, convicted of forgery and sentenced to serve from two to ten years in the penitentiary, has just been paroled. The liabilities of the institution were $55,000. The bank failed in October, 1911, and Evans was indicted soon afterward. Money he is alleged to have used fraudulently was invested in a creamery by the cashier and it is said he got no benefit from it.

CREDITS CORN AND BACON.

VETERAN CELEBRATES HIS HUNDRED SECOND BIRTHDAY.

Survivor of Mexican War in His Century Year Earned Enough With His Handiwork to Pay for All His Burial Expenses—Started Life as an Invalid.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] ST. JAMES (Mo.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The oldest inmate of the Federal Soldiers' Home here is one of the few surviving veterans of the Mexican War. He is William C. Simpson, who today celebrated his 102nd birthday anniversary and who attributes his longevity to a diet of bacon and corn bread.

Simpson, in his 100th year, was making baskets, from the sale of which he earned enough money to make provision for all his burial expenses. Now he has stopped working, but spends his time administering to his more decrepit comrades.

Simpson was born in Little York, Pa., June 3, 1811. He was left an orphan at the age of 2 years. Frail health in his youth caused him to plunge into the West, settling on a homestead in Taney county, Missouri, in the pioneer days. He herded sheep till life in the open air of the Ozarks brought health to him.

He disposed of his homestead and moved to Rogers, Ark., where he engaged in the grocery business. Fire deprived him of everything he possessed and at 60 years of age, when most men are thinking of retiring, found him starting life over again. He became a farm hand and the rest of his life was spent farming. He entered the home here eight years ago.

He enlisted in the army at the breaking out of the Mexican War and took part in many of the important engagements. He was at the fall of Chapultepec and marched with the victorious legions into the City of Mexico. During the heavy cannonading at Chapultepec one of his ear drums was ruptured and he has been partially deaf ever since.

Simpson was never married. When a young man the girl he expected to marry died a few days before the date set for the wedding. He never ceased to grieve for her.

COMING TO PACIFIC COAST TO INSPECT FORTS.

Secretary of Navy Has New Plan to Provide Vocational Education for Enlisted Men in the Navy and Give Them Employment When They Quit.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] CHICAGO, July 13.—Details of a plan for the vocational education of enlisted men in the navy were given by Secretary of the Navy Daniels here today. Mr. Daniels stopped in Chicago over Sunday on his way to the Pacific Coast, where he will inspect naval stations and fortifications. The Secretary said that recent exchanges with Japan had nothing to do with his trip, which he said was a formal tour of inspection to acquaint himself with the various Coast defenses.

"It is planned to give enlisted men in the navy the benefit of three hours a day regular schooling in a course that is along the lines of the curriculum of the Navy Academy at Annapolis," he said. "Of course, the curriculum will be modified and abbreviated from the studies pursued at the academy, but it is the purpose so to train the men as to fit them for responsible positions in civil life when their terms of enlistment expire."

COURSE OF INSTRUCTION.

Drafting, electrical engineering, naval architecture, civil engineering and allied studies were mentioned by the Secretary as among twenty trades for which the men might receive entire or partial training.

"More men have enlisted in the navy during the past two months than at any similar period since the Civil War," said Mr. Daniels. "They are young men and we intend to make the navy the opening of a good career for them."

Mr. Daniels pooh-poohed the idea that a Japanese war scare had inspired the inspection of the Pacific forts. "I have been over the Atlantic and the gulf fortifications," he declared. "I am now going over the Pacific stations and forts simply to familiarize myself personally with them. I expect to spend several weeks on the coast. The Japanese questions that are before the public have nothing whatever to do with the trip."

The Secretary is due in Seattle July 16.

TO SUMMON EXPERTS.

WILL DECIDE ON DRYDOCK.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.] WASHINGTON, July 13.—Expert advice from outside the Navy Department will be invoked by Secretary Daniels in arriving at a decision as to the completion of the big Pearl Harbor drydock in Hawaii. Mr. Daniels has spent two days in listening to the report of the civil engineers and department officials upon the difficulties in the way of carrying out the original plans for the construction of the dock as the result of the upheaval of the floor. He has concluded that the amount of money involved is so large that decision should be delayed until the best expert counsel should be had before proceeding with the work.

THE first consideration of the officers and directors of this institution is SAFETY for depositors' funds. Everything else is secondary—growth, service, interest, etc.

Out of long years of practical banking experience the directors have learned conclusively that our present rate of interest is the highest that may be paid if depositors' money is to be ever safe.

If this Bank could pay its customers a higher rate of interest it would gladly do so—but this cannot be done if the policy of SAFETY is to continue to be the watchword of the "Bank for Everybody."

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Martin M. Mulhall, confessed lobbyist, after successfully dodging supoena servers of the House of Representatives since Saturday afternoon, will be before the Senate Lobby Investigating Committee again tomorrow and resume his relation of alleged dealings and doble dealings with men of affairs in and out of Congress. Though legislative affairs, chiefly tariff revision and currency reform, still are progressing, interest in them just now is overshadowed by the Mulhall charges, hitting at public men right and left as the Overman committee digs deeper into the huge pile of correspondence carried on between this man, officials of the National Association of Manufacturers, labor leaders, Congressmen and others.

Enlivening the interest in the lobby hunt is the game of hide and seek that attends it, members of the Senate committee in the role of hiders and members of the House Investigating Committee strenuously acting as seekers after the arch witness, Mulhall and his ten-year pile of correspondence.

HOUSE LEADERS AROUSED.

Chairman Garrett and his colleagues directed by the House inquiry into Mulhall's charges, were considerably aroused yesterday over the trick played the Senate committee which let Mulhall get out of town over Sunday before subpoena servers could round up the witness for a Saturday afternoon session with the House committee.

It is not the intention of the Senate committee to release Mulhall from the subpoena which antedates that issue by the House committee. Members of the committee declared today that they could not finish with Mulhall in less than a week and that they might require his presence longer on direct examination. In order to avert any possibility of the witness getting away from the Senate side, the committee contemplates holding day and night sessions.

The House investigators will continue to watch for an opportunity to catch Mulhall when he is not engaged before the Overman committee and in the meantime they are planning to examine acquaintances and relatives of the Baltimore lobbyist.

President Wilson will return to Washington tomorrow and he will find the Senate ready to begin debate on the long considered tariff bill. He also will find that the bill has been made a party measure, as he desired it, and that when it becomes a law it will have been placed on the statute books by the Democratic party.

M'CUMBER SPEAKS TODAY.

The tariff debate will really begin in the Senate on Wednesday, although the first Republican gun will be fired at the measure tomorrow when Senator McCumber of North Dakota attacks the agricultural schedule. He will speak by unanimous consent because he is obliged to leave Washington for some time. Republican leaders intend to fight each schedule separately and substitutes for each one will be offered. Senators Smoot, Penrose, Burton, Smith of Michigan, Borah, Cummins, La Follette, Weeks and other Republicans are already prepared with amendments and arguments. Both sides hope to pass the bill by September 1 at the latest.

Action of the committee of 1000, representing the members of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and Conductors employed by the eastern railroads, ratifying in New York today the strike vote taken by both organizations, is calculated to hasten action in the House on the bill enlarging the scope of the Erdman act The Newlands bill which passed the Senate is before the House for passage. Owing to the emergency brought about by the impending strike, it seems probable that the House will pass the Senate bill in order that a means may speedily be provided for arbitration of the threatened gigantic industrial strike. The matter will be brought up in the House tomorrow.

CURRENCY IN THE HOUSE.

Currency will be taken up again by the House Committee on Banking and Currency beginning tomorrow and there is a slight prospect that the committee may get together and complete consideration of the bill by the end of the week.

Secretary Daniels Is Looking for a Loophole to Escape Seniority Rule in the Navy.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Secretary Daniels has asked Atty.-Gen. McReynolds if his recent decision that the army might promote other officers over Maj. Beecher B. Ray in disregard of the seniority rule, may be applied to promotions in the navy.

Officers who are counting the time of their promotion to be admirals are in consternation at the prospect of younger men being jumped over their heads.

Assistant Secretary of Treasury Allen Reports Groceries Have Advanced Seventeen, Lumber Ten, Ice Seven Per Cent. in One Year, While Hardware Has Declined.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The continued higher cost of living was reflected in a report yesterday to Sherman Allen, assistant secretary of the treasury, by the government's general supply committee on the contracts it has let for supplies for the executive departments of Washington for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

This barometer of trend of prices shows that the cost of groceries and household supplies has increased 17 per cent. as compared with last year; lumber, 10 per cent.; fuel and ice, 7 per cent. and dry goods, 5 per cent. While these essentials are soaring, the report showed decreases in the prices of the following:

Forage, flour and feed, 20 per cent.; paint and oils, 12 per cent.; hardware, 7 per cent. and furniture, stationery and electrical and engineering supplies, 5 per cent. each.

These articles were stationary: Drugs and chemicals, laboratory apparatus, photographic supplies, engraving and printing supplies and incandescent lamps supplies.

ALLEGES MISMANAGEMENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—"The report of special examiners as to indications of criminal violations of law found in the closed First-Second National Bank of Pittsburgh is now in the course of preparation by examiners and will be referred to the Department of Justice as soon as completed," said Thomas P. Kane, acting Comptroller of the Currency, yesterday.

Mr. Kane added that there was no doubt that the bank had been "grossly mismanaged," but that no conclusion had been reached as to who might be prosecuted for possible violations of law.

Lawrence O. Murray, former Comptroller of the Currency, who approved the merger of the First and Second banks, yesterday issued a statement denying that any national bank examiner had ever reported to him that the First National's capital before the merger was impaired. Murray said when he became Comptroller five years ago the First National Bank was under criticism. He said he forced the bank to charge off one million and a quarter in losses and that just before the consolidation the institution charged off over $800,000 more.

Custodian of Cardinal Gibbons's Titular Church Alleged to Have Stolen Bellini Masterpiece.

ROME, July 13.—Father Crescini, custodian of the Church of San Maria Trastevere, the Titular Church of Cardinal Gibbons, has been arrested charged with the theft of a picture, "Madonna and Child," a masterpiece of Giovanni Bellini.

In November, 1911, there was a fire in this church and apparently the Bellini masterpiece was destroyed. Recently it was found in Florence and according to the police, Father Crescini was responsible for the fire, which he set for the purpose of concealing the theft of the picture. The masterpiece was sold for $800.

Hands of President Menocal Strengthened by Approval of the United States Government.

[BY CABLE AND A. P. TO THE TIMES.]

HAVANA, July 13.—The publication of a sympathetic note presented by Secretary Gibson of the American legation to President Menocal, giving assurance to the President of the approval of the administration at Washington of his determination to vindicate law in connection with the killing of Gen. Riva, in spite of political opposition, has had a happy effect on the majority of Cubans. The press comments favorably on the note as indicative of the friendly attitude of the United States toward Cuba greatly strengthening the hands of the administration.

It was announced on good authority tonight that President Menocal will issue a call at an early date for a special session of Congress, at which it is believed consent will be given to the trial of the accused members of Congress before the ordinary courts. It is also thought that a strong effort will be made to induce Congress greatly to modify its present attitude in relation to immunity for members charged with civil and criminal offenses.

CHICAGO BROKER DIES ON TRAIN.

GEORGE W. SHELDON SUCCUMBS IN GREAT BRITAIN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

CHICAGO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] George W. Sheldon, president of the customs brokerage firm of George W. Sheldon & Co., with branch houses in the commercial centers of Europe and the United States, died suddenly today on a train running between Dover and London. Dispatches from London say that an inquest will be held tomorrow.

Mr. Sheldon was making his annual visit to his several central offices when he was stricken. At his residence it was said that the family had not been officially notified of his death.

Mr. Sheldon had been engaged in the customhouse brokerage business in this city since the year following the Chicago fire, and the organization founded by him is one of the largest of its kind in the country. At present there are offices in London, Liverpool, Paris, Boulogne and Havre and several American cities.

ON HIS REGULAR VISIT.

Mr. Sheldon made it a custom to visit the different branches twice each year and he left New York June 26 last, for the purpose of making one of his regular trips. He was in the best of health at that time, according to relatives.

In connection with being at the head of George W. Sheldon & Co., brokerage firm, Mr. Sheldon also was president of the Sibley Warehouse and Storage Company and took an active interest in a quiet way in all matters which were for the betterment of Chicago. He was active in the affairs of the Chicago Association of Commerce and was its vice-president in 1910, during the term of Homer A. Stillwell as president. He also was chairman of the foreign trade division of the association.

Mr. Sheldon succeeded La Verne W. Noyes as president of the National Business League of the United States in 1911, and just previous to his trip to Europe he had made preparations for an important meeting of business men to be held in this city next October.

BORN IN NEW YORK.

Mr. Sheldon was born in Little Falls, Herkimer county, New York, October 4, 1847. He was the son of James and Sarah Jane Sheldon, and went with his parents to Minnesota when a boy. He obtained his early education in a log school house when that State was a territory. In 1881 he married Miss Fannie M. Thompson of Canton, Fulton county, Illinois.

Mr. Sheldon served in the Civil War in the Eleventh Minnesota Infantry, a volunteer regiment. He was a member of the Union League, Midday, Chicago, Chicago Athletic, Germania Maennerchor, Glen View Golf and the Chicago Automobile clubs.

He is survived by a widow and one daughter.

BELLINGHAM (Wash.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Jessie Vachon has been appointed by Postmaster-General Burleson as official "elevator boy" for the Federal Building here, after the department's refusal to confirm her temporary appointment had led to an emphatic protest from Senator Poindexter. Poindexter asserted that Miss Vachon was fully capable of meeting the mechanical emergencies of the job in a suffrage State where women voters decline to accept discrimination based on anything less than efficiency. Miss Vachon received the news of her appointment yesterday.

PANAMA SENDS NEW CONSUL.

BRINGS WIFE AND CHIDDREN TO SAN FRANCISCO.

Incumbent Is Prosperous Business Man of Isthmian Republic and Has Never Been in Politics Before. Succeeds Dr. De Charrie and Will Serve Four Years.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Consul Alejandro Briceno of Panama, who has just been appointed to take charge of his country's affairs in San Francisco, does not believe in race suicide. He arrived on board the City of Sydney from Panama, today, accompanied by his wife and eight children.

The children range in age from Alejandro junior, who has attended school in New York, down to little Julio, who is at the age when he covets rocking horses, one of which he brought all the way from far-off Panama with him. No new horse bought in the stores of San Francisco would satisfy this youngster, he had to have his old playmate, and so the brown steed was brought along in the cabin and Julio exercised it every day on the deck of the Sydney.

While Consul Briceno is a new appointee in the Consular service of his country and has never mixed in politics, he has been prominent in the business and professional affairs of Panama for many years. He has just been appointed for a four-year term.

He comes here to succeed Dr. De Charrie, who has resigned, and his assistant is Jose De Ysaza, Vice-Consul, who has been on the ground for several years.

PREDICT COMING OF SANTA FE.

ROAD EXPECTED TO ENTER THE SACRAMENTO VALLEY.

Belief Is that System of Northern Electric Will Be Utilized to Make Northern California Tributary to Ripley's System—Many Options Have Already Been Secured.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Those who keep a close watch on events in the railroad world are growing firmer in the conviction that the Santa Fe is planning to enter the Sacramento Valley.

It has been positively ascertained that within the last week two officials of the Santa Fe have made a thorough inspection of the Northern Electric Railroad, in company with an official of the electric line.

This fact, together with the general belief that several blocks of Front street property which D. W. Hobson has been busily engaged in bonding for the last month, is to be used by the Santa Fe make the probability stronger that it is the Santa Fe's intention to enter the Sacramento Valley.

The plan is said to be to enter Sacramento by way of Stockton. It is said the Santa Fe intends to come in over the Central California Traction Company line.

PLAN IS FEASIBLE.

The total distance over the lines of the Northern Electric Company is 140 miles. All of the most fertile section of the valley is tributary to this road, and it is so located that it would be a feasible proposition to make further extensions, which would enable it to get lumber and ore and other forms of freight outside of the agricultural products.

Some of the payments on the Front street property, which the D. W. Hobson Company has been tying up on options, will be due this week, when the real persons behind the deals will become known. If all of the bonded property is taken over, it will mean the expenditure of approximately $2,000,000, when it is all paid for.

Within the last ten days a movement similar to that along Front street has begun along R street by Hobson and two other firms. R street is now the southern end of the Front-street strip that is being bonded.

APPARENT DESIGN.

The principal design that is apparent in the bonding of the R street property is to secure a continuous strip from Eighth to Front street. Eighth is the thoroughfare on which the Central California Traction Company enters the business section of the city, and everything would indicate that it is the intention of some line to turn down R street from Eighth, to the waterfront, where their bonded property is located.

Until lately it has been believed that this large amount of property was being bonded for the Southern Pacific, but the indications now are that it is the Santa Fe.

Massachusetts Governor to Maintain Open Shop.

Says Reform Must Come if There Is to Be Peace.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Gov. Foss sharply criticised conditions in the labor unions of this State and throughout the country in an interview on business and political conditions today. Mr. Foss calls for a thorough investigation of conditions in the labor unions of the country. He says that the real interests of the laboring men have been and are sold out by their leaders every day in the year. He believes that thousands of laboring men will smypathize with him in his views.

"There must be reform in the labor organizations, if we are to have industrial peace and prosperity," says the Governor.

"The labor leaders of this country are misusing their power like the great capitalists have misused the great sums of money intrusted to their care. They are arbitrary and tyrannical in the extreme and are stifling business."

The Governor announced his intention of maintaining an open shop in the Sturtevant blower works. He says he has definitely decided to refuse to recognize the demands made upon him for a 20 per cent. increase in wages. He said: "I propose to maintain an open shop. If a man is competent, of good reputation and otherwise a desirable employee, we will hire him without paying any attention to his labor affiliations."

STRIKERS BUY GUNS.

Trouble Feared in Lexington (Ky.) Walkout When Men Are Brought on From New York.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

LEXINGTON (Ky.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] With the arrival of 110 men from New York, who were brought here by the officials of the Kentucky Traction and Terminal Company in an attempt to move their city cars tomorrow, the strike situation here has taken a serious turn, as it was reported that many revolvers had been sold to individuals here last night.

The men arrived early Sunday morning and were taken immediately to the car barns, where quarters had been prepared for them.

Although street meetings were held in several parts of the city, the most important of which was held on the Courthouse steps, where Attorney J. A. Edge addressed about 3000 strikers and sympathizers, no violence occurred during the day. No attempt was made by the traction company to run their cars, but it was stated Sunday afternoon that twenty cars, each containing a policeman and a deputy sheriff as guards, will be sent out on the lines. Large crowds gathered around the car barns, but they were kept at a safe distance by a squadron of police who were on duty. The strikers also had men picketed on the scene to see that no cars were taken out. These men were picketed in shifts of five at a time and were relieved every six hours.

Georgian in Ill Health Serving Eighteen Years for Killing a Negro Takes Unique Method to Prevent Healing Breach With His Relatives After His Death.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAVANNAH (Ga.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "For sale, to the highest bidder for cash I offer my body, which is six feet high, weight 175 pounds, is of large frame, well proportioned, 40 years of age and Caucasian race.

"I have a sentence of eighteen years for killing a negro in Griffin in 1911 and have no prospects, no hopes and no friends; hence being in bad health, I am making this proposition. Any one wishing to consummate a trade address Thomas A. McCullough, Box 271, care Monroe county, Convict Camp."

By this advertisement which appeared in a newspaper near here Thomas A. McCullough, a convict on the Monroe county chain gang, seeks to prevent his family from getting his body when he dies.

Physicians say he is suffering from heart disease and has not long to live.

The money which his body would bring is a secondary matter to McCullough. His great desire is that death shall not seal the breach which he has cherished and broadened in life between himself and his family.

Therefore, by disposing of his body to some medical school, for experimental purposes, he hopes to eliminate this possibility. He now has served fifteen months of his eighteen-year term.

SECOND FIGHT AT CANDELA.

Gen. Navarrete Tells Government He Has Recovered Bodies of Six Hundred Insurgents.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MEXICO CITY, July 13.—The recent conflicting reports of the fighting around Candela are explained by the government by the fact that a small force of Federals was defeated July 9 and later the rebels, whose number is given as 4000, were completely routed.

Gen. Rubio Navarrete, in a report to the government, says he had left 300 of his men at Candela which was practically destroyed by the rebels. On July 10 he moved a force of 1200 men to the Candela district from Lampasos, using automobiles for the transport of infantry and machine guns, repulsing the enemy. Gen. Navarrete does not give his own losses, but says he has recovered the bodies of 600 rebels.

SALT LAKE MILLIONAIRE MISSING AT TERRE HAUTE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TERRE HAUTE (Ind.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] James McGregor, millionaire mine owner of Salt Lake City, is missing from the home of his sister, Mrs. Frank McKeen, since Friday evening. He had been under treatment some weeks for nervousness. Marion Cauthern, a negro, who lives on the banks of the Wabash, says he saw him walking near the river.

Men dragged the river all day and will continue their search through the night. Mr. McGregor was a son of Alexander McGregor, who became rich in the old days as Terre Haute's first distiller. Years ago, James McGregor went West and after being in the banking business in Utah, confined his financial efforts to the mining field.

Mrs. McKeen, the only other member of the family of Alexander McGregor now living, is the wife of Frank McKeen, Terre Haute's leading banker.

MILLIONAIRE ADOPTS HUNDREDS OF CHILDREN.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

TULSA (Okla.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles Page, a local millionaire, reputed to be worth $5,000,000, has adopted 300 poor children and hopes to swell the number to 1000. He has provided that at his death the bulk of his estate will go toward helping poor children and maintaining a home which he has established at Sand Springs, a suburb of Tulsa.

Page has financed a street-car line which runs from the village to the home and each day the poor children who do not live at the home are gathered up and taken out there where they are taught in one of the best schools of the State.

He has also provided that any boy or girl who may wish a college education after completing the course in his school, can select the institution that he wishes to attend and Page will defray all expenses. Connected with the home he runs a farm and canning factory where the boys and girls can work in off hours and every branch of manual training and domestic science is taught by skilled teachers.

MISSISSIPPI COUPLE SLAIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

JACKSON (Miss.) July 13.—The bodies of C. D. Newell and his wife, a middle-aged couple, were found in a field of the Rankin county farm at dusk tonight.

Gunshot wounds in Newell's head and in his wife's breast disclosed the causes of death. The rain had obliterated all traces of the slayers and bloodhounds failed to pick up a trail. The bodies were lying fifty yards apart and it is conjectured that Newell, at least, was shot from ambush.

CONDUCTOR CRIES WARNING.

But It Comes Too Late for Those in Rear Cars Even to Leave Their Seats Ere the Collision.

"'Hold on tight!'" yelled a conductor who had been walking up and down alongside the cars that were standing on the track, and an instant later a terrific crash came, hurtling us through the air," said George C. Norman, one of the first to be carried in a private machine to the Receiving Hospital.

"We were seated six seats from the rear in the last car and were watching the trainmen walking up and down the outside of the car. One of the conductors or a dispatcher had been over to the powerhouse getting orders to go ahead or to switch.

"Our train had been run forward and back several times, apparently with the idea of giving another train the right of way, or to get us past a break in the wire ahead. Then came the order to go on and with it a conductor came dashing toward the car yelling 'Hold on tight!' The next minute everything was dark and the screams of the injured and dying mingled with those of the frightened passengers who were uninjured.

"It was all like a nightmare. The seats we were in had been torn out and hurled ahead with us in them. I was bleeding in half a dozen places. My clothes were torn but I retained full consciousness and the first thing I did was to find my wife."

When they got Mr. and Mrs. Norman to the hospital she was found to have serious internal injuries in addition to a broken right arm.

TRAFFIC LONG SUSPENDED.

Cessation of Beach Cars Adds to Frantic Anxiety of Relatives—Hospitals Are Besieged.

Traffic was suspended on the Venice short line for several hours, and delayed thousands who had not yet started for home. This gave rise to grave apprehension and the newspaper offices, hospitals and morgues were stormed by relatives frantic with anxiety to learn the fate of loved ones. O. W. Williams, No. 441 West Fortieth place, at 2 o'clock this morning was still making the weary rounds searching for his boy. "I am afraid he is badly hurt or dead," the father said as he strove for the mastery of his feelings. "He would surely have 'phoned."

All night the railway wrecking crews worked clearing the tracks and effacing evidences of the tragedy. Many remained on the scene or went there in the early morning hours hoping against hope that they might find a trace of missing ones. A close guard was maintained over the vicinity and with the first light today every inch of ground will be gone over and a collection made of any valuables which have been overlooked in the excitement immediately following the wreck.

IN THE HOSPITALS.

Heroism of the Injured the Single Bright Spot in Fearful Story of the Beach Line Tragedy.

Determined not to lose his right leg, which was fearfully lacerated and cut, Sidney Johnson refused to take an anaesthetic at the Receiving Hospital and lay in stoic silence while three surgeons and several nurses cut away the mangled flesh, cleaned the fearful wounds and sewed them up. He was so seriously injured that doctors declared there was only a fair chance of his recovery, particularly because of his refusal to have the mangled limb removed. His greatest anxiety was to get word to his brother, William Johnson, on Florence avenue, not to feel alarmed.

"Some fool, perhaps in hysteria, started to yell fire, and thereby added to the grim terror of the occasion," said Henry Urbin, who, with his wife and niece were injured in the wreck. "It was all bad enough and to have this cry go up and be repeated by several others, gave additional fright to those who were trying to find their way out of the debris." Like many of the others who were injured, he could give no details of the cause.

"We were tearing along at a terrific rate, about fifty miles an hour, when the crash came," said W. M. Rockwell, who was in the first part of the car that dashed into those standing still.

"It appeared that we were behind schedule and the motorman was trying to make up time. There seemed to be no slowing up as we approached the junction and from where I sat, I could see nothing ahead when the crash came. There was no flagman on the track to stop any trains that may have been running behind the one stalled. That is a point that everyone of those who were around me, and whom I talked to after the accident, seemed agreed on. I saw no light on the rear end of the car and none on the track.

"Whatever may be discovered later we were traveling much too fast at a were traveling much too fast at a junction point."

SEARCH FOR RELATIVES.

Scenes of Rare Courage and Fortitude Enacted by the Victims of the Terrible Catastrophe.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemper, No. 1019 Albany street, were reported missing at a late hour by Mrs. Kemper's brother, D. B. Reader, of the same address. Reader was in the wreck and slightly injured. Mrs. L. Hillman and her 14-year-old son, Isadore, No. 525 Temple street, were being frantically searched for by distracted relatives. They had spent the day in Venice and expected to start home about 10 o'clock.

A few minutes after the collision a man whose name was not learned managed to bandage his face, which had been almost torn off, and then coolly produced a cigar which had come unscathed through the wreck and smoked while he did what he could to help, and waited for relief from his own hurts.

The scene was reminiscent of the recent Long Beach disaster. There was the same long line of dead and injured. The same frantic searching. The same heartrending lamentations when a loved one was located, the same grewsome procession of litter-laden humanity, the same horror.

DIES ON SECOND HONEYMOON.

Brother of Jim Jeffries Stricken in Bear Valley, Where He Went With Bride of a Year.

Just a year after the honeymoon, at the same place that this joyful period was passed, Tom Jeffries, brother of James J. Jeffries, died suddenly yesterday morning in Bear Valley, where he with Mrs. Jeffries, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Brain and several other friends were enjoying their vacation. According to members of the family, who had received but meager word, his death was the result of heart failure.

Jeffries was just 40 years of age last Tuesday and had been planning the trip to the mountains as a double celebration. With his wife he left on his second wedding trip, as he expressed it, last Wednesday morning to be gone about three weeks. His brothers, Jim and Jack, left as soon as they had news of his demise and will return with the body today.

For nearly twenty years Jeffries has been active in politics and during the past six years he has served as bailiff in Department Six, Judge Hauser's court. He was the son of Rev. Alexis C. Jeffries and in addition to the widow, four brothers and three sisters survive him. Funeral services will probably be from his former home, No. 535 Cypress avenue.

ARM TORN FROM SOCKET.

A human arm torn from its socket by the horrid impact rolled beside a rail, where glittering gems attracted the attention of Humane Officer MacLaughlin and he rescued the bleeding remnant. Three hours later its owner, Mrs. J. M. Meed, was located in the California Hospital. On the arm were $1000 worth of gems. Other severed members were found scattered over 200 yards of territory.

BLUE AND DISCOURAGED

Mrs. Hamilton Tells How She Finally Found Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Warren, Ind.—"I was bothered terribly with female weakness. I had pains and was not regular, my head ached all the time, I had bearing down pains and my back hurt me the biggest part of the time, I was dizzy and had weak feelings when I would stoop over, it hurt me to walk any distance and I felt blue and discouraged.

"I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and am now in good health. If it had not been for that medicine I would have been in my grave a long time ago."—Mrs. ARTIE E. HAMILTON, R.F.D. No. 6, Warren, Ind.

Another Case.

Esmond, R. I.—"I write to tell you how much good your medicine has done me and to let other women know that there is help for them. I suffered with bearing down pains, headache, was irregular and felt blue and depressed all the time. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and commenced to gain in a short time and I am a well woman today. I am on my feet from early morning until late at night running a boarding house and do all my own work. I hope that many suffering women will try your medicine. It makes happier wives and mothers."—Mrs. ANNA HANSEN, Esmond, Rhode Island.

Misunderstood Signal.

the wreck. The flash startled the injured who were yet in the cars and spectators smashed his camera and knocked him down, two policemen joining in the assault.

The disentangling of the two coaches required more work than human beings could do and not until a giant jack arrived were the cars untelescoped. Here under the wreckage the rescuers had for several hours seen the bodies of two men, but to get them out was hopeless. The motorman on the ramming car was buried with his controller.

EYE WITNESS.

Dr. Harrington Marxmiller, who lives at the corner of Sixteenth street and West boulevard was an eye-witness of the wreck and tells a lucid and connected story of what happened immediately before and just after the crash.

"My house is a short distance from Vineyard Junction," he says. "I had gone to bed and was awakened by vivid flashes of light, such as might have been produced by a terrific electrical storm. I watched the play of electricity for several minutes, and then hearing shouts, I arose and walked down to the crossing.

"Two three-car Venice trains, headed for the city, were stalled just behind the broken wire. The cars were dark, and crowded with passengers. Many were entering and leaving the cars and apparently enjoying the experience. The crew was endeavoring to rope the broken wire and make a temporary repair so the city-bound cars could proceed upon their way.

FLASH OF LIGHT.

"Suddenly the headlight of another train flashed around the curve a few hundred feet west of the junction, and a second later there was a crash, a grinding sound as heavy masses of wood and steel being ground together, just a moment of terrifying silence, and then came the most unearthly succession of shrieks and imprecations and moans I have ever heard.

"I rushed to the scene of the impact. Men poured from the cars which were not telescoped and the work of rescuing the injured was begun. Men and women were lowered out of the windows and over the sides. Many were frightfully injured. Limbs were crushed; one man's leg was almost off; bodies were ripped open. I saw one man whose intestines were strewn about the ground.

"As quickly as possible the injured were laid alongside the track and I went from one to the other reducing fractures and giving such first aid assistance as was possible in the indescribable confusion and semi-darkness. For half an hour I was the only doctor on the scene.

"As nearly as I can estimate it was about fifteen minutes from the time I was awakened by the flashes from the broken trolley, and the wreck. The wire fell across the east-bound track. The track from the city to the beach was open, but the one leading to the city was closed by the break in the wire.

RELIEVES SUFFERING.

"I did not attempt to secure any names. My first thought was to relieve the suffering of the injured. I am sure that at least twelve are dead and I treated thirty-five injured myself. Many of these are terribly injured. I estimate that 30 per cent. of the injured will die.

"When the crash came the first car of the train from Venice plunged into the car ahead, and seemed to leap through it. The motorman, I think, jumped. We could not find him afterwards. I used every piece of supply in my house and many of the women passengers tore up their clothing to make into bandages."

"Glory, glory, hallelujah," screamed a woman as she was tenderly lifted through a window into one of the hospital cars. "I can see the Kingdom, I am so happy, glory, glory." This woman's body was torn and bleeding, her bones were broken, and she was unconscious and hysterical. "My name, or glory, my name is glory," she shouted. Suddenly her ravings ceased and she was quiet.

NURSES ABOARD.

Jessie McPhail, Idalia Westbrook and Grace Greenleaf, nurses at the Clara Barton Hospital, were on the doomed train. They were badly bruised and shaken, but as soon as they could reach the ground entered into the work of rescue and performed splendid service throughout the awful hour which followed.

A man with a broken arm turned what he called his "good side" to the rescue work and helped carry more than one unfortunate into the open.

"Don't let this get into the papers," moaned Mrs. Harry C. Cain of No. 520 South Flower street. "Go easy boys, my legs are crushed. I don't want my mother to worry. Easy there, you are hurting me."

LAUGHTER, THEN DEATH.

Mary Alice Parker, No. 3109 Manitou avenue, was within a few feet of death but she maintained her composure even in the face of a missing brother. "We were talking and laughing together," she said; "there was not the slightest warning of danger; just joy, and then crash, and people all around me were dead and dying." Harold Keay, a member of the party, is among the reported seriously injured.

K. A. Thomas, No. 630 Workman street, leaped from the car immediately after the collision and rushed to the power station a few feet away. "I demanded a telephone in a hurry," he says, "and was refused. I then ran to a house and think I was the first to send word of the accident to the city."

Mrs. Robert Foster, who lives at the Argonaut Hotel, adds her testimony to the long list. It runs just about the same. Just a bolt out of the star-filled sky. A crash, and without premonition of any sort a dozen lives were snuffed out and scores of persons turned from happy, carefree pleasure-seekers into mangled suffering bodies.

CAR A SHAMBLES.

In one car a Japanese, I. Takahasho, No. 651 South Olive street, sat and looked helplessly at the scene of carnage which surged about him. Through each door horribly injured persons were being carried and made as comfortable as possible. The car was a shambles. It was literally blood soaked. Where one put down his hand, he took it up smeared with the life-blood of a man or woman, boy or girl, who had spent the day in happy contentment at the beach resorts.

The Jap was one of a party of five of his countrymen. He was hurt about the limbs. The others he said they had carried away "bad hurt."

The scene was one of the weirdest imaginable. Dozens of signal sticks such as conductors are supposed to use were set in the track to notify oncoming trains to go slow, that there is danger ahead. These were renewed from time to time and cast a yellow light over a scene which resembled a section of a battlefield.

INJURED FIRST.

Clothing was scattered about, and along the edge the workers now and then stepped upon the dead body of an unfortunate victim laid aside while the more pressing needs of the living were attended to. A dozen cars lined the tracks, the glare from their headlights adding to the weirdness of the scene.

With the first help rushed from Los Angeles the work of rescue took on a little more organization, but confusion reigned until the last body was taken from the ruins of the cars. On one side a steep embankment made the work difficult. From the track bodies could be seen wedged into the wreckage. "Why don't somebody kill me," pleaded a voice from the depths, but it was a long time before he could be located. Then the voice was still, the sufferings were over.

Charles A Treat of the Bryson apartments, was one who rendered first aid. "It took a good while to get at those who were jammed into the middle of the cars," he said. "We had to work our way through layers of men and women who were injured. Cries for water and aid were heartrending.

GAPING WOUNDS.

The horror of the accident was largely in the nature of the injuries received. Gaping flesh wounds, cut arteries, twisted limbs, scalps laid bare, in one case an eye gouged out. "A stretcher here," was the repeated demand.

"Gangway!" the willing workers augmented now by a squad of police from the city, shouted. It was awkward business getting the injured through the narrow doors and up the steps of the cars waiting to rush them to hospitals, but it was accomplished with a tenderness touched by the depths of human misery which settled down like a shroud over that lonely railway junction on the edge of town.

As soon as the extent of the accident became known the Los Angeles Railway Company rushed a number of cars to the end of the Pico-street line, three blocks from the scene, and many of the passengers on the Venice line able to walk were transferred to these cars. In this way the names of a large number of those not dangerously injured were lost.

Every available ambulance and morgue wagon was sent to the wreck and the dead and injured removed as fast as possible, but it was an hour and a half after the collision before the last had been cared for, and the heartrending work of succor was finally transferred to the city hospitals.

Three cars are totally wrecked. When the crash came the ends telescoped and it was impossible to find where one ended and the

SAVES TWELVE PERSONS, THEN HE SWOONS AWA

CHARLES HOFFMAN, No. 258 East First street, riding in the rear of the first coach of the city-bound train, jumped immediately after the crash. His arm was broken. He ran from the scene of the wreck like one possessed. He cast one fearful glance at the wreckage of the telescoped cars and ran up over the embankment to the nearest house. He returned a moment later with a hatchet and a meat saw.

Hoffman sawed at the imprisoning timbers and hacked at them with his free arm until he had liberated twelve persons. He worked at the front end of the city-bound coach and seemed to be the first one of all the passengers to grasp the enormity of the situation. When he had helped the twelfth person to the ground he swooned and was carried away, later being taken to a hospital.

ANOTHER BRAVE MAN.

Mr. and Mrs. Dee Blocker, No. 115 South Bunker Hill street, were riding in the closed part of the front coach. Blocker was thrown into the aisle by the impact. Above the screams of the women his calm voice arose:

"Never mind me, I'm not hurt." His wife was pinned beneath two seats and a projecting part of the front of the car. Both her legs were broken. Blocker was pinned down, his foot badly crushed and mangled, but he kept his wife cons

PASADENA GIRL MEETS DEATH RETURNING HOM

MISS EDNA ALTER, secretary of the Associated Charities of Pasadena, was instantly killed in the crash, while two friends with whom she was returning from Santa Monica, Miss Nita M. Sewell and Miss Vera Dolge, escaped without a scratch. The three young women had been passing the week-end at the Windemere Hotel at Santa Monica and were on their way back to Pasadena. In getting on the car they became separated, Miss Alter taking one of the rear seats while her two friends sat six seats forward on the outside of the car which was the one into which the flyer smashed.

SEES MANY KILLED AS TRAINS TELESCO

ASA D. WILLIAMS of No. 1653 Robey street, Los Angeles, thus described the accident as he saw it:

"I was on the middle car of a train coming toward the city. Just as we reached a point opposite the powerhouse at Vineyard station our power was lost by dropping of wire, and our train stopped at once.

The conductor of our rear car did not swing the rear light, and as we were on a sharp curve another three-car train following closely behind us saw our rear light only in time to stop within ten feet of our train. As he stopped suddenly, a third train, following on the same track, crashed into the rear car of train number two, telescoping the rear car of train two and first car of train three.

"The motorman of train three was killed instantly and a woman in front had her hand cut off. Many in the two cars telescoped were killed and seemingly seventy or eighty people were injured in all the cars of the two trains.

"On volunteers being called for, I went to the assistance of the injured and thus saw the extent of

FIREFLIES LIGHT ROOM.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

MORGANTOWN (W. Va.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Thornton Flowers of Mona says by treating the common firefly or lightning bug with a secret chemical process, he has produced a light surpassing the tungsten incandescents. He has his home illuminated, he says with the new light. Several weeks ago, Flowers says, he captured an immense lightning bug. It gave out a brilliant light and this gave him an idea that the light from fireflies would illuminate a room if they were made to glow incessantly. He hit upon a mixture of chemicals, which, he says, not only will retain the glow after the insect's life is extinct, but will increase it. He captured the insects by hundreds, treated them with chemicals and placed them in globes throughout his home. Flowers declares he will plan the coming winter for some means by which he can raise fireflies by the million and place his new product on the market. Friends who inspected the lights say that it is the most marvelous discovery known.

Automobile Polo Game at Seattle Also Demands Its Victims—All Will Recover.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SEATTLE (Wash.) July 13.—Four accidents marked the exhibition automobile races and the automobile polo game on the half-mile track at Madison Park today. George Benedict drove his 110-horse-power racing car through the fence, lost all his front teeth and suffered several wounds about the head when he was thrown to the ground; Henry Endicott sent his car over the bank and through the fence, wrenching off both front wheels; Rudy Goetz, one of the polo players, was knocked unconscious when his car turned a somersault, dropping him on the ground, and Harry McKnight, one of the judges, was run over by the rear wheel of an automobile when he was hurrying to the scene of the Benedict accident.

Benedict, who was the most seriously hurt, was taken to a hospital where it was said his injuries were not dangerous and McKnight was taken home.

Ruthless.

DEMOCRATS WILL WRECK THE SUGAR BUSINESS.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BALTIMORE, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Returning today to see his wife, who is ill in the Kelly Sanitarium here, A. R. Peck, president of the Anaheim Sugar Company of Anaheim, Cal., who has been discussing the sugar industry with several legislators, who have a hand in the tariff patching, saw only disaster and annihilation ahead for the industry by which he gained his fortune. In the plans of the Democrats to allow sugar to enter the United States free of duty, he sees ruin.

"I mean ruin," he said emphatically, "not only for the men who are building up a splendid industry for this country, but ruin for thousands of persons who look to it for their livelihood."

Beet sugar mills in this country, he said, would have to close down as soon as free sugar became an actuality. It was evident from Mr. Peck's conversation that he was deeply, thoroughly in earnest, candid. He saw no hope that the Democrats would be wise enough to start the blasting of the industry.

"But they are misguided and terribly ill-advised in this particular instance at least. They forgot that raisins, sugar and molasses are the only food commodities which have grown cheaper, instead of increasing in price in the last twenty years. Why should the Democrats be so anxious to reduce the price for the ultimate consumer of an article which has already decreased in price, when all other things soared? That does not show wisdom, surely, when there are so many other things that really need reduction. Yet I was assured in Washington yesterday by men who will have something to do in putting the final touches on the tariff bill, that sugar on the free list is assured. It is monstrous.

"The development of the sugar industry in this country is responsible for sugar being cheaper today than it was twenty years ago. The way the tariff bill now stands sugar will be on the free list in three years. By that time there will not be a beet sugar factory left in this country. The industry has just begun and yet the government will wipe it out entirely by placing raw sugar on the free list. At present there are but three sugar mills in operation in the Hawaiian Islands. When sugar is placed on the free list it will be impossible for those mills to compete with Cuba, so they will be compelled to close down. The planters in Louisiana will also be affected by free sugar. In Cuba, cane is planted every year and the planter must keep out enough cane to use for planting purposes. Labor in cheaper in Cuba than it is in Louisiana, so it will not pay the Louisiana planters to grow sugar. Men who have spent their lives in the sugar business do not think that placing sugar on the free list will make it any cheaper for the consumer.

"Outside of wiping out the beet sugar industry in this country it is hard to estimate how many persons will be thrown out of employment in the sugar factories and on sugar beet farms. Of course the merchants, where the factories are located will have to close down, as many of them are entirely dependent upon the employees of the factories for their trade. Unquestionably we could help this country along if allowed to continue, but the Democrats will ruin us."

SCORES OF THOUSANDS AT FAITH'S ALTARS.

Pinnacle of Great Christian Endeavor Convention Is Reached in Mighty Outpouring of All Los Angeles to Hear the Message from Seventy Apostles of a Whole Continent's Church.

WITH seventy religious leaders of the North American continent massing the message of the Almighty to every man, woman and child who could crowd within the range of their powerful and eloquent voices, yesterday set a high-water mark in the religious history of Los Angeles.

Great concourses of people attended services in scores of churches. Crowded meetings were held in all parts of the city in the early morning, at the usual church hours, in the afternoon and in the evening. Tens of thousands of attentive listeners heard the gospel preached by intellectual giants of the church who have come here from far-distant cities—speakers of international fame who found in the occasion and the spirit of the day inspiration that enabled them to rise to unusual heights of eloquent appeal.

There was never before such a day in Los Angeles. Never before were congregated here so many earnest people gathered together in God's name. Seldom anywhere have people been permitted to hear so many able and learned preachers in one day. The flower of the clergymen of the western continent was here, men whose names are known wherever church people congregate.

Los Angeles is a city of churches and of churchgoing people. All these attended the meetings yesterday. Added to them were the thousands of delegates and visitors to the convention and again to these augmented audiences were added many more thousands who do not ordinarily attend church but who went to hear the distinguished speakers from away.

The hours from 9 o'clock to the close of the evening meetings were crowded with meetings arranged for the convention but the programme was arranged to not interfere with the regular 11 o'clock services at the churches.

It was these services which were most impressive. Every church in the city was packed to the doors and in some of the larger edifices people were vainly seeking admittance long before the services began.

IN HIS STEPS.

A blind newsboy sat on the platform of the First German Methodist Church yesterday morning beside Dr. Charles M. Sheldon of Topeka, Kan., world-famed author of "In His Steps." The third occupant of the rostrum was Rev. J. H. Burbahn, the pastor. Everyone in the city knows the bright face of the blind youth who sells papers at the corner of Fifth and Spring streets. It is a good face anywhere and it was beautiful in a pulpit.

Dr. Sheldon is remarkable in his simplicity and terrific in his directness. He talked about everything from the race problem in the South to Asiatics in California without any apologies for a Christian's viewpoint. He took the unpopular side of the tariff, condemned indecency in moving picture shows and in popular music. He even went as far as Peru and the rubber plantation cruelties and yet he was not scattering in his remarks. His discourse was threaded with logical continuity. Instead of flinching from the hearty chastisement of everything that fails the ideal of the best humanity as taught by Jesus Christ, the congregation applauded every one of the clear points which Dr. Sheldon made. There is no missing the Sheldon point.

UNIVERSAL BROTHERHOOD.

In the opinion of Dr. Sheldon the heroism of Christian discipleship has never been so required as it is today. Never was there a time when men were so confronted with the necessity of doing something noble and courageous to bring about the brotherhood of man. Most of all, Dr. Sheldon believes in bearing this witness to Christ in the common affairs of everyday life. The black people of the South present no race problem, he said, but only a question of humanity.

"There is in a short distance from Los Angeles a college which has a Cosmopolitan Club and not a single American is a member," he said. "There is near Topeka a mining town where twenty-one languages are spoken on the street. These people like us. They come to live with us. We have to do what is right about their assimilation. Hate never settles anything. Letting people alone will not solve the problem between us and them. Aloofness isn't Christian. We will have to learn to live with these Asiatics as they come to us. We will have to make brothers out of the Japanese and out of the Hindoo. We will have to dwell in peace as brothers in this great, great camp of God. The Master loves the multitude. Can you love the strangers as they pass you on the street? It is said that a Christian is a man who can love the people he does not like. A Christian must make mankind his business. He must go out of his way to help people. He must sacrifice money-making rather than do wrong. Our police system is wrong. We take the pick of the land, in love and intellect, to graduate them finely and send them to all sorts of foreign countries without gun or club. Then we take ignorant men and often vicious men and give them a gun and a club to deal with their brother here. The church ought to furnish Christian men, and colleges educated men who will do the real missionary work at home by being intelligent Christian policemen, who see in that work the greatest possible field for true missionary effort.

A "MORAL" TARIFF.

"Vice must be extinguished, annihilated, not controlled. The tariff is not a political question. It is a moral question. All political economy is a problem of morality. The sugar growers in Florida tried to combine last month with the citrus growers of Florida in order to keep a tariff on both products, but Senator Bryan of Florida sent a telegram to his people saying that he represents a party that stands for free trade and that to enter such a combine would be an immorality of which he would never be guilty. We have quit compromising with liquor. You cannot get it at a drug store if you are sick. And you cannot be served with it at the table of your hostess. Bryan was a witness for Christ and the truth when he refused to serve displomats with anything more than soft drinks.

"All of these things are unpopular. It is a fine thing to be unpopular because you are being good. American women would be witnesses for Christ if they would quit trying to dress as they do in Paris merely for the temptation of men. Men do commit adultery with their evil glances, but the dress of today invites it. People would bear witness to Christ if they would get up and leave a moving picture show every time a suggestive picture was thrown on the screen. They would be his witnesses if they would demand humor of popular songs instead of vulgarity. A true disciple of Christ will have individuality and consistency. He will keep the main thing in view, which is the uplift of humanity. We are not here to make money but to save men. The first question of every day should not be 'How much can I make today?' but 'Whom can I help?' The world's hope lies in Christians who have always asked 'What would Jesus do?'"

RELIGION AND REFORM.

Three thousand people at Temple Baptist Church listened last night to a powerful sermon by Rev. William Patterson, D.D., of Belfast. The great Irish preacher took as his subject "Religion, the Heart of Reform."

"I take it for granted, that those who selected this subject intended the word 'religion' to mean 'regeneration,' for in our world there are religions many as there are gods many, but only one of them is true and undefiled before God the Father, the religion which purifies the lives of individuals and through them cares for suffering humanity," he said. "This religion is the very core of all true reform. It is difficult to overestimate the effect a man's surroundings will have on his physical, moral and spiritual nature, the house he lives in, the air he breathes, the food he eats, and the people with whom he associates. Yet all these things are without the man and his life, his real life consists not in them. His environments may be as favorable as those of Judas, while he may remain a traitor at heart, or they may be as

Arm in Arm.

BLUE AND GRAY MARCH IN ARMY OF ENDEAVOR.

THE BLUE and the gray marched arm in arm yesterday afternoon through the aisles of the Christian Endeavor tent in Fiesta Park, while 4000 men cheered the battle-scarred heroes of '61, ending by a waving of starry flags, the Chautauqua salute, and a spontaneous outburst of song from the audience, "Onward Christian Soldiers." The fifty or more "boys" who had marched to the platform at the request of "Father" Clark, sang in quavering accents, "My Country 'Tis of Thee." Alford F. Judson, No. 1723 Pleasant avenue, concluded the demonstration by delivering a poetical oration to the flag. Judson was a major under Lee but spoke for "his country and his flag," to which he said he was converted at Appomattox.

Three notable speakers addressed the men's meeting at Tent Endeavor. Rev. R. B. Peery, D.D, Ph.D., president of Midland College at Atchison, Kan.; Rev. Daniel A. Poling of Ohio, national superintendent of the Temperance and Christian Citizenship of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor; and Hon. James Alexander Macdonald, editor of the Toronto Globe. President Clark was in charge of the meeting and Rev. J. Clarence Pinkerton of Los Angeles conducted the preliminary devotional programme.

Dr. Peery pointed out the need of the seventh day, the rest day, the Sabbath, because of physical, social and spiritual demands. Dr. Poling sounded the slogan "A Saloonless Nation by 1920," and would bring this condition about through "education and extermination."

The second theatrical happening of the afternoon came at the conclusion of Poling's impassioned plea when he called upon his audience to rise, clinch their fists and repeat a pledge to refuse support to candidates for office not in sympathy with the movement.

Macdonald discussed "Jesus Christ and His Relation to the Social Problem." "Public opinion is now so far Christian," he said, "that no one can long survive who exploits the young and ignorant, and our tomorrow is hopeful because of this rising tide of public opinion which will make it easier to live and be good."

Huerta Will Crush Anti-Americanism.

Gen. Luis E. Torres,

Who arrived in the city yesterday. He declares the recent hostile demonstrations in Mexico City to be the work of irresponsible agitators, of whom the government will make short work when apprised of the facts.

Pitiful.

SOBBING, SHE CALLS TO THOSE WHO ANSWER NOT.

DEPRIVED by a sweeping tragedy of the duty of playing "little mother" to her baby sister, Avanel, and dumb with grief over the sudden taking away of father, mother, three sisters and aunt, little Joyce Huffman, 10 years old, presents a pathetic picture as she wanders about the home of friends at Long Beach, refusing to be comforted, finding no solace in the sympathy that is being showered upon her.

Most of all she misses little Avanel, the baby of the family, whose life was snuffed out with five others in the frightful grade-crossing accident at San Gabriel last Friday. Upon Joyce frequently devolved the task of caring for the baby sister, a mite barely old enough to toddle. At the home of Mrs. David Welsh, No. 1205 Atlantic avenue, Joyce Huffman wanders about the house, a piteous bit of frail humanity, sobbing out her grief in barren loneliness. Other children come to play with her, to take her mind from the horror of the wreck, to relieve the tension of heart-pain that has tortured her soul, but Joyce does not enjoy the frolic on the lawn; neither does her young mind grasp with understanding how other little children can be so happy and care-free when all her world is darkened by the blighting visit of Death.

Other little babies of Avanel's age have been brought to her in the hope that Joyce will find in them a temporary substitute; older girls in the neighborhood have brought their dolls and their playthings, but somehow they don't fit in—they don't begin to touch the void made at the height of happiness by a train crashing into the automobile in which the Huffman family was riding. When Joyce goes to bed at night she sobs herself

EBULLITION OF THE IGNORANT.

So Gen. Torres Calls Hostile Mexican Demonstrations.

"Pro-Jap Anti-Americanism Work of Agitators."

Huerta Military Leader Here With Reassurances.

Anti-American demonstrations in Mexico are bubbles that rise from the ignorant, lower classes through the stirring of political agitators, said Gen. Luis E. Torres, one of the chief staff officers of the Mexican army, who arrived yesterday for a brief visit to his family at No. 1316 Westlake avenue, this city. Gen. Torres asserts that the so-called crusade on Americans in Mexico City is not countenanced by the Huerta reigme, but that the Mexican government is doing all in its power to quell any unfriendly demonstration.

"When the facts are called to the attention of the officials at Mexico City," said Gen. Torres last night, "the government will stamp them out, for the government itself is friendly to the United States and is anxious to do everything in its power to exhibit that friendliness."

The hostile utterances of some of the Mexican newspapers, intended to create antagonism between the United States and Japan, said Gen. Torres, are the outcroppings of irresponsible newspapers which are not in sympathy with the Huerta rule. A rigid censorship will, no doubt, be exercised in the case of these papers by the government officials, said the army officer.

"Ambassador Wilson is in close touch with affairs at Mexico City," he continued. "He has the confidence of the administration and I know that he has confidence in the administration. He has been a help through many times of trouble.

CAUSE OF UNREST.

"The political unrest in Mexico is confined chiefly to the lower, ignorant classes of people who have been promised wealth and power and position and who, not having seen a fulfilment of these promises, are restless and revengeful, so that they are easy prey for agitators who are trying to feather their own nests, politically. The anti-American demonstrations are outcroppings of this feeling among some who have been led to believe by the agitators that the American government will intervene in Mexico and will not only take the property of the people, but will work hardships upon them, scatter their families and despoil the country.

"An agitator will go among the people and say: 'The Americans will eat you alive; they will roast your wives and families to death in the fire,' and the answer of the ignorant people is 'Down with the Americans.'" This is the way Gen. Torres explains the real beginning of the disturbances which are now exciting the Americans in Mexico City.

"I know," he continued, "that the big Americans in Mexico City have great confidence in the Huerta government. They believe that President Huerta's administration will gradually get matters in hand so that ultimately confidence will be resorted and peace will reign again. The best class of Mexican people have no sympathy with the revolutionists, and they are helping to make the Huerta administration the success that it is bound to be."

UNAUTHORIZED ADVANCES.

Asked as to the pro-Japanese demonstrations in Mexico and the statement that emissaries would be sent to Japan with flattering offers of concessions to procure the investment of capital, he ascribed it to the same source from which emanates the other demonstrations.

Gen. Torres said he is not interested in the financial affairs of his country, and that he knows nothing of the efforts to raise money in foreign capitals to carry on the war against the revolutionists and to conduct the government machinery. He denied that he is in Los Angeles to take a hand in the crusade against smuggling of ammunition and military equipment across the border. "I am here merely to visit my family," he said.

Gen. Torres is on a leave of absence. He is awaiting orders from the War Department at Mexico City, and the tenor of the instructions will determine him upon the question of taking his family back with him. The Torres family has been domiciled in the Westlake avenue home for more than two years, having left Mexico during the height of the Madero insurrection. No wthat Gen. Torres sees what he thinks to be the return of permanent peace he is anxious to return his family to Mexican soil.

"The chief trouble in Mexico is in the State of Sonora," said he. "Sonora is isolated and presents a very difficult problem. I think that the government will be able to stamp out the revolution there eventually, for conditions are growing gradually better. There never has been so general a confidence in the administration as there is today and in my trip I encountered a better feeling toward Mexico than I thought existed."

Gen. Torres was at once time Governor of Sonora and later on may be called upon by his government to lead the fight against the insurrectionists there because of his familiarity with Sonora's peculiar conditions. He has seen so much active service during the last four years that he is very tired and quite happy at being relieved for a time from the arduous military operations occasioned by almost constant warfare.

MORE STATE SOCIETIES.

Former residents of South Carolina and of Florida, now living in this city, have held preliminary meetings fo rthe purpose of forming State societies and this week permanent organizations will be effected. On the 24th inst., a meetings of ex-Delawares will be held at No. 932 West Seventh street, in the Federation of States Societies building to form a society. When this is accomplished, Los Angeles will have a State society representing each of the forty-eight States in the Union.

DEVIL FATTENS ON HYPOCRISY.

Sunday Tells Church-Goers Where They Fail.

Spiritual Batting Average Is Low, He Says.

Story of the Betrayal Told in the Vernacular.

"Billy" Sunday fired a volley of hot shot, without apology or sugar coating, yesterday morning at 6000 church members and Christian Endeavors in the Fiesta Park tent. He charged that a big percentage of church members are "dead ones," a useless drag on the church and the cause of religion and told them their spiritual batting average was about .013.

At one point in his address when he had been particularly explicit in pointing out the shortcomings of the negligent, he said: "I'm not here to give you what you want. I'm here to give you what you need. If you don't like it there are plenty of exits and it won't take you long to get out."

The theme of his discourse was the story of the betrayal of Jesus and His hour in Gethsemane, told in rough and ready vernacular. He likened the twelve apostles to the church members of today with startling comparisons.

"When the mob was hunting for Jesus to crucify him," he said, "Judas was away from the other apostles. He was out in the world, mixing with the world and the devil. He was a church member, mind you, but he was a long way from the church and from religion.

"Eight of the disciples were at the borders of Gethsemane. They didn't amount to anything in the emergency. They were about as useless as a good many church members. Three, Peter, James and John, were father in and Jesus was alone.

"To Judas, Jesus had nothing to say. To the eight he said, 'Sit ye here.' That was about as big a job as they were capable of tackling. To the three he said, 'Watch and pray.' Remember they were the best he had and they fell down, for he found them asleep.

IN THE VERNACULAR.

"Peter thought he was strong enough to make good. 'I'll never deny you,' he said to Jesus. Jesus said, 'I'll just call that bluff.' And you all know how Peter fell down. It's always the fellow that does the most wind jamming that gets cold feet first.

"What we need today to save souls is more spiritual fervor, more work and more sincerity. Some of the people whose names are on the church records are doing nothing for God. They are the good Lord, good devil, milk and cider sort of members. When they die they'll leave nothing behind them but an epitaph on a tombstone.

"The church today isn't much more than a mere social organization. The old-time fire and spirit is lacking. Some of the women in it are nothing more than something to hang a dress on, digest expensive food, play bridge whist and go to the devil.

"The society woman is about the most useless person in the world. When you have a prayer meeting and a whist party the same night you'll find most of your bunch playing bridge.

"Some people think I'm talking against them when I'm talking against the devil. You've got to be more alert. You must look after your children. If you'll keep the devil out of your boys and girls, he'll soon bank his fires, put crepe on the door and tack up a sign: 'Hell For Rent.'

"The hypocrisy of the church is breeding infidels. I wonder that God is doing as well as he is with the bunch he has to work with. We're too much of the cream puff and charlotte russe sort. When you have a saloon election lock up the church members and maybe you'll carry the day. A tidal wave of old-time religion would do the world more good than all the doctrinal preaching.

TO HEAVEN BY PULLMAN.

"To see one of these hypocritical church members, you'd think he had a through ticket to Heaven with a seat in the Pullman car and a call for the porter to wake him up when the train began to slow down in the yards of New Jerusalem, but you'll find that he'll likely get sidetracked to the hot box.

"You may not like that kind of talk, but I can't help it and I don't want to. I'm no religious masseur, no spiritual osteopath. I'm a surgeon and I believe in striking the knife into the root of the disease.

"Four out of five church members are doing nothing to help Christ. Some of them think they are getting by when they observe Lent. What a silly idea! It is a travesty to say that men can store up enough piety in forty days to enable them to live like the devil for the rest of the year.

"The church has degenerated into a third rate amusement bureau with the religion left out. Half its members could die and it wouldn't lose anything. When you have 500 members in your church, you think you are doing well if you can scare up an attendance of seventy-five at a prayer meeting.

"You hold socials. I believe in socials but they ought to be free. They could be if the members contribute what they ought. The Mormons get the money because they keep tab on their members. When you try to do it you get it where Queen Elizabeth wore the ruff.

"Multitudes in the church are nothing but bench warmers. To get them to do anything is like trying to drag a cat backwards by its tail over a carpet. I believe there are thousands in this tent who would make sacrifices, who would die for Christianity as quickly as did the martyrs in the Coliseum of Rome, but there are other thousands who don't care a snap.

"In many respects the people are ahead of the preachers in true religious spirit. If God Almighty could convert the preachers we'd give the devil a run for his money and have him in the hospital before Christmas."

Sunday preached on "Chickens Come Home to Roost" to an enormous audience of men at the First Congregational Church yesterday afternoon. With vivid anecdotes and similes he drove home the point that bad habits and excesses bring the punishment and that the children of vicious parents are likely to be vicious themselves.

More than 1000 men were turned away from this meeting and were addressed later by the evangelist at an overflow gathering. Sunday preached yesterday morning at the First Methodist Church and last night at the First Baptist Church.

By Federal Law.

"DRY NATION" SLOGAN OF PROHIBITION CONVENTION.

WHAT they hope history will record as the birth of the "saloonless nation" is a convention to be opened in this city tomorrow by a number of prominent leaders in the Christian Endeavor convention. The convention, which will last three days at the First Nazarene Church, Sixth and Wall streets, is known as a Semi-National and State Prohibition Conference, and it will be the instrument for the fashioning of a national plan to create Federal legislation against the sale or use of liquor. Out of the movement, now in embryo, its sponsors hope to see spring a world-wide temperance wave.

The Endeavorers, who have spent a busy week with the affairs directly affecting their own convention and its allied work, are taking advantage of a unique situation. Hundreds of temperance workers of national and international fame are on the ground and while they are here they will map out the theoretical plan for the abolition of drink and also a practical plan for the execution of the scheme which embraces the enactment of a blanket law by Congress.

William Shaw, general secretary of the Christian Endeavor, will start the ball rolling tomorrow morning with an address on "Why I Became a Voting Prohibitionist" and a reception to Shaw and other prominent workers from other States will follow.

The real business of the conference will be taken up at the afternoon session when organization will be discussed by the master minds present. Rev. Daniel A. Poling, a great temperance leader among the Endeavorers, will deliver an address at the evening session, and on Wednesday the workers will gravitate nearer the point by discussing "Concentration." On Wednesday afternoon the veterans of the war for temperance will hold a reunion. The Wednesday evening address will be delivered by William G. Calderwood, Minnesota State Prohibition chairman.

Having outlined the desire for laws and having concentrated upon the method of bringing about their enactment, the conference will be devoted on the third day to the discussion of "Legislation" and "Crystallization." On Thursday evening the closing address will be delivered by Mrs. Carrie Lee Carter-Stokes, a Prohibition speaker of national prominence, and national speaker of the W.C.T.U.

FALL OF THE BASTILE.

French Holiday-Anniversary to Be Elaborately Celebrated Here—Mayor Rose to Speak.

Mayor Rose will be one of the chief speakers this afternoon at 2 o'clock at Turner Hall, No. 321 South Main street, when the French colony of Los Angeles will celebrate the 124th anniversary of the fall of the Bastile. Mayor Rose will speak in English, as will Justice Summerfield, but the responses and most of the other addresses on the formal programme will be in French. The celebration is one of the big events looked forward to by Frenchmen all over the world and is expected to be largely attended here.

The leading feature of the programme will be a theatrical production, "La Paix Chez Soi," (Peace at Home,) a comedy in French by Georges Courteline. Miss Lucy Eyraud, one of the popular girls in the French colony, will take a leading part.

A grand ball will follow the afternoon's programme. It will commence at 8 o'clock.

BOOSTING LYNARD.

Former residents of New Jersey residing in Los Angeles, through their New Jersey Association, yesterday addressed a letter to Mayor Rose recommending I. X. Lynard, officer of their organization, to the appointment as president of the Board of Public Utilities. Lynard is president of the city organization of New Jersey people and vice-president of the State organization. A similar letter has been addressed by members of the West Jefferson Street Improvement Association.

WOMEN CLAMOR AT THE DOORS.

Police Keep Back Overflow of Endeavorers.

California Suffragists Give Visitors Accounting.

Discuss Problems of Hour in Christendom.

Hundreds of women were sadly disappointed yesterday afternoon in their efforts to secure admission to the Christian Endeavor women's mass-meeting in Temple Auditorium. Choral Hall fell far short of taking care of even a third of the overflow that clamored with the police for entrance to this one great congregation of women during the convention.

There were less than half a dozen men in the entire gathering. It was an outpouring of femininity such as Los Angeles has seldom if ever witnessed. Every available seat in the vast theater was occupied. The stage was crowded and even the orchestra space had its quota of the fair sex. The waving of countless fans, the soft white summer garments of the majority of those present, the ceaseless motion of the place brought to mind a great cage of butterflies.

The intensity of purpose, the objects of the meeting and the sincerity of the speakers dispelled this illusion, however. It was a meeting of real endeavorers, women anxious not only to help themselves and their own little communities, but to help the world at large in the achievement of better things. The great room vibrated with the thrilling songs of that feminine choir that raised its voice in praise and thanksgiving at the opening of the meeting.

VOICES IN PRAISES.

Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, presiding, first called for a short prayer and then came a song led by Prof. L. F. Peckham, director of the combined choir of Endeavorers, in which the great audience joined in the chorus that went swelling out through the open doors, a message to the passing throngs and the loiterers in the park across the way.

Mrs. Burdette gave the visiting women a special welcome to this State of woman's achievement, a land that originally was a homeless, womanless coast, but today, as if by the law of compensation, the land of women voters, women farmers and women of wealth and success in every line. "Suffrage was won by the women in a womanly way and we trust it will always be exercised in the same dignified manner," she said. "To crown our achievements here, we have the largest Y.W.C.A. in the world and we hope that your presence with us will inspire us with new ideals and increase our many worthy activities.

"While the movement along educational, philanthropic, civic and political lines has been going on for several decades, the movement in the church has been going on for 2000 years. There will always be a man's way and a woman's way as long as there is the everlasting masculine and the eternal feminine, which is as God wills it. There is but one thing more disgusting than the mannish woman and that is the womanish man. Woman's work for the kingdom of God must be equal to that of her brother but need not be identical.

"Upon woman is placed the moral responsibility of constantly advancing ideals in public opinion, private life, and Christian citizenship. No organization entrusted to the church has done more for the development of women than the Christian Endeavor and kindred societies. If every woman here would leave with the determination to live a life of absolute Christian citizenship, there would be less need of home missionary work, of the care of the criminals and the unfortunates."

Mrs. Burdette proceeded to expound the power of the ballot and the effect this would have if the women all realized the urgency of using it with the proper effect. Parties would dissolve if Christian ideals were pushed to the forefront instead of political fights, according to her assertion. She finally urged upon all women the extreme need of true citizenship, grounded on Christianity.

"Who Should Respond to the Cry of the Outcast?" was the topic of Mrs. J. S. Norvell who, in beautiful language and exquisite pictures unfolded the four ages of womanhood, choosing for the background of her discussion the story of Moses, the first historical outcast.

"A mother always comes first in the work of the world. God created woman as the last of his work to crown it all. He stopped his creative work to turn it over to woman and consequently this great mother instinct has led the world," she said. "Mother-instinct made it impossible for the mother of Moses to turn him over to the Egyptian masters. The sister of Moses, who assisted her in hiding the infant, stands today for the big sisterhood movement of our great Endeavor society. It is the prototype of a great impulse, of a life force that we are developing.

"The daughter of the King, who found the child, proud in the royalty of her birth, was not too exalted to pick up the outcast and minister to his wants. Her boast of blue blood did not prevent her from ministering to the needy. The girl child with her saw, the example and was taught its great lesson. Today when we hear the call of the needy, the downtrodden and the outcast, we should rejoice in the privilege of service."

Mrs. A. J. Macdonald of Toronto called attention to the necessity of the work at home. "Throughout the world today we find the same conditions, the same problems, the same vices and sins and the Christian Endeavor movement should be the first to apply the remedies for these things, starting at home, whence the spirit will progress itself, reaching to the uttermost corners of the earth. Self-centered societies have dwindled and died because they failed to realize that the world's work is theirs. We are a part of a great nation-wide movement for betterment, for the redemption from social evils, and should get away from the idea of a limited church society."

Mrs. Edgar E. Strothers, who on several occasions has spoken on the missionary work in China, the great needs of the Orient and the progress of women there, concluded the programme of speakers.

Militant.

THE WORLD FOR CHRIST IS THEIR BATTLE CRY.

HOW the world is being won for Christ was never better shown in a single gathering than last night at Fiesta Park when Christian Endeavorers from all parts of the earth told how the gospel is being carried to remote countries and what an important part the Christian Endeavorers are playing in disseminating the word.

There were speakers from China, Japan, India and other countries, each with glowing accounts of the advance of Christianity and the gradual winning over of the world to the cause of righteousness. A feature was the address of a Japanese showing progress in his native land.

President Clark presided. The programme was interspersed with songs, prayers and special music by delegations from China and Hawaii. Among the speakers were Rev. Stephen J. Corey, secretary of the Christian Foreign Missionary Society of Cincinnati, who spoke on Christian Endeavor and Africa's problem; Rev. Edgar E. Strother, field secretary for China, "Christian Endeavor in a New Republic;" Rev. T. Sawaya, field secretary for Japan, "Christian Endeavor in a New Old Empire;" Stanley A. Hunter, "Christian Endeavor in India." There was also a decision service for missionary volunteers.

Rev. T. Sawaya, the field secretary of the Japan Union of Christian Endeavor of Okayama, Japan, told the convention that the Christian Endeavorers in the land of the cherry and the chrysanthemums wanted specially to send their greetings and at their request he came upon that errand. He presented the following official greeting from Japan:

"The land of the sunrise to the land of the sunset, greeting!

"Three thousand Endeavorers of the Far East send their message of peace across the sea to their brethren of the Far West. They stand with you pledged to maintain fraternal relations and to keep the faith with those great principles of Christ's kingdom, truth and justice, love and loyalty, which know no bounds of age or sex, of clime or race.

"TOKIYUKI OSADA, president.

"JAMES H. PETTEE, treasurer.

"For the Japan Union of Christian Endeavor, Osaka, Japan, June 4, 1913."

"Most of the Christian activities in Japan you will find largely indebted to the loyal service of Endeavorers," he said. "America is a name that sounds most friendly to the ear of every Japanese, especially to that of Japanese Christians. It is America that has sent us the largest number of missionaries and is still aiding many of the largest and most influen-

no controversy, he had no debate, but he said: 'Hear me, O Lord, hear me; that this people may know that Thou are the Lord God.' Then the fire of the Lord fell and that settled it. If sinners are converted, if the church is to put on her beautiful garments of holiness, there must be a supernatural manifestation. Without the fire of God to warm the heart, all human plans and human brains are of little avail. John Wesley attempted no debate when England was fast going to the devil, but he preached, prayed and called down fire from heaven and vindicated spiritual religion.

"What a spectacle for men and angels to look upon, when a popular divine of this city wastes his precious time discussing the extremely silly subject of kissing, while his church so needs the fire of God, and sinners are crowding the 'broad way' to hell! O for ten thousand Elijahs who have no time to trifle with their holy calling! Mark you, Elijah, single handed, stood over against 850 prophets of Baal. But God was with him, and in answer to his prayer, the fire fell and the sacrifice, the water and everything else was consumed, and the people cried: 'The Lord, He is God, the Lord, He is God!' There will be no convincing or converting the world without the fire from heaven.

"God started the church at Pentecost with tongues of fire. Fire attracts, fire consumes, fire purifies, fire cheers, fire moves. A hundred men and women with hot hearts can set a community on fire. 'Our God is consuming fire.' He consumes sin, the only cure. Fire is what we need. More coal shovelers, not more brakemen."

REV. W. E. TILROE.

BOYLE HEIGHTS M. E. CHURCH.

THE CITY, WHERE ARE MANY PEOPLE, THE NATURAL SEAT OF RELIGION.

At the Boyle Heights Methodist Episcopal Church yesterday, the pastor, Rev. W. E. Tilroe, D.D., preached on "City Religion." He said in part:

"Of course this city was really a small town. The historic interest of Joseph's grave and Jacob's well was its great asset. But like Los Angeles and Chicago and Kinney's Corners, it was a wonderful place to the people who lived there. In reading the Bible we must never forget the scale of things. To the citizens of Babel heaven was only a high ceiling where the stars were hung as lamps. A tower whose top should reach into heaven was not nearly so absurd to them as it might seem. In Genesis the nearest salt water was the Great Sea. To us it is the Midland Sea, the Mediterranean. We have found some other seas that are also great. The Bible world was a matter probably not one-tenth the world we know, either in geography, population or potency. Our modern world at work on any ancient problem needs to tread softly as it is Brobdingnag in Lilliput, a giant among dwarfs. It is more sure to be awkward than anything else. Remembering Sychar in terms of its inhabitants we have every right to speak of city religion. Considering how the planet runs to cities it is surely a thing worth speaking of.

"It is cheering to know that city religion is always very possible. Sychar turned Christian and it may be done again. In other words no environment determines religion. One may go to the country or stay in town and be good. One may be rich or poor and pious. Holiness will help a man whether he is sick or well. Both the cradle and the grave are in sight of heaven. Men love God as naturally as women. The tide is coming in with economics, culture, comfort, politics and religion, but the wise man will not expect too much. Things often do well when the tide goes out. The city dweller has every right to be an optimist. Sychar was a city.

"City religion is a matter of choice. These citizens of Sychar believed for one reason and another. They were intelligent and discriminating. Cities mean history, and crowds, and culture, and wealth, and pleasure, and dominance, and distraction, and crush. If a man will sink or swim in the welter he must choose. He has only as much religion as he chooses anyway or anywhere. The city is a perennial stimulant to choice. So it happens often that great saints as well as sinners are found in the city. Men are driven to committal in the big town as nowhere else. If he is not good the city dweller has as small excuse as any other.

"If one is wise city religion is preeminently Christian. They went out of the city and came unto him. One lone man was mightier than the crowd, the glare, the crush. The idea that the churches must compete with the city in secular attractions is a degradation. A holy show is still a show. If the worship of God Almighty cannot shine by its own light it would better be blown out. There are times and places where men may wisely grin and cackle, but the hour of prayer is not among them. If a church is not attractive it is just because it is empty of the Christ. If when one prays he does not choose between worship and the world he does not pray. Worship is never a performance. The disciple of the Christ forsakes all else to follow. He never disappoints. The Nazarene is always worth His price."

DR. LOCKE.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH.

"IT IS BY BACKBONE AND NOT WISHBONE THAT THE WORLD WILL PROGRESS.

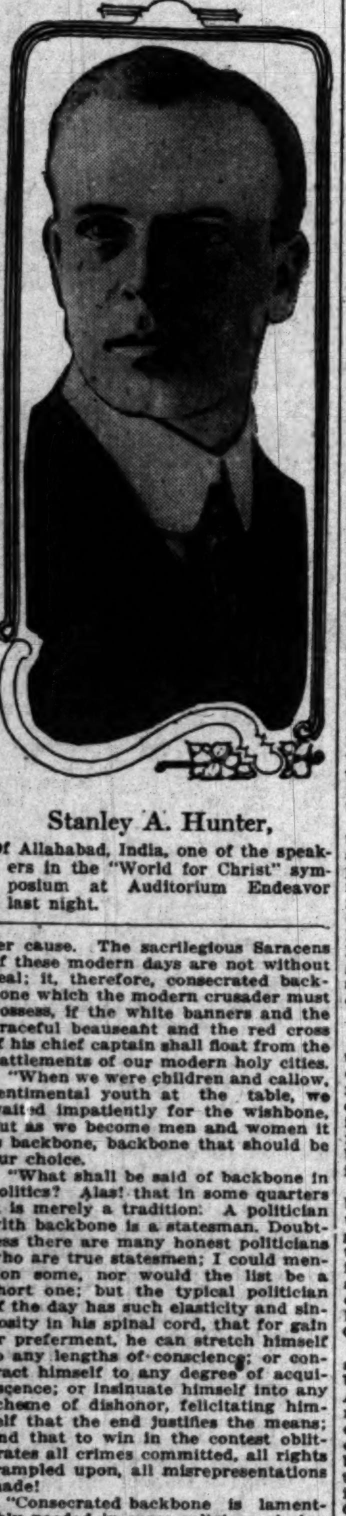
Dr. Charles Edward Locke at the First Methodist Episcopal Church last evening preached on the theme, "Backbone or Wishbone: Has Every Man His Price? How We Can Have a Saloonless Nation in 1920." His text was "Be it known unto thee, O King, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." Daniel iii:18. He said in part:

"Physically a man is an animal with a vertical backbone. In the building of the physical man years were occupied by the Creator in lifting the animal from the downward look until it could stand erect and look up. When that eventful moment came, God breathed into this magnificent achievement of clay and blood, and the animal became a living soul.

"So the moral man must be a vertebrate. A spinal column is necessary to his manhood. When he loses it there is a reversion of type, all the divine processes are stultified and nullified, and man goes back to the pit from which he was dug, to the slime in which he wallowed, a mass of pulp and degradation.

"But as man leans upon his spinal column and finds a secure rock for his feet, and trains his hands to fight for his rights, and develops sympathy in his heart and wisdom in his brain, and keeps his eye on his star, his personality increases in divinity and humanity, his Maker trusts him, and his fellows love him.

"It is consecrated backbone for which we plead. Courage in the good cause. The staunch defense of the right against the wrong. The activity of wrong-doers is worthier of a better cause. The sacrilegious Saracens of these modern days are not without zeal; it, therefore, consecrated backbone which the modern crusader must possess, if the white banners and the graceful beauseant and the red cross of his chief captain shall float from the battlements of our modern holy cities.



Stanley A. Hunter,

Of Allahabad, India, one of the speakers in the "World for Christ" symposium at Auditorium Endeavor last night.

"When we were children and callow, sentimental youth at the table, we waited impatiently for the wishbone, but as we become men and women it is backbone, backbone that should be our choice.

"What shall be said of backbone in politics? Alas! that in some quarters it is merely a tradition. A politician with backbone is a statesman. Doubtless there are many honest politicians who are true statesmen; I could mention some, nor would the list be a short one; but the typical politician of the day has such elasticity and sinuosity in his spinal cord, that for gain or preferment, he can stretch himself to any lengths of conscience; or contract himself to any degree of acquiescence; or insinuate himself into any scheme of dishonor, felicitating himself that the end justifies the means; and that to win in the contest obliterates all crimes committed, all rights trampled upon, all misrepresentations made!

"Consecrated backbone is lamentably needed in some religious circles. Many Samsons once strong and useful are grinding in prison-houses in Gaza; many Peters who stoutly declared 'Though all men forsake thee yet will not I,' are heard denying their Lord with profane vehemence. Many Christians bend their backbones almost to the point of breaking in adjusting themselves to worldly affairs. Such people carry no burdens for Christ. They are not oak trees, just weeping willows. Soldiers who win victories must stand erect with no openings in their armor, and with sword drawn and shield in defense.

"Moreover, how do we stand the tests of self-denial, of patience, of generosity, of forgiving our enemies, of avarice, of social preferment, of humility, of seeking our own in our brother's highest good, of adversity, of faith in God when there are dashing waves or sinking sands, or of fashionable idol worship?

"We can have a saloonless nation whenever the Christian people of this fair land exchange their wishbone for their backbone and leaning firmly against unbending spinal columns take their stand, and offer their prayers, and cash and their ballots, and throw the weight of their combined strength against the most atrocious invention for the destruction of the bodies and souls of men yet devised—the infamous and devilish American saloon.

"Let our hearts be filled with righteous indignation and our backbones stiffened with unflinching purpose—and the liquor traffic will be driven to defeat and submerged in oblivion.

"Backbone, gentlemen, backbone will do it. And 1920 shall witness a stainless flag and a saloonless nation.

"The saloons must go! Not go on, but go out! And in a hurry!"

TO BEAUTIFY PASADENANS.

Recently Engaged Physical Instructor of Crown City Schools Would Add to Perfection.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BOSTON (Mass.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Miss Hazel Cooper, the Howard Seminary instructor, who, in September becomes physical director of the Pasadena High School, goes to her new post with the ambition to demonstrate the effectiveness of a pet plan for making girls beautiful without artificial means.

Miss Cooper says she believes that certain forms of gymnastic exercises taken in the open air, she particularly emphasizes the open air part, tend to make even the plainest sort of girl beautiful or near beautiful anyway.

"Fresh air and outdoor exercises of the right sort are what growing girls need," she says. "Every girl and woman likes a beautiful figure and handsome features. The attractiveness that the professional beauty doctor gives can not compare with that which comes from intelligently directed physical exercise.

"So far as I know the Pasadena High School is the first one in the country to eliminate indoor gymnasium work for outdoor exercising."

Miss Cooper comes from Brockton, Mass., the city which, according to Col. Roosevelt, has more pretty girls than any city in the country.

NAVAL ORDERS.

Night Wire.] It is learned tonight that by order of the Navy Department the four submarines now here, F1, F2, F3 and F4 will go to San Pedro on the 21st inst., to remain there indefinitely. The small wooden building at Coronado used for storing spare torpedoes and other adjuncts of the submarine flotilla, will be taken down and the lumber and torpedoes will be placed on board the Alert and shipped to San Pedro.

to lift humanity and to better the conditions of mankind than all the pictures that have ever been painted and all the human laws which have ever been enacted. We frequently speak of the great reformation that revolutionized all Europe and lifted such a large section of it out of the darkness of ignorance and the misery of sin. But when and how did it begin? Was it not through the truth of God touching the hearts of men like Luther, Calvin and Knox? The Mighty Angel flying with the everlasting gospel which reached the hearts of men, changing their lives and through them lifting and reforming nations? Let us do all we can to help men socially, to lighten their burdens and to make their paths more pleasant. But let us begin at the right end, for out of the heart are the issues of life. We must get men right with Gor if we are ever to get them right with one another. The secret of Britain's power and of America's greatness is the old book what speaks of the new heart, the necessity and possibility of the new birth. John Knox hit the nail on the head when he cried out, 'A Bible in every home, a church and a school in every village.' The carrying out of this motto lifted Scotland out of her degradation and made her the mightiest nation of her size the world has ever known, great in the physical, intellectual and spiritual world. If we can say this of the Scot what shall we say of the Ulster Scot who helped to cut down your forests and build your cities? They led in the struggle for Independence, while the Grants, the McKinleys and the Wilsons have dwelt in the White House, lending dignity and power to the Presidential chair.

"Follow this great river of civilization and prosperity back to its source and you will find that its fountain was pure religion. That which started the reformation in Europe centuries ago is now working in China, and please God this leaven of true religion will keep on working until the whole is leavened, and then will the isles be glad and the nations rejoice, for peace shall reign from the river to the ends of the earth."

IMMANUEL'S NEW PASTOR.

Dr. John Balcom Shaw, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Chicago, who has accepted a call to Immanuel Presbyterian Church of this city, preached there yesterday morning on "Self-Dedication." Long before it was time for the service to begin the big auditorium and galleries were packed to the doors.

Dr. Shaw announced that he will begin his ministry in this city on September 14, and extended a formal greeting to his new parishioners. He told them that he began his ministry in New York City twenty-five years ago and helped to build up a large church there. Sixteen years later, he said, when he was asked to go to Chicago, he was at first in doubt.

"I did decide to accept the call," he said, "and I have never regretted it. Until your invitation to come to Los Angeles came to me I had believed my work would be with the Chicago church as long as I lived. But I come here with full confidence and belief that it is the right step. I have the same feeling and conviction that impelled me to go from New York to Chicago. I was right then and I know I am right now."

With Dr. Shaw on the platform yesterday was Dr. George N. Lockhart of Oak Hill, Ill., who has been elected chairman of the Board of Church Extension of the Chicago Presbyterian Board.

OUR CHOICES.

"There are four ways," began the speaker, "to dispose of a grain of wheat. You may grind it and throw it away. You may convert it into food to satisfy your physical needs. You may store it in bins or sacks or you may plant it that it may produce more wheat.

"You have the same choice with your lives. There are four ways open to you: Self-destruction, self-gratification, self-reservation, and self-dedication.

"To this congregation I need not dwell on the first, nor say much concerning the second alternatives. If you would destroy yourself or live a selfish life of gratification, you are not Christians. Those battles you have undoubtedly fought and won.

"The temptation is between the last two. It is particularly the temptation of young men. I have known many a youth who started out with high purposes, who had overcome the desire for self-gratification, but who delayed in dedicating himself fully. Men who yield to the suggestion of reservation, who procrastinate too often, find themselves in middle age, selfish, mercenary and unfit for the Master's work.

"We should choose promptly and without hesitation the course of self-dedication. Do not try to see how much you can get out of life, but how much you can put into it."

BRASS BANDS IN CHURCH.

In a sermon of such vigor and power as to border on the sensational, Dr. Frank M. Goodchild of the Central Baptist Church of New York, speaking at the First Baptist Church, yesterday morning, denounced the sensational methods of many modern religious leaders in their efforts to draw men into the church.

"I view with alarm," said Dr. Goodchild, "this modern tendency to replace the cross of Christ with other things, this attempt to substitute secular amusements for the spirit of the Holy Ghost, this offering of special inducements to men in order to get them to accept the gospel of love. What the church needs today is not more worldly attractions, but a more diligent use of the sword of the spirit of Almighty God. A church is great and of real consequence, not according to the number of its membership, but according to the number of members who are filled with the spirit of righteousness. The old-fashioned religion is the ever-new, the ever-living religion.

"Sometimes we hear men ask with a sneer: 'Is there anything in prayer?' I can say that I know there is all power in prayer. I speak not of empty words, but of that true prayer which is the cry to God, of men who know their need. I mean the kind of prayer with which John Knox shook Scotland, the kind of prayer that opened the lions' mouths for Daniel, the kind of prayer that sustained John Edwards(and Bunyan and Paul, the kind of prayer that has often been the means of bringing about repetitions of revivals like that of the first great Pentecostal gathering. Power in prayer! There is no real power to be gained in any other way.

"There was something similar in the words of Napoleon and the promise of Jesus. Napoleon said that when he died his spirit would return to France to be the leading power in countless revolutions. Jesus said that if he went away, he would send the comforter to his followers. That comforter did come into the hearts of those who prayed and who believed in the Master. And the secret of the great power of the church in the first century is also the secret of whatever power the church has in this twentieth century. That secret is spirituality, gained through prayer."

From Los Angeles, Dr. Goodchild will go to Burmah to attend the Judson centennial in celebration of the first American missionary work there.

THE DAY'S WORK.

Over 2000 people gathered at the First Congregational Church yesterday morning to hear a sermon delivered by Dr. Henry Churchill King, president of Oberlin College. Six hundred of this number were unable to gain admission to the main auditorium and formed an overflow meeting in the Sunday-school rooms, which Dr. King addressed later. Dr. William Horace Day, pastor, conducted the services, and Dr. G. A. Burdett, for many years organist of the Harvard Church, Brookline, Mass., officiated as organist.

Dr. King chose as his subject "It's all in the day's work." He said he used the word in its essentially dictionary meaning, as a point of view from which one may well think of his life's work—the view point of the modest man who deprecates anyone's making overmuch of the difficulties or sufferings he has had to face; who would do what comes, and under either praise or commiseration is inclined quite honestly to say, "Oh, it's all in the day's work."

"A man's point of view and his mood toward life," Dr. King continued, "have, after all, everything to do with what his life is to mean to himself and to others. This phrase does not indicate the ascetic view or the attitude of self pity, of the spirit of medieval chivalry nor the aristocracy of persons or events, but the straightforward taking on, with cheer and courage, of whatever is involved in the goal one has set for himself.

PERILS OF IDLENESS.

"The Christian may not allow himself to become soured or spoiled or embittered. It is this that makes him fear the easy job, the soft place to be attained with no difficulty. To live a life that does not take one's power and demand growth is to insure life's worst calamity—a dwindling self. An idle, self-indulgent, leisure class is a menace not only to itself but to the whole community of which it is a part.

"The true man knows that there cannot fail to be plenty of what men call hardship, from which he may not and would not excuse himself. However hard his lot may be he certainly cannot improve it by whining. He knows that he ought to have his share in the strenuous, difficult and disagreeable work of the world, and he does not mean to shirk his part. It is not our assertion that all lives are equal in hardship though the differences are probably less than judged from the outside, it is even true that there may come to one a succession of particularly bitter occurances, but there is just one mood in which the experience, however hard, may be safely faced—that of a soldier.

"But though a man is quite willing to do his share, his attitude toward life is not to be that of medieval romance and chivalry, as though the meaning and value of life attached only to certain decorative and conventional romantic scenes and careers for away from the prose of common life. Democracy tends to deny not only the aristocracy of persons but also the aristocracy of events and careers, and glories in the significance of the commonplace. We cannot pick out the important event or place or career by any external appearance. We do not know which in the outcome are to prove most significant. We cannot forecast the unconscious moment when we shall be weighed in the balance. The history both of the individual and the world declines to be divided into dramatic epochs by the ringing down of the curtain or the shifting of the scenes. The great events, as they later prove themselves, still refuse to sound the trumpet before them. We cannot state the value of any human soul, so the man who most manfully finishes his work may not neglect any portion of it.

"The true man cannot give up his goal, cannot surrender his ideal; he would not fail in the task assumed, and he pays with gladness, therefore, the price of attainment. He would look clear through to the end and colorize the paradox of Christ: 'Except a grain of wheat fall into the earth and die, it abideth by itself alone, but if it die, it beareth much fruit.'"

DEPARTMENT EMBARRASSED.

French Government Asks Assistance to Find Out What's the Matter With Their Powder.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—War Department officials have been placed in an embarrassing position, it became known today, by a request from agents of the French government for assistance of the department's ordnance bureau in perfecting the smokeless powder now used by the French army and navy. A series of unexplained disastrous explosions in the French magazines aboard ship and ashore is said to have led to this request, which is quite unusual in view of the consistent efforts made by most nations to protect the secret of their powder preparations.

The War Department buys all of its powder under contract from an American company and this company has protested vigorously against the disclosure of its trade secrets to a foreign government, asserting that from patriotic motives it had previously rejected overtures from this foreign government to sell it powder or to establish a powder factory in France.

Colonel Will Take Short Rest at Grand Canyon Before Starting Out After Bears and Lions.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WILLIAMS (Ariz.) July 13.—Col. Theodore Roosevelt will rest at Grand Canyon three or four days before starting on a 150-mile ride, he announced tonight. He was met today by Nick Roosevelt, his nephew, who has been arranging the trip. The ex-President plans to cross the canyon by muleback, hunt bear and lions for a week or two, and then ride to Gallup, crossing the Colorado River at Lee's Ferry.

FIGHT MOUNTAIN FIRE.

People of Bakersfield Succeed in Extinguishing Blaze Which Consumes Acres of Feed.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

BAKERSFIELD (Cal.) July 13.—An all-night and day battle with a fire which swept Bear Mountain apparently resulted tonight in victory. F. G. Munzer, superintendent of a land company which lost most heavily, arrived here tonight to report the fire under control.

The fire started thirty miles east of here, burning over 10,000 acres, principally in dry feed, valuable for cattle grazing. The flames endangered the lives of thousands of cattle and much property. A force of 150 men was on watch tonight to prevent a revival of the flames.

TO UNITE TRADE INTEREST.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—Directors of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States in a party of sixteen that is making a 10,000-mile tour of eleven States, arrived here tonight from Los Gatos. The party is headed by Harry A. Wheeler, a prominent Chicago banker, who is president of the organization. The quarterly meeting of the directors will be held here tomorrow.

The announced purpose of the tour is to unite more closely the commercial interests of the East and West with those of the North and South. The directors represent eighty national trade bodies and 270 Boards of Trade and Chambers of Commerce.

One of he important matters that will be dealt with at the meeting tomorrow will be to formulate wishes of the organization for a tariff commission as expressed by a referendum vote of the body. Though no question pertaining to the currency bill has been submitted to a referendum, this also will be a subject of discussion.

The tour of the party which began July 5 will consume twenty-two days and the States included in the tour are: Nebraska, Wyoming, Colorado, Utah, Nevada, Arizona, California, Washington, Montana, North Dakota and Minnesota.

WARM WEATHER PREDICTED.

Thunder Storms Will Visit Rocky Mountain Region and Northern Plains States.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Warm and generally fair weather except for local thunder showers is promised by the Weather Bureau for the coming week.

"A disturbance now over the northern Rocky Mountain region," says the weekly bulletin, "will develop eastward and will be attended by local thunder storms that will occur Monday over the northern plains States. Another disturbance should appear over the extreme northwest about the end of the week, bringing with it local showers in that section.

"Warm weather will continue over the southwest and over the southern districts west of the Rocky Mountains while over the plains and the middle West higher temperatures may be expected in the early part of the week, followed by some moderation after the middle of the week, and by another rise over the northwest by the end of the week."

A TRANSFORMATION.

President Wilson demands a destruction of the Republican tariff because "it cuts us off from our proper part in the commerce of the world." If he had studied the census returns before making that remark he might not have made it. In 1910 our imports of merchandise were $1,556,947,430 and our exports were $1,744,984,720—a comfortable balance of trade in our favor of $188,037,290.

That does not look much like being "cut-off" from "our proper part in the commerce of the world."

What is there about Democratic politics that transforms a Princeton professor, a Christian gentleman, a high-grade academic cuss into a yelping Ananias? Can anybody tell?

BIG DAMAGES.

A New York architect named Frank M. Andrews has sued T. Coleman du Pont for $685,000 for services in connection with the drawing of plans for the new Equitable building. Why did not Mr. Du Pont pay to this struggling young architect his modest honorarium? It probably took Mr. Andrews several months to prepare the plans. Six hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars is no money at all for such a job. Daisy Markham claims $125,000 from the Marquis of Northampton for breaching his promise to marry her. He denies the promise and says that anyhow $75,000 is his total cash value to her or any woman. This sum he has paid into court. But Daisy won't take it. She says to him:

"Now by my hopes of heaven I'll be

THE PARTING GUESTS.

The Endeavorers are going or have gone. Of course many will remain to see something of the country, now that they have finished with their convention. Los Angeles will not forget the Endeavorers, and they will not forget Los Angeles. As a class, religious conventions are not extravagant. The people who attend them do not spend large sums for their own entertainment. But there are no better advertisers in the world. They go home and talk. They think and talk so much that they come back to stay and they bring others with them. In the long run no convention will have done this city more permanent good than the one here last week. It was held fifteen years ago in San Francisco and the Chamber of Commerce up there still has records of 800 families settling in the northern metropolis on that account. Los Angeles should reap twice that number and it probably will.

MISAPPLIED FUNDS.

The sum of $19,669 of the fund contributed by the public for the relief of strikers and their families during the textile struggle at Lawrence was intrusted to the officers of the I.W.W. for distribution where it would do the most good.

Some of it went to pay the bail bond forfeited by Joseph J. Ettor in Reading, Pa. Some of it was used to obtain the release of Euccafon from Sing Sing and some of it went to the I.W.W. newspapers in Spokane and elsewhere, and all that the families of the strikers got wouldn't furnish them with a dish of cornmeal mush and the tail of a salt mackerel each. None of it has been traced into the possession of Toopious, though many people suspect that some of it with a goodly share of the $215,000 "and up" that Darrow and Harriman swiped from workingmen and women went into the yawning and cavernous pockets of the great rebater, and that each dollar as it went into his pocket sang in mournful cadence:

"Farewell, vain world, I'm going home,
Going home for to stay."

A NEW ORATOR.

Bourke Cochrane must look to his laurels or the new Sheriff of New York will snatch him baldheaded. Joseph Choate, and Elihu Root, and Horace Porter, and all the orators and near-orators of Manhattan must now retire, for their lamps are dimmed by the star beams that radiate from New York's brand new orator, Sheriff and Coroner Julius Harburger. At the annual picnic of the Timothy D. Sullivan Association Sheriff Harburger spoke as follows:

> "Ere the dusk shall mantle departing day with its ebon robes I must leave to resume my duties as Sheriff of New York county, which are onerous, grave, sober, responsibility, underestimated and appreciated by me. The feudal days of hate and violence in these innocent outings are over and I confidently predict that not one bruised head or a single blackened eye will be the result of today's revels.
> "Let all races mingle in amity, friendship, peaceful, joyous, fidelity, and I am glad that as Sheriff of New York county it will not be my duty to arrest or order the arrest of any despicable, cacogenic, anarchistic, bad or disorderly person on this excursion.
> "In concluding I would only say that this unspoiled recreation refutes those who out of their ignorance would slander, libel, malign, denounce, derogation, disparage the people of the East Side or the work of Tammany Hall."

For incomparable beauty of rhetoric, for fascinating flow of speech that assuages soul thirst, satisfies heart hunger, and encourages the inner consciousness to revel in the beatitudes of intellect, the speech of Sheriff Harburger exceeds the eloquence of Chattering Chet, even as Chet's utterances exceed in entrancing oratory the bumble bee droning of Toopious.

TURKEY'S OPPORTUNITY.

Bulgaria appears to be in the condition of the Nevada bad man from Tonopah who, noticing a contest progressing in front of the Howling Wilderness saloon in Goldfield, inquired "Is this a free fight?" On being assured that it was, he exclaimed gleefully: "Count me in." In a few minutes he emerged with his coat ripped up the back, his nose scientifically divided and shy one ear. As he departed from the conflict he exclaimed: "If this is a free fight count me out."

The modus operandi of Bulgaria has been to sneer at the suggestions of the powers while she was getting the best of the contest, and to howl for the intervention of the powers when she was getting the worst of it. Greece and Servia combined have punished her for her bad faith by giving her a well-deserved thrashing. Now comes her neighbor, Roumania—peaceful, kindly disposed Roumania—who has shown herself to be:

"A Fortune's champion that doth never fight,
Save when her humorous ladyship is by
To give her safety."

Roumania who proposes to take unto itself whatever of Bulgaria that is not pre-empted by Greece and Servia.

Then there is Turkey. Bulgaria's dilemma is Turkey's opportunity. Suppose Turkey waltzes in and seeks to recover her lost Balkan possessions? The world would watch the outcome with composure if not with delight.

NO QUARTER TO AMERICANS.

Secretary Redfield is the Bombastes Furioso of the administration. He sounded upon his official bazoo a note of warning when he said: "There is a belief that the reduction of wages is the easy resort of the inefficient and the hall mark of poor management." He says to the manufacturers of the country: "If you reduce the wages of your workmen because of the new tariff to jail you go." He divests himself of his pedoneum coverings, nails them on the outer door of his department and exclaims:

"Whoever dares these boots displace
Must meet Bombastes face to face."

The difference in wages between Europe and America is more than offset, in Secretary Redfield's opinion, by the greater skill and rapidity of American workmen in making a product, and the sagacity and resourcefulness of the American manufacturer in selling it.

Mr. Thomas H. Ball, a worsted yarn manufacturer in Philadelphia, challenges the truth of Secretary Redfield's statement. Mr. Ball says: "In the woolen manufactures abroad the skilled help are fully 10 to 20 per cent. more efficient than our own, while the machinery both there and here run the same maximum speed and the wages abroad are one-half to one-third of what they are here for the same work."

Secretary Redfield belongs to the class of spread-eagle statesmen who were satirized by Dickens in "Martin Shuzzlewit." "True, he is rude," said the American boaster in speaking of an American statesman, "so are our bars. True he is rough—so are our buffaloes. But he's a child of freedom and his answer to the despot and the tyrant is that his home is in the bright-setting of the sun."

No more bigoted, self-opinionated crew of legislative despots ever gathered in a committee-room than the members of the Senate Finance Committee. The representatives of American manufacturers, pleading for such modifications of the Wilson-Underwood bill as would save their industries from destruction and their workmen from loss of employment, were turned away from the committee-room with only a perfunctory hearing, while the agents of European manufacturers were afforded kindly audience and granted about everything they asked.

And they were not diffident or backward in their askings. There was what is known as the "dumping clause" in the Wilson-Underwood bill as it came from the House. This clause would have prevented the dumping of surplus European stocks on our shores at such prices as would have made American competition utterly impossible. It was promptly stricken out.

The foreign ship-owners' lobby asked to have the 5 per cent. rebate on goods shipped in American bottoms stricken out, so that England might continue to do our carrying trade on the ocean, and the request was granted.

There was in the bill a clause intended to prevent fraudulent undervaluations, by compelling foreign manufacturers to exhibit their books to officials of our government so as to verify foreign invoices. This the representatives of foreign manufacturers demanded should be stricken out and it was promptly eliminated. Yet the American manufacturer must submit to a complete disclosure of all his books at any time the government so orders.

Everything was granted without objection to the foreigner and not only was everything denied to the American, but he was accused of being a corrupt lobbyist for asking anything.

The Democratic members of the Finance Committee were rambunctious and arrogant, and dictatorial and insulting when an American asked anything. But when an emissary of the Cobden Club made a request their suppliant bodies crouched abjectly at his feet.

A NEW PERIOD OF MUCKRAKING.

Now comes Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor (Gompers & Co.,) to assist Martin Mulhall in his attempt to bring into disrepute the National Association of Manufacturers.

Morrison has caused to be published a report to the federation in the fall of 1907, by Samuel Gompers, its president, but until now held secret, in which it is stated that Broughton Brandenburg (an exposed faker and a forger of published documents,) attempted, representing himself as an authorized agent of the National Association of Manufacturers, to persuade Gompers to sign a "confession" vaguely intimating departure from the path of rectitude, and to promise soon to resign from his position. In consideration of Gompers's compliance with these demands, Brandenburg promised him (says Gompers,) with equal vagueness, a financial reward from the organization for which he professed to act.

Nowhere in the report does it appear that Brandenburg proved that he was in fact an agent of the N.A.M. It is stated that he exhibited receipts for money alleged to have been paid to him as its agent, but if such moneys were so paid to him the receipts he gave for the payments would not be in his possession, but in that of the N.A.M.; but the man who forged the Cleveland letter (to which forgery he confessed,) could easily provide himself with other bogus papers—the alleged receipts, for instance.

No explanation is offered by either Morrison or Gompers as to why the report was not given to the public at the time when it was made by Gompers, nearly six years ago.

As Brandenburg is a convicted impostor, it may be believed that he was practicing imposition when he approached Gompers with a proposition purporting to come from the National Association of Manufacturers.

But we seem to have entered upon a new period of muckraking, in which there is free license to drag from hidden places all filth that may be used to befoul the reputation of men in public and semi-public life, regardless of their standing, and also regardless of the known bad character of those who haul the muck for the raking process. There is a wide gulf between the characters of Brandenburg and Gompers and those of the business men forming the National Association of Manufacturers, a gulf so wide that it cannot be bridged by either Brandenburg or Gompers.

"FREE AND EQUAL."

The assertion that all men were created free and equal, as it was incorporated in the Declaration of Independence, was a necessary protest against the system of caste and privilege that for so many generations had been the controlling influence in the old European forms of government. It was a rebellion of new men in a new country against calling anyone noble unless he really was noble, against "lording" an eldest son for an accident of birth, against addressing a fellow-sinner as "your grace" who often had less grace than the man in the street, against attributing the word "majesty" to anything smaller than an ocean wave or a mountain, since majesty is a trait of Divinity alone. It was a plea for giving everyone an honest chance in the world, with special privileges to none.

For of course, as a frigid fact, all men were not created free and equal; they never have been—they never will be. This is a dream as impossible as Nietzsche's theory of the "superman." This could only be accomplished by slaughtering nine-tenths of the human race; carried to its logical conclusion, there is only one actual superman and he must be identified with Divinity. So Nietzsche in attacking Christianity only demonstrated another fallacy in atheism.

It was not the intention of the Deity that men should be absolutely free in this world. Life is of necessity a condition of servitude. Nor was it the Omnipotent design that all men should be created equal. Else one child would not be born with the inspirations of a Shakespeare and another with the instincts of a wolf; one child would not be born with crippled limbs and defective eyesight, and another as an embryonic Hercules or an incipient William Tell; some would not be born with the forms and features of an Adonis or an Aphrodite and others with the skulls of anthropoids and the figures of satyrs. While we have freed ourselves from ancestor worship, we still have to suffer for ancestral defects.

As to being created free—for the first few years of his life every human being is dependent on his parents or the State, and for the last few years of his old age on the State again or the ministrations of his children. And for all the intervening years on his own efforts and efficiency. Dependence, not independence—servitude, not freedom—is the common lot of all created beings.

The most selfish egotist cannot be independent of his fellow-beings, the richest and most powerful cannot free himself from his obligations to society; the most irreligious cannot escape his duty to God. The stanchest champion of complete equality cannot, by taking thought, add one cubit to his stature. He can but straighten up his stooped shoulders. Because there is no equality, we must all bow down to a Superior Being; because there is no unfettered freedom, we must all seek the ties of love.

You may go away into the high mountains or the untrodden wilderness to escape your dependence on the laws of civilized people, but you are still a slave to hunger and thirst, to cold and fatigue. You but exchange the freedom of human obligations for that of the coyote and the tree squirrel. The price of anarchy is the most fearful debt a man or woman can contract, whether it be anarchy of the body, of the mind or of the soul.

You may seek an undraped happiness in some soft tropical island of the blue Pacific, and perish for the need of a lint bandage or an ounce of quinine. Since the world has to keep progressing, you can't get away from the needs of civilization. Since man used the first nail to build his roughest shelter and woman took the first stitch in her most primitive garment, a Garden of Eden liberty became impossible for the human race, and inequality inevitable.

During our short pilgrimage on earth we are free to work and love, to worship God, obey the law and keep faith with our neighbor; as soon as we neglect this freedom, which is a necessary bondage, we accept a bondage which is a necessitous freedom; we are slaves of the body instead of the soul. We would better accept the axiom that we are ever under bonds to our families, our friends, our country and our religion, and believe that the more honestly we accept the inequality and the servitude, the more fully we shall enjoy the complete freedom and equality only reached through the gateway of bodily dissolution, after this "corruptible has put on incorruption and this mortal has put on immortality."

UNCLE WALT.

The Poet Philosopher.

I want to tell the toilworn voter about my forty-horse-power motor, the smoothest thing in town; no sooner do I start my spieling than he shows sign of ugly feeling, and wears a gloomy frown. As soon as possible he'll shake me; thus all my former friends forsake me, and dodge me on the street; they all refuse to hear my braggin' about my gorgeous chug-chug wagon, the car that can't be beat. They'll stand and talk for hours together about the cheap old jim crow weather, or of the yield of peas; but when they hear my steps approaching, they know what topic I'll be broaching, and climb adjacent trees. They'll take four languages and spend 'em in thrashing out the referendum and things that have no sense; but rather than be cheered with stories about my auto and its glories they'll climb a barbed wire fence. I have the finest petrol buggy that ever yet, with music chuggy, along the road did whiz; and yet it gives me little pleasure, for when I'd tell of what a treasure the blamed thing really is, my friends disperse, my yarn's rejected; they act as though I were infected with leprosy or mumps; that's why you do not see me grinning my famous grin, so wide and winning; that's why I have the dumps.

WALT MASON.

NAILING A FALSEHOOD.

[Leslie's:] False! The testimony of a mill girl at Ipswich, Mass., that she had received about $2 a week, "never more, sometimes less," was printed all over the country and aroused strong feeling against the mills, which were charged with paying starvation wages. In the hearing, however, that followed the mill riot, an examination of the mill records showed that in January, February and March a weekly wage varying from $6.93 to $8.42 had been paid to this girl. Recalled to the stand to explain her earlier testimony the girl said that she had turned her wages over to her father and that he had told her she was earning $2 a week. Thus the falsehood of a father to his ignorant daughter, spread throughout the country, inflamed the public against employers and maligned the reputation of the mill owners of Ipswich and the good name of the town itself. Newspapers are taking a grave responsibility in spreading reports which carry strong improbability upon their very face.

An Optimist's Parent.

[Boston Transcript:] Goodfellow (with newspaper:) Here's an old bachelor in Ohio died and left all his money to the woman who rejected him.

Cynicus: And yet they say there is no gratitude in the world.

SHUT YOUR MOUTH!

DON'T HIDE YOUR FACE WITH IT.

No; I wasn't speaking to you, man. I don't know that it makes any particular difference in your personal appearance what shape your mouth puts on. It's rarely becoming to you, any how.

But I meant the girl posing before the newspaper camera. Maybe the fashions in photography have undergone a vital change since the introduction of the moving pictures. But as my memory runs back, as far as the fifties and as late as the 1900's, I can't recall so many open-mouthed portraits in all those years, as I have seen in the illustrated newspapers—which now include all dailies, during the ten—well, say five years past.

Wide Open Pictures.

But now? For several days I have carefully saved files of the daily papers which come to my den to tell—and to show—me what is going on in this idly busy world. I have spread out before me the newspaper portraits of thirty people, twenty of whom are girls and women. And of these twenty pictures of what might otherwise be rather attractive appearing maids and matrons, sixteen have their mouths open—wide open.

They are supposed by themselves, and presumably by the photographer—indeed, I think the mouths are stretched on his insistence—to be laughing. But in very few of the portraits is there much suggestion of mirth. The mouths are just open.

Right Things in Wrong Places.

Now, the merriest, happiest, prettiest laughter in the world, gleams with unpremeditated expression. The effort to "look happy" is frequently as fatal as the attempt to "be happy," which is really one of the best ways in the world to achieve misery.

I have no doubt that the tonsils are anatomically beautiful organs in their adaptation to their appointed functions. But they do not add charm to a handsome face when exposed in a "laughing" photograph. The palate has a useful duty to perform, but it goes as far beyond its own jurisdiction as an Attorney-General of the United States can do, when it obtrudes itself into the portrait of a fair young girl, even when she is disporting herself upon the summer beach, where concealment of anything seems to be considered a crime against humanity.

Questions That Are Wicked and Foolish.

Probably there have always been as many foolish questions in the world as there were men and women in the generation that asked them. The less a man thinks, the more liable he is to ask questions, foolishly believing that he does not thereby commit himself as he might if he made assertions. But the most dogmatic assertion in the world never exposes a man's ignorance more than a foolish question.

"Where Did You See Me Last Time?"

At some assemblage of the people, on a journey, at a great convention, or just some informal gathering such as that in which the fellow who made so much trouble for Job thrust himself among the delegates, you meet some one whom you used to know forty or fifty years ago. He hails you joyously, and having been informed by somebody else as to your identity calls you by name and demands:

"Do You Know Me?"

Now, you are not going to be outdone in good fellowship by the most effusive yap that ever called a friend by a detested nickname. You declare that you recognized him before you saw him, and you wish you had as many dollars as you know who he is.

Meanwhile you are putting your memory to the rack in the agonized effort to make it recall the name or face or voice of the dear old friend of your college days. Hence your cordial attestation.

Now that should satisfy any reasonable man. But this man is not amenable to reason. He does not believe you. He cross-examines you with that query of the imbecile—"Who am I?" as though he was announcing the title of a paper to be read before the Society for Investigating the Origin of the Human Race. He holds you that you may not escape, and demands, with the voice of a highwayman seeking predatory wealth:

"Where Did You See Me the Last Time?"

You wish to goodness it had been the last time. The truth is you don't know him from Adam, and he has caught you in a blatant, unblushing Mulhallism. For myself, I have but one refuge when I am thus detected. I say, and I mean it,

"I hope to die if I know!"

And he won't tell you, he who knows very well. He keeps you on the wheel of investigation until he has broken every bone in your evasive anatomy. He crowds you out of one corner only to squeeze you into another. Finally, when he is a-weary of torture, he tells you who he was, and is.

Then and Now.

Then you remember. He is at this time a big man with a loud, raucous voice, a defiant, threatening manner, a bald head and a thicket of red whiskers that cover his face, turning to a strawberry-roan with age. And "the time you saw him last" was in a public school, forty-five years ago, when he was a measly, freckled, little shrimp with a lisp in his squeak of a voice, and a shrinking, cringing manner, afraid of everything and everybody, and you had never once thought of him from that day to this. And he demands that you recognize him in detail.

When a man says with his mouth that he remembers you, although his puzzled face promptly gives the lie to the vocal assertion, give his mouth the benefit of the doubt. It will save you much trouble.

DUKE KAHANAMOKU BEATS LANGER IN CLOSE FINISH.

Wonderful Hawaiian Leads Redondo Boy by Six Feet in Rough Water Race and Cuts the Record by Nearly Three Minutes—Dollie Mings Wins Again and Breaks Her Record; Georgia Carmany Is Second.

DUKE P. KAHANAMOKU demonstrated yesterday at Ocean Park that he is by far the greatest swimmer that ever performed on the Pacific Coast.

Finishing the three-quarters of a mile course with a tremendous spurt which sent him across the line six feet in front of Ludy Langer and smashing the record for the course by nearly three minutes, the Duke showed that he is without a peer over any distance and in any kind of water.

It's an honor and no disgrace to be beaten by six feet in three-quarters of a mile, and Ludy Langer was the first to congratulate the wonderful Hawaiian on winning the race. It is a great thing to be a good winner, but it is greater to be a good loser, and that is exactly what Langer showed himself to be.

THE START.

The weather was none too good, as the sea was slightly choppy and the swells were fairly large. For this reason the Duke was considered to be rather at a disadvantage and Langer was the popular choice because of his experience over long distances and his great showing in the race last year.

Eleven contestants lined up for the start of the race, Langer and Kahanamoku next to each other. At the crack of the pistol they hit the water together and they were never more than six feet apart for the whole distance. Pete Lenz of Long Beach took the lead for a short time, but before the race was a minute old Kahanamoku and Langer had taken the spotlight and remained in it for 16 minutes and 32 seconds.

The Duke lit right out with his peculiar crawl stroke and never changed. He swam on the outside, toward the open ocean and his flashing brown arms formed a marked contrast to the gleaming white of Langer's. The two men had the race all to themselves by the time they had gone 200 yards, and they were easily and eagerly followed by the great crowd on the pier and the beach.

CLOSE AT THE TURN.

At the buoy marking the half-way point, they were close together and swung into the home stretch absolutely abreast, this time with the Duke on the shore side. They stuck together, neither seeming to be able to lose the other, until they came within 100 yards of the pier.

At this point Langer began to sprint and for a moment drew a few feet ahead of the wonderful Hawaiian. The crowd on the pier let out a tremendous cheer and seemed to see a victory over the Hawaiian at last, but their hopes were short-lived.

Hearing the crowd cheer for Langer seemed to rouse the Duke from his mechanical stroke and with a terrific burst of speed, which made him fairly skim over the water, he tore over the line a winner by six feet, and the crowd, true sports that they were, cheered even more loudly for the Duke than they had for Langer.

Two men nearly fell over one another in their efforts to get to the gangplank. They were Manager Rawlins of the Hui Nalu team, and Mr. Langer, father of Ludy. "Your boy swam a great race, he is a wonderful swimmer," said Rawlins. "He did the best he could," replied Langer, "and that's all that you can ask of anyone."

There was a rush to congratulate both swimmers and the spectators crowded around trying to shake their hands. The Duke was asked to pose for his picture with the cup which he won. "Where's Ludy?" he asked. When Langer came over the Duke put his mighty arm around the shoulder of his gritty opponent and insisted that they be taken together.

DOLLY MINGS WINS.

The ladies' race over a course of a little over a quarter of a mile was the first event on the programme. Dolly Mings again showed herself to be without a peer in the south over this distance and finished strongly in 9 minutes and 8 seconds, knocking 20 seconds from the record that she made last year.

Miss Georgia Carmany, the Santa Barbara High School girl who swam across the San Francisco Bay last week, was a very close second to the champion, taking second place only 44 seconds behind the winner. Mrs. Dorothy Gray of Ocean Park finished third and Miss Leona Richmond of Ocean Park fourth.

Little Ethel McCashion, only 7 years old, started bravely out in the race and made a game struggle, but the choppy water was too much for her and she finally had to give it up, while her mother, Mrs. McCashion, went on and finished in fifth place in the race. The little girl cried as though her heart would break when a big, brawny life guard lifted her into the lifeboat and she wasn't quieted until her mother finished the course.

The results:

Men's race, three-quarters of a mile: Duke Kahanamoku, Hui Nalu, Hawaii, won; Ludy Langer, Redondo, second; Pete Lenz, Long Beach, third; Vance Veith, Ocean Park, fourth; Tod Burns, Venice, fifth; Harvey Kilburn, Venice, sixth. Howard Taylor, L.A.A.C., Harold Harrell, L.A.A.C., and Jack Mohn, Ocean Park, also finished. Time, 16 minutes, 32 seconds. Langer's time, 16 minutes, 34 seconds.

Ladies' race, 500 yards: Dolly Mings, Redondo, won, time, 9m. 8s; Georgia Carmany, Bimini, second, 9m. 52s; Dorothy Gray, Ocean Park, third, 10m. 50s; Leona Richmond, Ocean Park, fourth, 12m. 15s.

GREAT RACING CARD ON AT PITTSBURGH TODAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PITTSBURGH, July 13.—The followers of light harness racing will gather this week at Brunots Island for the continuation of the Grand Circuit races. The contests will begin tomorrow and continue through five days. A majority of the best trotters and pacers in training are entered for the various stake events.

The contestants of former years, Ed Geers, Walter Cox, Tommy Murphy, Lon McDonald, are here with their strings, and each has a speeder that is being watched by the horsemen.

The feature race of the day is the Iron City 2:05 class pacing for a $3000 stake, in which the circuit's best side wheelers are entered. Tuesday one of the biggest stakes of the week will be the Fort Pitt, $3000 for pacers.

The Pennsylvania $5000, 2:10 trotting will be on Wednesday, while the same day the Keystone, $3000 for 3-year-old trotters is on the card. The professional drivers' stake, 2:15 trot, is the first race Thursday, while the Duquesne, 2:07 class trotting, another fast class, will be run on Tuesday.

MANY YACHTSMEN SPEND SUNDAY IN CRUISING.

BY E. D. SEWARD.

ALTHOUGH yesterday was an "open date" on the programme of the South Coast Yacht Club, there was plenty doing around the anchorage in the afternoon, several of the yachts being out with sailing parties, and two of the racing boats enjoying a friendly race.

Ably handled by "Spike" Denzell the yawl Idler went to sea with a large party aboard, while the Enchantress, under command of Dr. Eddie Eisen, took out quite a party. The Marie, Capt. R. N. Coulter, had a bunch of stags aboard and cruised off the end of the breakwater, while Fleet Captain J. K. Cuckow had a large party out in Otelia S.

Capt. A. L. Van Valin returned late yesterday afternoon from a short trip to Catalina Island in his auxiliary sloop Edna. The Trojan was not out yesterday, but her jovial skipper, Capt. Ellis W. Taylor, enjoyed himself aboard the Enchantress as a guest of Dr. Eisen. Commodore C. E. W. Hubbell enjoyed a needed rest, his racing yacht Mischief I being on the ways for a general overhauling preparatory to the cruise to San Diego Saturday.

A busy bunch were aboard the Alert, all hands from Capt. Logan down being engaged in overhauling and setting the boat to rights, as the boys will have little time this week to get the boat in shape for the Saturday race to San Diego.

FRIENDLY RACE.

Two of the racing boats were out yesterday afternoon, the Columbine, recently acquired by Capt. A. G. Sepulveda, and Ted Hyans's Mischief II, sailed by Capt. Charles R. Brace. Charley Fulton, the builder of the old racing machine, the Columbine, was aboard and handled the stick in a tryout with Mischief II.

With a light southerly wind the two boats raced from the end of the breakwater to Point Firmin whistling buoy and return, a distance of four nautical miles, the Columbine winning by ten minutes. As Fulton would only give the smaller boat 2 minutes and 26 seconds in this distance, he figured that the Columbine was still to be counted upon in future racing events.

Capt. Sepulveda was well pleased with the performance of his latest acquisition and also with the work of his new crew which he is mustering for the San Diego races. The feeling around the clubhouse is that with Mischief II and the Columbine both at San Diego some of the tempting cups can be lifted. Sepulveda is particularly anxious to bring back The Los Angeles Times cup, although he is not adverse to annexing some of the others.

FUN ON IDLER.

Passing launches out yesterday afternoon might have thought that a moving picture outfit had possession of the dignified yawl Idler or perhaps some landlubber might have figured that a serious mutiny had arisen aboard. But no such dreadful thing happened; the bunch aboard were simply having a rough house and a good time.

The fun started when some one of the gentlemen crew purloined a rubber-tired foot covering from one of the ladies and hoisted it aloft. Another one of the fair sex lost a slipper, which mysteriously disappeared. And then the fun began.

The offending sailor lad was securely lashed to the shrouds with "stops" and halyards and a sound beating given him. When he was released, he found revenge in stealing more yachting shoes and most everybody joined in the melee, which, while strenuous, was good-natured. Fortunately no one went overboard into the drink and Capt. "Spike" brought his good ship safely into port without serious mishap.

Those in the party beside the jovial skipper were: Port Captain F. H. Percival, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Mellen, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Seward, Mrs. Albert Killian, Miss Agnes Oswald, Miss Frances Zarell, Miss L. Zarell, Mrs. Verne A. Goodrich, Charles M. Richardson and George Terry.

RACERS ON WAYS.

Both the Columbine and Mischief II will go on the ways this week for cleaning and painting and a thorough overhauling and will come off, spick and span for the Saturday race to San Diego.

WOULD SWIM TO CATALINA.

Frank Rogers, a professional swimmer from Pittsburgh, is in town and is desirous of starting something in the way of a swim to Catalina. He would like to get Frank Holborow, George Freeth and the other well-known professionals to put up a $25 forfeit, the winner of the race to take the whole amount.

The truth of the matter is that Rogers wants to swim to Catalina, whether anybody else goes along or not, but he would prefer to have some competition. Rogers is very well known in the East as a long distance man and thinks that he can make the swim.

He holds the record for nine hours and thirty-six minutes continuous swimming in fresh water, made in Pennsylvania and also has made several swims of more than twenty-five miles. He recently swam from Benecia, Cal., to South Alameda, a distance of thirty-seven miles in San Francisco Bay, and he thinks that if he can do this, he can make the swim to Catalina easily.

OAKLAND GETS CLEAN SWEEP.

Wins Two Sunday Games from Quivering Angels.

Victory in Afternoon Comes in Thirteenth.

Ables Shows His Class in the Morning Battle.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

The next time Frank Leavitt decides to inject a little fight and vinegar into his ball team, the people of Los Angeles would be much obliged if he did not choose this city for the purpose.

When the Oaks arrived in these parts they looked like tapioca with seedless raisins. They dropped the first two to the Angels, and it began to look like a fat week. Prexy Leavitt then rushed south and told his men to play ball or get off the pay roll. They have been playing ball ever since. Ask Henry Berry if this isn't the truth?

These two games were all the nourishment that Los Angeles was able to hook out of the seething series.

Twice yesterday, our fair city was forced to acknowledge the baseball superiority of the lichen-covered hamlet of the North.

Oakland won the morning wrangle, 1 to 0, for their second consecutive shut-out, and the afternoon game, a thirteen-inning battle between Roy Crabb and Bill Malarkey, 2 to 1.

Incidentally, Los Angeles has scored just one run in the last thirty-six innings.

PITCHERS' BATTLE.

Crabb and Malarkey were both wound up in great shape, and every one of the thirteen innings was largely a personal affair between them.

Malarkey topped off his masterful work on the mound by tripling in the thirteenth, and delivered the winning run when Schirm smashed the ball to the right-field bleachers for three bases.

The mantle of victory should have rested on Crabb's shoulders. He deserved in win, 1 to 0, in nine innings, the tally with which Oakland tied the score in the fifth being a gift from Howard, who muffed Leard's fly, allowing Rohrer to score from second. The clubs then battled collar-to-collar until the big bust-up in the thirteenth.

TWO HITS VALUELESS.

Two hits in the first inning, failed to get Oakland anything. Leard scratched out an infield hit, and was shot down by the unerring Boles while stealing. Hetling was an infield out, and Schirm smote to left for two sacks. Coy was unable to get the ball out of the infield. Zacher singled in the second, and was nipped at first by Crabb.

The first two innings were also sterile for Los Angeles, only six men facing Malarkey. In the third they fashioned the run that should have given them the game.

Johnson blazed resolutely to center for the first hit off Malarkey. A sacrifice by Boles and Crabb's out shoved Ernie around to third. Howard sent him home with a tidy single to center. Ivan was flagged stealing.

After that, Johnson, who singled in the center, and Howard who repeated in the ninth, were the only Angels to solve Malarkey. Both of these were infield hits; drives which slower men could not have hoped to beat out.

Zacher tripled to the right-hand corner of the lot in the fourth. Crabb quickly tightened up and Emil made no further progress.

Oakland wrenched the first groan from the crowd in the fifth. Guest opened mildly with a demure fly to Howard. Rohrer hit sharply to center. Malarkey dumped a bunt in front of the plate, and Boles pegged him out by a stride, Rohrer running to second. Leard lifted a fly into short center. It looked soft for either Maggert or Howard.

DROPS EASY ONE.

Maggert came in, then stopped short when Howard informed all those present that he had it. What Ivan should have said was that he had it to get.

It was a play that Howard wouldn't miss once in a thousand times. Pathetic to relate, this happened to be the thousandth time. The ball slipped from his hands like it was greased, and rolled away imp-like. Rohrer, already rounding third, scored in a romp. Leard tried to take second on the error, and was chased into a state of exhaustion on the line.

No Gordian knot was ever harder to untie than this little one-to-one combination.

After that, Crabb allowed but one hit until the fateful thirteenth, and but two visiting geezers reached second.

FIELDING TOO GOOD.

Los Angeles made a great bid in the ninth, and it looked like they would be able to hold the game within regulation bounds. But they found the Oakland defense impregnable, and were sent back to the field runless, after filling up the bases.

Howard led off with a sharp drive toward left. Hetling lunged over and shoveled the ball with his glove. He was pulled off his balance, and could not recover in time to get his man at first. Metzger swung at three wide ones while trying to advance Howard to second on a hit-and-run, Malarkey scenting out the play each time.

MAG IS WALKED.

This brought the dangerous Maggert to the plate. Oakland held a council of war in the center of the diamond, and it was agreed that Maggert should be walked. Harl stole second, Rohrer not daring to

SAMMY HARRIS GIVES VIEWS.

Didn't See Kid Williams Get Knocked Down.

Says that Le Doux Is Tough Customer.

Williams's Sparring Partners "Banged Up."

Sammy Harris, manager of Kid Williams, who is to fight Charley LeDoux tomorrow night, finally became communicative yesterday about the ten-round battle between the two little bantams last year.

"They say," said Sammy, with a funny little smile, "that LeDoux knocked the Kid down three times. I dunno about that, though. I was in his corner during the fight but I guess I must have been looking the other way, 'cause I never saw anything like that.

"You can bet your life," went on Sammy, "that by the time LeDoux gets through with this scrap he will know that he has been in a fight. The Kid is out to show the fans that he is absolutely in a class by himself among the bantamweights and LeDoux is the first victim.

"Of course we would rather have met Campi than LeDoux, but it really don't make any difference to us. The Kid ain't afraid of any of them. He hasn't ever been hurt by anybody so far and he doesn't fear any living bantam."

SOMEWHAT RESPECTFUL.

Harris probably would have continued indefinitely singing the praises of his fighter but he was cut short by somebody asking whether he thought LeDoux or Campi was the more dangerous as a fighter. Harris, while rather skeptical as to LeDoux's ability to lick Williams, opined that anybody with a kick like that of LeDoux is always more dangerous than a butterfly scrapper of the Campi type.

Williams was rather short of sparring partners yesterday and was forced to content himself with four rounds of boxing, two each with Harry Atwood and Kid Snyder. His other erstwhile sparring-mates evidently valued their facial lineaments above the filthy lucre and refused to enter the ring and take their daily beating.

Manager Harris says that while it is a pleasure to see several young men who are above such sordid things as wealth, it is a bum joke for them to run out and leave him without anybody to spar with the Kid. One young gentleman with a swelled up ear, a painted eye and a nose that was loose, remarked that from the way the Kid had been hitting him, LeDoux would jump out of the ring before he had gone twelve rounds.

Williams's workout was impressive, if short. His boxing was snappy and he hit like a mule. He did four rounds of bag-punching, three of rope-skipping and two of shadow-boxing and his whole workout was full of life and vim. He is almost down to weight now and while he refuses to say exactly what he hopes to do to LeDoux, he gave the impression that it would take the Frenchman's relatives a long time to recognize him by the time the fight is over.

SWORDFISH AND WHALE FIGHT.

[Special Correspondence of The Times.]

AVALON, July 13.—A report brought in yesterday that a ferocious whale and swordfish battle waged two miles off Avalon, caused P. V. Reyes, a local photographer to start after the two antagonists armed with his camera. Reyes used the launch Manana.

"Fifty feet from the monsters we were drenched with spray," said Reyes relating his thrilling experience. "The water was covered with blood each time the swordfish charged and withdrew its rapier.

"Vigorously the leviathan tried to rid himself of his antagonist by thrashing his ponderous tail and ofttimes leaping up out of the water, but the swordfish proved too much for him and he finally sank amid a gurgling sea of white foam.

"The whale was of the grey back variety and was fully seventy feet in length. Towards the end of the fray we dared not approach too near, fearing that the monsters might mistake our craft and send us to the bottom."

INDIANA AUTOS HAVE FINE TRIP.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

HOT SULPHUR SPRINGS (Colo.) July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] After climbing more than 11,000 feet on the east side of the Rockies, the Indiana tourists began the descent late in the afternoon and were about two and one-half hours late in reaching the night control. The ascent proved troublesome for every car and a number of stops had to be made.

Often the passengers would get out and push or block the wheels with rocks until the engine had picked up speed enough to carry it over the steep grades. The cause of the trouble lay in the fact that the rarity of the air caused poor carburation. Some of the powerful cars, geared low, managed to make the ascent without a necessary stop.

Just over the divide a number of the party found a big snow bank and a snow-ball battle was in progress for some time.

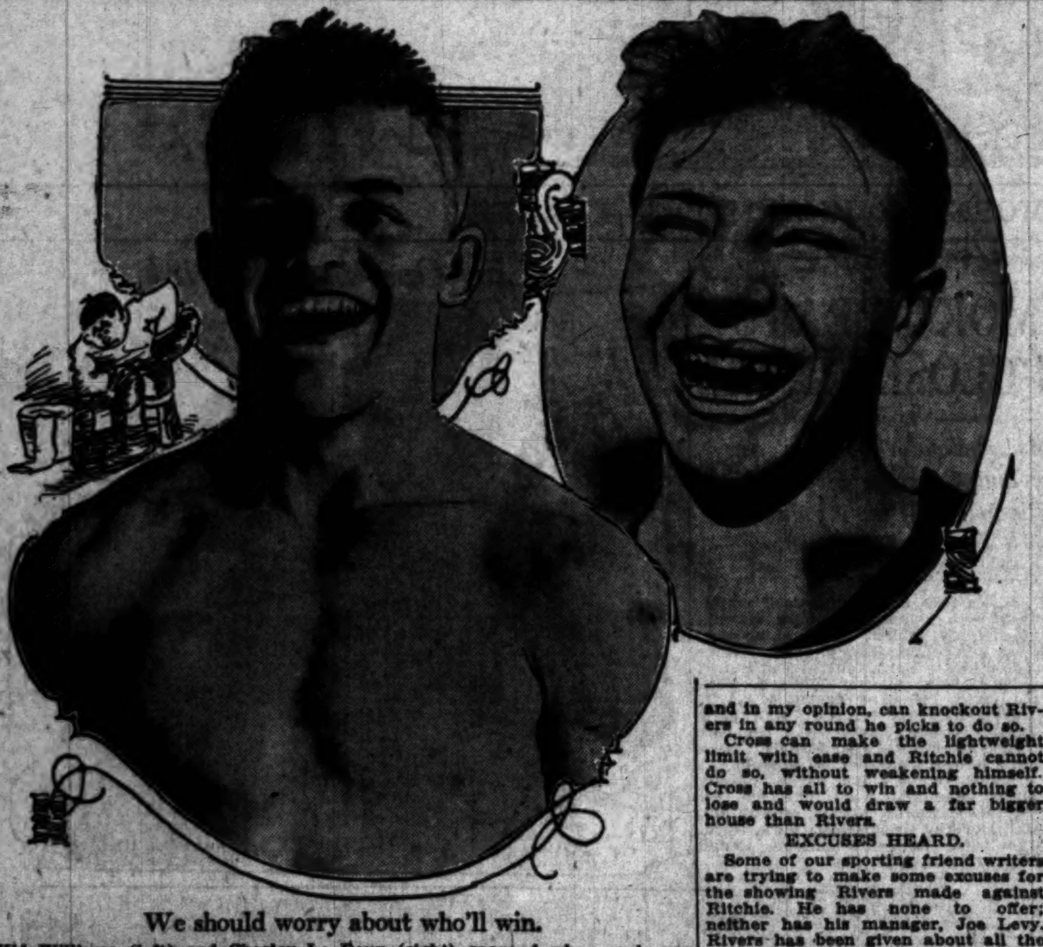
BIG ONES TO MEET.

NEW YORK, July 13.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] "Gunboat" Smith of California and Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, have been matched to fight ten rounds at Madison Square Garden, this city, August 8.



We should worry about who'll win.

Kid Williams (left) and Charley Le Doux (right) snapped when each was asked who would be the victor in their battle tomorrow night.

LE DOUX HAS GREAT CHANCE TO WIN BATTLE.

BY DE WITT VAN COURT.

CHARLIE LE DOUX, the little French boy who is matched to meet Kid Williams, Tuesday night, drew a crowded house to his final workout yesterday afternoon at Jack Doyle's training camp. There was a large delegation of the French colony on hand to boost for the little fellow and he was in high spirits.

He is one of the few that likes to train and box for a contest. He said: "Boxing for a contest is a pleasure for me, and the real contest is better than anything that I like in my life. I have no feelings against Kid Williams, but when we meet in the ring I will try my best to knock him out, and I sincerely think I will do so."

"I can meet him on the street and have no feelings against him whatever and we can be friends, but when we meet in that ring, I do not know him, and the crowd or anyone else will not have the slightest effect on me. I think I will win and that is about all I can say."

HAS GREAT CHANCE.

Judging from his workout yesterday, he has a great chance to make good. After his usual gymnasium work with the pulleys and the punching bag, he boxed two rounds with Texas Kid, one round with Harold Brown, three with Johnny Afrousay and one with the irrepressible kid, Johnny Schiff.

Each of these boys was a lot heavier than the little French boy, but the best workout was with Schiff. Johnny laid off Saturday afternoon to be in good condition for yesterday's workout, and he let himself out on Le Doux, but what that little French boy did to that grand stand player was a caution. They wore eleven-ounce gloves and he would have stopped the irrepressible one if Frank Galvin, his manager, had not called a halt on Charlie.

TAKES NO CHANCES.

It was so fierce and fast that Frank decided that he would not allow Le Doux to take any more chances of hurting himself and made him quit until he enters the ring tomorrow night.

Le Doux is in better shape than he has ever been in his life and if he loses, will have no complaint to make.

The little French boy surely has a hard punch, and is liable to win by a knock-out at any time.

His French friends are backing him to the limit at the odds of two to one. They have raised $2500 to bet on him and have all the confidence in his ability to win.

Charlie was very much pleased to receive a long letter from his old friend and opponent, Georges Carpentier, yesterday.

Carpentier has bet a lot of money on his chances to win and also says he will visit America this coming fall and look over the boxing game here.

Le Doux knocked Georges out cold when that great French heavyweight was a bantam, but they are still the best of friends.

The French colony of Los Angeles is with Le Doux to a man, and are all pulling and boosting for him hard.

O'LEARY READY.

Johnny O'Leary, the little Portland featherweight, who is under the management of the old-timer, Frank Purcell, was introduced to the crowd and was well received. He will probably be matched with Jack White, the Chicago featherweight, the latter part of this month or next. O'Leary comes with a good record, having a four-round decision over White in San Francisco, Solly Salvator and a number of high-class featherweights in the North.

Purcell is willing to match O'Leary against any featherweight in the country. Frank is an old-time fighter of the old school and is a good judge of a boxer, and in his day was one of the hardest hitters that ever entered a ring.

Georges Carpentier, the French heavyweight champion, who recently defeated Bombadier Wells by a knock-out, has a six weeks' engagement in London in the music halls, at $2000 per week. Immediately after this engagement he will sail for America.

Sam Wallach, manager and brother of the great Hebrew fighter, Leach Cross, is hot on the trail of Willie Ritchie, for a match for the championship.

Sam is in hopes that the fight will be staged here in Los Angeles, where Leach made such a decided hit in his bout with Bud Anderson.

Leach can come nearer winning the championship by meeting Willie Ritchie than he ever can by meeting Joe Rivers.

He fought Rivers twice and the first time, put Joe down for the count in the second round. The second time they met, he put Joe on the shelf for further keeping. This boy Cross is a second Abe Attell for that stuff and in my opinion, can knockout Rivers in any round he picks to do so.

Cross can make the lightweight limit with ease and Ritchie cannot do so, without weakening himself. Cross has all to win and nothing to lose and would draw a far bigger house than Rivers.

EXCUSES HEARD.

Some of our sporting friend writers are trying to make some excuses for the showing Rivers made against Ritchie. He has none to offer; neither has his manager, Joe Levy. Rivers has been given about all the chance that any fighter is entitled to, and he failed to make good on three occasions.

We may roast our long-haired friends for knocking the fight game, but the real knockers of the game are the men who insist on matching quitters and fighters who do not attend strictly to their training.

Joe Rivers has been a great money-maker for Joe Levy and the Pacific A. C., and it is hard for both of these to give him up. The public is easy to overlook mistakes of this kind, especially when there is no opposition.

If the fighting fans of Los Angeles stand for any more of this bunk, they deserve to be buncoed and have the fight game stopped.

We have plenty of honest fighters ready to fight on the square, be honest with themselves and the fans, and who will not quit.

SLIPPING SEALS DROP TWO GAMES TO WOLVES.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] San Francisco violated precedent today. Ordinarily, the locals are good for at least one of the Sunday double-headers, but the voracious Wolves gathered in the morning game by a 7 to 3 score and turned right around in the afternoon to trounce the Seals 3 to 1.

In the morning the Wolves started the merry-go-round in the first. The first three men up got infield hits, but Young was put out at home when Fanning nabbed Van Buren's bunt. Kenworthy flew out to Mundorff and on the throw-in both Lewis and Moran tallied. The Seals cut down this lead to one in their half of this inning.

In the second Fanning retired the entire side via the strike-out route and the Seals tied the score.

WOLVES KEEP ON.

Sacramento grabbed two more in the third. Young got a hit to left and went to second on Lewis's infield fly. Moran advanced the pair on his sacrifice and the "Deacon" was there with a hit which brought Young in. Kenworthy sent a screamer over Corhan's head, which shoved Lewis across the pan for the second tally.

Not satisfied with this, Sacramento came right back in the fourth and annexed a couple more. With two down Young drew a walk and Lewis followed with a hit past short. Moran sent a long fly to right, which Mundy booted around long enough for both of the runners to score. Moran was standing between first and second and the "Rabbit" started in with the ball. He threw to second to catch Moran, but the play was fumbled and Moran lit out for third. He and Corhan had a merry sprint toward third, Roy barely winning out for the bag and taking the throw just in time.

STILL GOING.

The Seals took two more runs just for good measure, in the fifth. This ended the scoring till the ninth, when the Wolves added another. Tennant hit to right, later scoring on McCorry's error, Kinsella's out and Young's hit through short.

The afternoon session couldn't exactly be called a sensational affair. The hitting was clean cut and the fielding of good variety, but there wasn't anything of a spectacular nature and once the Wolves came to the front in the seventh inning, they held that position right up to the close.

Both pitchers were working in good shape at the outset and with the break of the luck favoring the San Franciscans, the situation looked good for them.

HOGAN LUCKY.

Hogan did the only tallying for the unfortunates and it all happened in the fourth. He lined to left, stole second, took third on the throw-in of Corhan's long fly to center field and registered his run on a two-sacker by Downs.

Sacramento didn't even it up until the sixth. Van Buren plunked the ball to center. Kenworthy switched the cut with a single to right field. Hallinan forced Kenworthy at second, when he hit to Charles, but Downs, who took the throw and tried to double the boys out, heaved wild to first and Van Buren came home.

MORE DUMBNESS.

The Wolves jumped to the front in the eighth. Bliss laid down a bunt in front of the plate and beat it out. Klawitter sacrificed and Young hit to short safely. Lewis hit the ball toward McArdle and Bliss, slow in getting away from third, started for the plate. McArdle threw to Clarke, who missed the runner, and Lewis had his Cincinnati hit. Then Moran hit into a double to retire the side.

A walk for Van Buren caused the last of the Sacramento runs. Following that free pass, Kenworthy fooled Downs at short, by hitting in his direction with Downs running to cover the bag. Hallinan forced Kenworthy, but Tennant's double to the right field fence scored Van Buren. Scores:

PUG HOLLAND IN VERY HARD LUCK.

TAFT (Cal.) July 13.—Fritz Holland, who was matched for a twenty-round bout with Antone La Grave here next Thursday night, broke his left arm today while sparring with Rolly McKeon before a big crowd. The left femur, which was fractured several weeks ago, broke again at the same place.

An effort is being made to sign Johnny McCarthy in Holland's place.

West Wins Fifth Straight Game from Venice.

McCredie's Men Shut Out in Matinee Affair.

Patterson Shows His Class With Four Swats.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

PORTLAND, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Portland split a double-header with Venice today and dropped back to third place. The series ended four games for Portland and two for Venice.

Portland won the first game 2 to 0 because West outpitched Klepfer and Hitt again, in a brilliant twirling duel. This same trio hooked up last Tuesday and West won then, 2 to 1, in a ten-inning game, giving him five consecutive victories over Hogan.

In the second game, Bill James made his first appearance of the week, and not only was he spanked freely, but his support was at once fearsome to behold. Koestner deserved to win about 1 to 0, but the ultimate tally, after Speas and Kores and finished their juggling, was 6 to 0.

Lindsay made his reappearance at third in the curtain raiser and the boys behaved beautifully. But when Bill had to retire in the second game, shoving Speas to third and Higginbotham to first, the team exploded.

THIRTEEN SWATS.

Thirteen hits the Venetians took off Bill James and his injured finger against eight off Koestner, Bayless starring with three safe blows for Hogan. While most of the Venice run total was handed over on platters by the Portland infield, James had remarkable battery support from Gus Fisher, who mowed down the Venetians and saved several additional tallies which might have resulted in subsequent bingles.

WEST IN FORM.

The feature of the afternoon, from the viewpoint of 5500 bargain-hunting fans, was the brilliant box endeavoring of West in the curtain raiser. Two of the Venetians' five safties were doubles, but every time the visitors showed their teeth West tightened up. In the seventh, with the score 1 to 0, Patterson doubled and stole third, but West fanned all three men, Hogan, a pinch hitter, McDonnell, and Carlisle. West whiffed nine men, all told, and walked four.

CHADBOURNE SPEEDY.

Chadbourne's speed really gave Portland the victory. After a single in the third inning, Chadbourne sped all the way home on a two-base drive up against the right wall, despite the efforts of the coacher at third to make him pull up there.

In the seventh, Kores singled, stole second, went to third when Hosp let Hogan's throw elude him, and scored when Litschi dropped a throw from Hogan at third base.

Carlisle and Hosp maneuvered circus catches for Venice and Patterson signalized his return to first base by securing four hits in seven trips. Venice departed for home tonight.

COAST LEAGUE RACE IS BEST IN MANY YEARS.

But Six Games Now Divide Leading Angels and the Tail-End Venice Team—No Club Has Shown It Is a Consistent Winner—Portland Has Best Bunch of Real Fingers.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS.

THE half-way mark in the Coast League race of 1913 was passed yesterday.

As far as results are concerned, the race was about where it was on April 1 when the clubs, impatiently pawing the turf at the barrier, responded to the crack of the get-away gun.

As they round into the back stretch, the entire six clubs could be blanketed with a postage stamp.

It would have taken a brave man to attempt to pick the winner in April.

Who, unless possessed of exceptional courage, would stake the household junk on any team to cop the bun with the "dope" on the first half at his disposal?

In other words, the race is so hectic and the teams apparently so evenly matched, that they are about where they were at the start.

TIGERS HAVE HOPES.

Los Angeles, the leaders, are but six games ahead of Venice, the cellar champions.

Should the Tigers take six straight from the Angels this week, the clubs would be tied at the .500 mark.

In short, in the short space of six days the percentage table could be turned topsy-turvy.

Can you imagine anything more desirable from a baseball standpoint. With three and a half months yet to go it is anybody's race. No team has demonstrated its superiority in a manner to make it a sure thing for anybody.

As a rule, a pennant-winning team so decisively outclasses all rivals that the result can be forcast with a fair degree of certainty at the half-way mark.

The first and second division teams usually are pretty well established in their respective positions after three and a half months' of play.

NO SURE LEADER.

It is different in the Coast League this season. No club overshadows its rivals or transcends it in some certain department of the game. Los Angeles has set the pace and has done it through good, hard consistent work. Its performances have stamped it as a well-balanced club. But there has been no chronic trailing. In fact, to jump from the second to the first division, is a feat that has been accomplished between sunrise and sunset on a number of occasions.

Pennants have been won by great hitting. Others have been achieved by great pitching staffs. Still others have been captured by great outfields, as in the case of Detroit, when the outstanding outer gardeners gave the club three successive pennants with only a mediocre pitching staff.

Again, it may be the machine-like precision of the perfectly balanced infield that carries the club to victory.

Thus far, no club in the Coast League can be said to have clearly outclassed all rivals in any one department of the game. Portland is the only possible exception. The Beaver pitching staff is generally regarded as the stiffest in the league, and this is likely to play an important part in the remainder of the race.

With the clubs so closely bunched, the crippling of a star or two is likely to play havoc with any club. Again, a winning streak of a couple of weeks is likely to put any one of the six clubs comfortably in front.

There is no soft picking. Last season San Francisco, Portland and Sacramento were soft spots. No one will charge them with being anything like that this year. Every series figures to be a hard fight from Tuesday to Sunday afternoon.

Los Angeles, despite a surprising number of reverses, retains its hold on first place, although it has lost the last series.

The Angels have been in a slump. No doubt about it. Also, they have run into a lot of tough games through failing to get the break of the luck. There is no question of their gameness. They have fought for every game and a Los Angeles club never [illegible] before.

The Angels have speed, hitting and all the fielding that any club needs. Two or three pitchers have done most of the heavy work. Give the club another high-class pitcher and it will give the other five clubs a dandy run for their money.

The Tigers, but a half dozen games behind the leaders, are still factors. Handicapped by a bad start and a long string of injuries, they have been something of a disappointment. They have yet to play their strongest game in the second half of the season. If President [illegible] can land another good pitcher the Tigers are sure to cause a lot of trouble to those who are now looking down on them, for they are great stretch runners.

San Francisco, strengthened more than any other club in the league since spring, collapsed this week and slipped from second to fourth place. Sacramento literally "steamrollered" the Seals, taking six of the seven games. It is a question whether the San Francisco pitching staff is strong enough to hold it in the first division, should it regain a place there.

Portland and Sacramento are showing greater latent strength than any of their rivals. The Beavers have figured strong on paper from the start. Their great pitching staff, it was figured from the first, would land them well up.

WOLVES SURPRISE.

The irresistible upward rush of the Sacramento Wolves is one of the sensations of the season. The Wolves have won their last five series, and in so doing have taken twenty-two games out of thirty-four. As I stated early in the season, the Sacramento club, being composed almost wholly of new material, figured to improve as the season advanced. It took the Wolves just twenty-four hours to jump from fourth to second place, and that sure is some leaping. Los Angeles now leads them by the mere margin of two and a half games.

Oakland, basicly strong, but never really outclassing all rivals either last season or this, has taken a brace and will put up a stiffer fight from now on. They were handicapped by the loss of Mitze and Ables for the first three months, but they have not shown an intense amount of interest in their work. The epidemic of sore arms and "charley horse" vanised amazingly when President Leavitt read the riot act to the club a few days ago.

Flip a coin and pick the winner.

BOWLING TOURNEY RESULTS.

Prizes in the all-day amateur tournament at Stinson alleys yesterday were captured in the doubles by Shinn and Eldridge, first, with 956; Willis and Kranz, second, 903; Wistley and George, third, 869. In the singles, George took first with 552; Earl, second, with 506, and Kranz third, with 480.

PHIL DROPS OUT.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 13.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] "Shuffling" Phil Douglass, the spitball artist from the Western League, who was turned over to the San Francisco club by the Chicago Americans, has been transferred to Spokane and will join the Northwestern League at once.

Turk and Greek in Cyprus.

[Dundee Advertiser.] Keeping the peace between the Greeks and Turks in Cyprus is a task which calls forth a high degree of diplomacy and integrity. Witness the difficult position of a police official in Famagusta, who was waited upon by a body of Greeks, asking if they might have a procession the following Tuesday: "Why do you wish a procession?" he asked. "To commemorate the ever-distressful taking of Constantinople by the infidel Turks," was the mournful reply. Half an hour later a Turkish deputation called upon the same official. Had they permission of his excellency to fire the cannons the following Tuesday? "Why do you wish to fire the cannons?" he asked. "To celebrate the ever-glorious taking of Constantinople by the true believers of the prophet," they replied. After some consideration he gave the required permission to both parties, on their solemn assurance that there would be no infringement of law and order, and it says much for the prestige of the British government that no heads were broken when the rival celebrations took place in due course.

Napoleon's St. Helena Home.

[Indianapolis News:] In the French budget of this year, the appropriation is still voted for the upkeep of the house and "tomb" of Napoleon at St. Helena — 6000 francs salary for the guardian and 3000 francs expenses. The property was bought by Napoleon III, in 1858 for 178,565 francs, ($35,-700.) Before that time the dirt in the corpseless grave had been constantly renewed, to be sold to travelers who landed at the island. There are still one thousand visitors' names registered each year, for the most part English and Americans. It is something of a puzzle for the French government to know what to do with the house, which is in a very dilapidated condition.

SCOTTY MONTEITH GOING HOME SORE.

Scotty Monteith is going home. He's disgusted with everything in general and the fight game on the Pacific Coast in particular. He returned from San Francisco last night with his mind made up to leave for the East Wednesday or Thursday.

"Johnny Dundee can make twice as much money in the ten-round fight game in New York as he can here," said Scotty last night. "Here is a boy with 114 fights and never a decision against him and yet they want to match him with Jack White and fellows of that kind who have not near as good a record."

"Why don't they match him with Cross?" said Monteith. "We're willing to take Cross on for twenty rounds, or anybody else for that matter, providing that our opponent is a fighter of class. Johnny has given up the featherweight class for good and will fight nothing but lightweights hereafter."

Monteith says that from what he saw and heard in San Francisco, Jimmy Coffroth will have Willie Ritchie and Tommy Murphy matched up for a Labor Day scrap for the lightweight championship within a very short time. He says that everybody up north favors Murphy above Leach Cross.

Great Race.

GIANTS STILL HOLDING LEAD.

M'GRAW'S MEN CONTINUE THEIR WINNING STREAK.

Pittsburgh Pirates at Last Beginning to Look Dangerous—Poor Pitching Puts Brooklyn Back in Second Division and Boston Braves Are Not Far Behind Them.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Giants hold the center of the baseball stage, continuing the winning streak that has put them far out in front in the National League race, but as another week opens they face the possibility of serious rivalry from an old-time foe, the Pittsburghs.

Before the season opened the Pirates on form looked to be a team whose pennant chances were bright, but largely through ineffective box work they lagged far behind until July 4 found them in fifth position and several games short of the .500 mark. The past few days have seen a decided change. Yesterday marked their eighth straight victory. They did not lose a game during the week and are playing ball of high order, with their pitchers now apparently back in form.

The staff had been classed on paper as about the best in the league before the season opened. The team is batting well, as is attested by the seventy-four hits made during the week, while the fielding has been well looked after. Today the Pirates are but two games behind the Cubs and five and a half to the rear of the Quakers.

NEW YORK SHINES.

New York worked their string of successive victories up to fourteen during the week and then fell before Chicago, which club otherwise fared poorly until striking easier going in Brooklyn.

The week's figures make sorry reading for friends of the Philadelphia Nationals, for the club dropped all but two games in seven.

The case is far worse for Brooklyn, which lost its tenth straight game yesterday and is now back in the second division. Poor pitching has been the Superbas' main trouble. Boston is not so far behind Brooklyn now, the Braves winning five out of eight games last week. St. Louis suffered most at Boston's hands.

Cincinnati fought an even break on eight games, finding Brooklyn in the dumps and taking four straight.

The week in the American League was tame compared with the stirring happenings in the older organization. Cleveland got some satisfaction by keeping pace with the Athletics, each winning four out of six games. Washington and Chicago both fell off and Boston broke only a little better than even. St. Louis was the only team to hold its own with the leaders in games won and lost, the New Yorks splitting their wins and losses evenly while Detroit kept up its weak work by losing five of seven games.

EASY FOR RUSSELL.

NEW ORLEANS, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Frankie Russell, the southern bear cat, completely outclassed Johnny Lore of New York in their proposed twenty-round fight at the West Side Athletic Club Sunday afternoon and after knocking Lore down four times for the count, knocked him completely out of the ring in the eleventh round. Russell made a great showing.

TIGERS COME TO LIFE AND BEAT CHAMPS TWICE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

DETROIT, July 13.—By scores of 7 to 1 and 5 to 4, Detroit took both games of today's double-header from Philadelphia. Dauss was in fine form in the first, allowing but five hits. Detroit did not hit Houck with any frequency until the eighth, but made the most of its drives. Dauss helped considerably in the scoring of his team by a double and a single.

The second game was hard fought. The Athletics established an early lead, Detroit doing little with Bush until the sixth, when the score was tied. The winning run was made in the seventh off Bender. Scores:

Real Philosophy.

TWO DRAMAS BY ARMSTRONG.

Burbank Company Presents "The Escape."

Morosco Theater Stages "Jimmy Valentine."

Great Truths Are Splendidly Interpreted.

BY HECTOR ALLIOT.

If New York receives "The Escape" with the same enthusiasm that greeted its reappearance at the Burbank yesterday the drama will have the long metropolitan run it deserves.

With genuine sincerity of purpose, Paul Armstrong has created in "The Escape" a composite picture of tenement conditions and their logical sequence.

Between tenement existence and the underworld there is a relation of cause and effect.

Without mincing matters and yet without exaggeration, a type of the tenement dweller's existence is painted in all its reality.

Jim Joyce, the stevedore, and Jerry McGee organize a strike, not to satisfy more or less just claims, but to secure $5000 through the paralysis to industry, created by the stevedores, backed by Jerry, the boss of the teamsters.

The animal mating of the slums and the progeny of the dark alleys of the metropolis are shown and speak volumes for eugenics.

May Joyce makes her escape from that inferno and becomes the mistress of a Senator, by chance. Through education and experience, the woman learns what love and duty are and her soul is saved.

Throughout the play intensely true episodes appear, only too true for those whom work or curiosity have made them acquainted with tenement life as it is in every great metropolis.

"The Escape" was presented yesterday by a strong cast.

Miss Catherine Calvert, whose appearance had long been delayed by illness, impersonated May Joyce, the daughter of the old stevedore, who escapes the haunts of Cherry Hill for Upper Broadway.

This young artist possesses attractiveness and magnetism, two precious qualities for such a leading role.

Excepting some hesitancy and at times too low speaking of parts, possibly too young a face and figure for May Joyce, as one imagines this character, Miss Calvert acquitted herself splendidly, and she received most frequent approval.

Byron Beasley, the "Fox" of last week, old and broken, yesterday the young and ambitious physician, was also enthusiastically received in his sympathetic role.

Beatrice Nichols was the daughter, who was compelled to marry Jerry McGee when May disappeared, and brought in the impersonation of utter physical and mental ruin of her sex in the ignoble mating of tenement conditions, an able histrionic interpretation.

Marsac, the maid, the wise servant of May Joyce, was Miss Oberle, who very cleverly showed the intricacies of feeling and emotions of one who knows life and has taken contact with it from many angles.

Senator Gray is not an admirable character and it fell on Morgan Wallace to confine himself to its true presentation.

Willis Marks was Rev. Yates, a secondary part but satisfactory.

After "The Escape," the great melting-pot of metropolitan crime, vice and disease, the hotbed of inmates for asylums, hospitals and the street, one of the best sermons given on the stage for many years, Morosco's Theater produced yesterday also "Alias Jimmy Valentine" by the same author.

It is infrequent that two theaters should present the same week, two plays by the same pen.

Here it is a phase of that science, which deals with crime, one can study to advantage.

Since Victor Hugo's irresistible appeal in "Les Miserables," penology has become a fad to finally reach the dignity of a social science, enlisting under its banner the best minds in every country.

Mr. Armstrong contributes a strong and manly argument for prison reform.

In his drama, he brings out the natural mental attitudes of wardens and detectives, who naturally little believe in the reform of their game, while the good ladies of the Gate of Hope Society, know that almost all the crooks are, or might become fine and attractive members of society.

In the first act, convicts of various kinds are seen and demonstrate the insanity of crime, the mistaken idea of the world outside of prison gates, as well as the wrong conception of most jailers.

Paul Armstrong has, in this other drama, used the same method as in "The Escape," a frank, sincere picture of the man behind prison bars, the difficulties of entering life after having served a term, and the conquest of self through love.

The action is fast, clear cut and the dialogue hits like a trip hammer.

The emotions, strong and primitive, of the various men are placed in contrast with the more refined of the women, brought up in a different atmosphere.

"Alias Jimmy Valentine," suggested by O. Henry's "A Retrieved Reformation," is a drama of masculine characters. Harrison Hunter was the warden handler, an attractive and politically wise official; his clerk, Smith, was Fred Hamer, possibly too servile; Dell Knott was an excellent Blickendolferback, a German inventor of a marvellous lock.

The convicts created a sensation and John Burton was several times recalled for his finished impersonation of an old offender. Bill Avery, Ruggles, was an excellent red headed "yegg," Jocyln; and Howard Scott, a pathetic forger. Thomas Meighan was Doyle, the detective, and James Neill the Lieutenant-Governor.

Rose Lane, saved by Valentine, who secures his release and loves him, was the only important role for a woman. Miss Frances Ring was the charming, silly, romantic girl in the case.

Two children's parts were very pleasingly given by Riena Graft and Baby Phylis Mack.

Lyceum.

"The Prisoner of Zenda" at the Lyceum Theater conjures up the good old days when romantic melodrama held theater goers enthralled. The days when James K. Hackett and William Faversham were young, and Jobyna Howland used to play Queen Flavia so regally.

Really the pictures are superb, needing only the bit of explanation contained in the programme to make them absolutely lucid.

At all times they are interesting. There is love and sword play. The adventurous Rudolph and the daredevil Hentzaw. The book is not carried out to the end, but leaves the story at its climax, with the rescue of the king and the departure of Rudolph for his English home, leaving the queen who loved him, in tears.

At the top is Laurie Ordway, the little English comedienne, who has just recovered from a long illness here and will make her appearance at Pantages Monday. In the center is James K. Hackett in the screen drama, "The Prisoner of Zenda," present attraction at the Lyceum. Below is Clara Howard, who today will assume the soubrette roles at the Century. She is a local girl and recently made a successful vaudeville appearance here.

WHAT TO TAKE ON CAMPING TRIP

BY BOB PAULSEN.

THE following are for the use of the average camper and cover all necessaries. They of course can be cut down or added to, according to individual preference.

Individual outfit (sufficient for one week to a month's trip, or even longer:)

One extra pair old pants or overalls.
Two woolen or flannel shirts.
Three pair woolen sox.
Three towels.
Six handkerchiefs.
One slicker (for horseback.)
One pair "still-hunter" shoes or boots.
One broad-rim soft felt hat.
One sweater.
One pair suspenders or belt, if preferred.
One sleeping bag or bed roll including good blankets.
One canteen.
One pocket knife with big blade.
One hunting knife (if on hunting trip.)
One waterproof safety match box.
One reliable pocket compass (if going into new country.)
Pipe and tobacco if you smoke, gun and ammunition if you hunt, fishing tackle if you fish.

Two axes (3½-pound heads.)
One repair kit in roll.
One camp coffee pot.
One pair salt and pepper shakers.
One cook's big spoon.
One cook's big fork.
One cook's "flapjack" turner.
One whetstone.
One camp frypan or skillet.
One bake pan.
Four camp plates.
Four camp cups.
Four knives.
Four forks.
Four spoons.

Rations for four men for week or more (without allowance for fish or game:)

Twenty pounds self-raising flour.
Six pounds Indian or corn meal.
Six cans pork and beans (or beans with tomato sauce.)
Three pounds rice.
Five pounds best salt pork.
Five pounds best bacon.
Ten pounds best ham.
Fifteen pounds potatoes.
Five pounds fresh onions.
One gallon preserves.
One quart syrup.
One box pepper.
One box mustard.
One-half pound baking powder.
One screw top flask (filled.)
One-half pound baking soda.
Six pounds best coffee, ground and in airtight can.
Six pounds sugar.
One-half pound mixed tea.
Four cans milk (unsweetened.)
One sack salt.
Six boxes matches.
Three bars kitchen soap.
One pound corn starch.
One jar cheese.
Six boxes sardines.

This will weigh about 120 to 125 pounds.

For immediate use take fresh bread, meat, sausage (if weather is not too warm) and a few eggs, just enough to last for a day or two. Eggs can be easily carried by first washing carefully but thoroughly, wiping dry and putting into a tin bucket filled with salt. This will not spoil your salt and will be carrying two commodities in one package.

VALUE OF PURE WATER.

Will Decrease the Death Rate Just in Proportion to Its Fair or Foul Condition.

[Philadelphia Press:] The statement made by John A. Vogelson, chief of the health bureau, that during 1912 the death rate of this city decreased 7 per cent., as compared with the previous year, will be read with gratification. The explanation given is that improvement in the city water supply forms the chief factor in this condition. That there is a direct relation between sanitary precaution and the reduction of disease is a truth nobody today disputes. It is not, however, so fully accepted that the difference between a widespread epidemic, say of typhoid fever, and a city all but clear of this peril, is just the difference between the supply of fair or foul water to its residents.

The ordinary citizen is apt to imagine that such statements are the enthusiastic representation of specialists with a case to enforce. Consequently, the fight for pure water supply has slowly won its way. Its importance has been gradually recognized against the singular apathy of the majority. Far from its being true that statistics have been piled in fond exaggeration, it is safe to say that theordinary citizen has little or no idea of the facts as they stand.

Typhoid has been called our national disgrace. The death rate in this country from this disease is almost quadruple the rates in overcrowded Europe. In 1910 out of a total population of 31,000,000 residents of thirty-three principal European cities, the death rate from typhoid was 6.5 per 100,000; whereas, out of 20,000,000 population in fifty American cities, 5,062 persons died from the same cause, or four times the number figured in the European estimate. When it is considered that the chief source of typhoid is contaminated water it needs no further argument to demonstrate the extreme gravity of this question, and its strong bearing upon the public welfare.

Can't Help But Admire Babies

A woman's heart responds to the sweetness of a pretty child, and more so to-day than ever before since the advent of Mother's Friend.

This is a wonderful external help to the muscles and tendons. It penetrates the tissues, makes them readily yield to nature's demand for expansion, so there is no period of pain, discomfort, straining, nausea or other symptoms so often distressing during the anxious weeks of expectancy.

Mother's Friend thoroughly lubricates every nerve, tendon and muscle involved and is a sure preventive for caking of the breasts.

And particularly to young mothers is this famous remedy of inestimable value. It enables them to preserve their health and strength, and they remain pretty by having avoided all the suffering and danger that would otherwise accompany such an occasion.

Emigration From England.

[New York Times:] "The Duke of Marlborough says that something like 300,000 people emigrated from this country last year. People are leaving the countryside. We are not of those who think that up to a point emigration is a distressing and lamentable thing, but clearly when it assumes its present magnitude there are grave dangers of a depopulated countryside, which only needs sensible colonization to make it carry a very much larger population than it does at present."

risk a throw with Howard tagging at his chain on third.

There was another consultation, and Ellis was passed, filling the bases. Art Krueger, with a chance to win a bungalow for himself, flicked off a fly that Coy transfixed.

The next three innings were reeled off with the crowd in an acute state of expectancy, but with nothing definite being accomplished. Crabb and Malarkey were going great guns and the teams were playing behind them with machine-like precision.

The crash came with startling suddenness.

Malarkey was the first man up in the thirteenth. Bill is a good hitter as pitchers go, but I hold that no pitcher has a right to make a three-bagger in the thirteenth inning, especially if he is a visiting pitcher.

Malarkey cracked the ball 'way out in left center, and it would have been good for at least four bases, but for exceptional alacrity on the part of "Rube" Ellis. Even then it looked like Crabb might wiggle out, Leard being retired on a grounder to Metzger and Hetling popping to Johnson.

All this time poor old Bill had been hugging third and looking hungrily at the Promised Land. He had just about given up hope when Schirm came along and delivered him out of bondage with a triple that landed out between Krueger and Maggert. Coy closed the scene with a foul to Metzger.

Malarkey crowded on all his remaining steam in the last half, and made the Angel assault look puny, indeed. Johnson and Boles were infield outs, and Page, introduced as thumping for Crabb, petered out at the plate.

Harry Ables displayed unmistakable symptoms of a return to form in the morning game, when he met Jack Ryan with the latter at his best, and beat him.

The hits were evenly divided, 5 to 5, but Ables distributed his at least an inning apart, while Ryan was plunked twice in two innings, the first and the sixth.

Ryan started unsteadily, puncturing Hetling, the first man to face him, after Leard had boosted to Kreuger. Schirm and Coy followed with sharp singles, snugging up the sacks. Metzger, Byrnes and Moore dropped the asbestos with a lightning double play on Zacher's smash. Metzger hurried the ball to the plate for a forceout on Hetling, and Byrnes whipped it to first a foot ahead of the fleeing Zacher.

Leard delivered what proved to be the winning run in the sixth. Bill biffed to center, and made an audacious theft of second. Hetling sacrificed him to the three-quarter post, and he reported on Schirm's decease, Johnson to Moore. Coy followed with a double that peeled a patch of paint off the scoreboard. This brought Beatrice nothing but a little transient fame, as Zacher was unable to lend him a helping hand along the path of glory.

Los Angeles made [illegible] in the ninth; a dying [illegible] Howard smashed the [illegible] pitched to left, Schirm [illegible] ing, trimming it down [illegible] Metzger sacrificed, and Howard established himself as the [illegible] of baseball by pirating [illegible] under the nostrils of [illegible] and Rohrer. Uncle Sam's troubles with a door.

That leading to one of his elevators in the Federal Building fell and broke about a month ago and various balls of red tape have been unwinding ever since.

Problem of State.

WHY DON'T DEMOCRATS COME FIX THAT DOOR?

THIS is the story of a door. It goes to show, according to those concerned, that the methods of the British circumlocution office, as portrayed by Dickens, are still in evidence.

About a month ago the door at the fourth-floor entrance of the Federal building, on the Spring-street side, in some way slipped through the opening in which the elevator operates, and, falling to the ground floor was broken.

A survey of the wreck was at once ordered and a judicial investigation determined that it would be necessary to get a new door. The hole through which the door disappeared was there, and there was other tangible evidence that something had happened.

Negotiations were opened for the construction of a new door. Then followed about ten days of quiet swearing on the part of persons having business in the building, who found it necessary to do their traveling in one crowded elevator, and if bound for the fourth floor, either walking up from the third or down from the fifth.

Finally a door was built, but on examination was found to have been made too wide. Back went the door to the factory.

Later on it reappeared. This time it was too narrow, and so made another trip for changes.

The question of the width being satisfactorily settled, it is now wanted to know whether the lock should be on the inside or the outside of the door.

Wherefore it is generally conceded that Uncle Sam moves in mysterious ways his wonders to perform.

MAKING READY ALREADY.

To prepare for the thirty-seventh annual session of the Grand Parlor of the Native Sons of the Golden West, which will be held in Los Angeles next April, local parlors of the order have laid plans to raise funds for an entertainment that will surpass any effort heretofore made. Herman C. Lichtenberger, as chairman of the General Committee, presided over the meeting of various committees last Friday night. Beside an outline of plans made by the chairman addresses were delivered by Richard Barry, William I. Traeger, Frank G. Tyrrell, F. A. Stephenson and Mrs. Fannie Prather.

Hundredth Anniversary.

TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS FOR BIRTHDAY PRESENT.

ON JULY 13, 1813, Adoniram Judson landed at Rangoon, Burma, and began the foreign missionary work of the Baptist Church, among the Burmese.

Exactly one hundred years later, Judson's advent into India was recognized in Los Angeles. To be more exact, yesterday, Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher, pastor of Temple Baptist Church, announced to 3000 persons at the morning service, that the century of missionary work had been marked by the donation of $10,000 by six Los Angeles Baptists for the erection of a college building at Rangoon.

The donors are Misses Ruth and Louise Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. Otis Birch, and Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Conaway. The new college building in Burma is to be known as the Emma Birch-Smith memorial building.

When this announcement was made at Temple Baptist yesterday, the congregation arose and greeted it with the Chautauqua salute, the great assembly waving hands and handkerchiefs to show their appreciation of the generosity of the donors.

Dr. Brougher stated that the donors preferred that the gift be not made public; but he prevailed upon them to honor the hundredth anniversary of the establishment of missionary work at Rangoon by linking the two in the interest of missionary work.

The Misses Smith are greatly interested in church work and especially in the missionary work of the Baptist Church. They reside at No. 118 North Avenue Fifty-second. Birch is vice-president of the Lyon Fireproof Storage Company, living at No. 5106 Pasadena avenue, and Conaway has an office at No. 210 West Seventh street. He lives at No. 5618 Meridian street.

to sleep and wakes with a start in the morning to look for the little sister who is gone, begins another day of sorrow and grief and longing.

Mrs. Welsh said yesterday that relatives of the Huffmans would arrive on Tuesday from Illinois when arrangements for the funeral will be made. It is believed that the relatives will take little Joyce back East with them in an effort to console her and get her away from the environment that is a constant reminder of her great loss.

Chairman Pridham of the Board of Supervisors, will take up at today's meeting the matter of grade crossing accidents and he stated last night that he hoped to start something that will result in a remedy of the existing conditions.

"There are too many grade crossing accidents," said he. "Other cities are far ahead of us and are compelling railroads and traction lines to raise their tracks. We must do something here, for we are living in too fast an age."

AUTO THIEVES CAPTURED.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

FULLERTON, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Ned Staples, aged 17, of Fullerton, and Bob Johnson, aged 18, of Anaheim, were arrested here Saturday night by Marshal William French, for the theft of a Regal automobile, No. 95526, owned by Arthur E. Bond of No. 332 South St. Arthur place, Los Angeles, July 3. After stealing the car the boys removed the car number and replaced it with a number from an Imperial car, No. 2595, owned by Perry Thelan of Santa Ana.

On July 4, the boys took a joy ride to San Diego, and while there ran into and demolished a Ford car, but refused to give their names or where they were from. Marshal French received a notice Saturday to be on the lookout for the car here, and he and Night Watchman Wheeler located it in an old barn, where the boys were remodeling the car for a racing machine.

A reward of $100 will be paid to French and Wheeler.

INFANT DESERTED IN DOCTOR'S OUTER OFFICE.

Allopath Discovers Bright-Eyed Mite, Swathed in Expensive Garments, as He Prepares to Close Doors for Day—Child in Hands of Authorities Pending Investigation.

Apparently ignoring the possible wishes of the recipient and assuming that a physician is the proper custodian of a stray infant, somebody foisted a fine baby boy on Dr. M. M. Ring of No. 826 West Thirty-second street, yesterday, oblivious to the fact that the medico already has a family of his own. The donor placed the child on a couch in the doctor's outer office at No. 321 South Hill street and departed without waiting for thanks for or refusal of the charge.

Dr. Ring is fond of babies. He has an intimate acquaintance with embryo citizens in many parts of the city. But this baby is a stranger to him. True, the youngster appeared satisfied with his position on the physician's couch and manifested no inclination to leave, even though Dr. Ring was on the verge of locking the office door for the day.

But you can't leave even a well-behaved baby alone in an office from Sunday morning until Monday morning, especially if the baby is apparently only five or six weeks old. The doctor, in a quandry, called Probation Officer Marden into consultation.

The physician was talking to a friend in his inner office shortly before noon yesterday and heard no one enter the outer office. The friend walked out. Dr. Ring prepared to lock the office when his attention was attracted to a bundle on the couch. Examination disclosed the presence not only of dainty wearing apparel but also of a pretty little face and two brown eyes that gazed up at the inquirer interested and unafraid.

Every stitch of the child's clothing is of the finest material. Beside it lay a new silk handkerchief. There was no note, no mark of identification of any kind. The child's features show every mark of refinement.

Whoever left the child evidently took advantage of the fact that the door of the outer office was slightly ajar. Voices could be heard from the interior and there was every probability that the child would be discovered.

The doctor had the building searched, the thought arising that someone might have left the child for a few minutes intending to return.

Probation Officer Marden, who has been singularly successful in locating the parents of deserted babies, took charge of the little stranger. The child was turned over to the Children's Home Society at Twenty-fifth street and Griffith avenue, where it will be kept pending an investigation by the police.

MANY FLYING FISH.

San Francisco Woman Struck in Face by One in Flight Is Painfully Injured.

AVALON, July 13.—Attracted by the searchlight of a passing launch a school of flying fish rose from the water last evening, within two hundred yards from the beach and many dropped into a large group of bathers. One of the fish, weighing nearly two pounds, struck Mrs. M. Merchich of San Francisco full in the face, knocking her down. The escapade caused much excitement. The fish left a bad bruise upon the fair bather. Thirty gasping fish were picked up off the beach.

Moonlight and calm nights has driven the summer residents to seek all forms of water sports. During the past few weeks several fast launches have been equipped with powerful searchlights and "searchlight parties," where hundreds of flying fish can be seen as the boats travel rapidly through the water, rising at the bright light on the boat, have become a social function. Nightly the beach is crowded with bathers who remain in the water until close to midnight and as the powerful rays are thrown in their direction the beach presents a picturesque appearance. The darting fish are often speared by boys in rowboats near the pleasure pier.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The second sweepstake tournament of the season on the Catalina links was played under difficulties Saturday afternoon, as a heavy southwest wind—the first in the history of the links for this time of the year—prevailed. There were a good many golfers in town, but only a few participated in the game. L. C. Ward of Los Angeles, whose total was 75, was declared the winner. Ward had a handicap of 13 points. The second and third places were taken by H. C. Sanger of Los Angeles, 77, and Dr. West Hughes, who played scratch and passed over the difficult course in 78. The wind caused several of the players to loose many strokes, but as sport was the main factor of the contest all contestants took their difficulties in excellent spirits. Another tournament is planned for August 2, when several prominent golfers of Southern California will be contestants.

J. H. Stamford, president of the Avalon Board of Trustees; J. F. Jones, City Clerk, and Attorney Baker left today for Los Angeles where they are to appear in the Superior Court, Department Five, Monday morning, to show cause why the board should not be restricted from enforcing the new city ordinance regulating liquor licenses. D. B. Jerrue & Co. are plaintiffs in the case and state that the bord has injured their business by denying them a license and granting a permit to the owners of the Metropole at a fee of $5000 per year.

WHITTLED ON HIS ADVERSARY.

Greek Meets Greek at Pasadena in Battle.

New Hospital Building Is Among Plans.

PASADENA, July 14.—Nick Karos, a Greek, found that he had thrown a boomerang when yesterday afternoon he went to the police station to demand the arrest of H. Vagenes, an acquaintance, after the two men had fought in Central Park. Vagenes was arrested, but he had the marks of a knife on one arm, and Karos had none, so the latter also was taken into custody.

The trouble began in the middle of the afternoon when the two defendants of charges of battery were whiling away their leisure time in the park. Hot words were passed and according to the story told to the police it was agreed that they would fight it out. Vagenes was for making it a fistic battle, but maintains that no sooner had they started than Karos drew a knife.

The fight was soon over, with neither combatant seriously injured. Karos hastened to the police station and demanded that Vagenes be arrested. He was told he would have to swear to a complaint, which he did later at the home of Justice of the Peace Dunham. Vagenes was found, arrested and released on $50 bail.

He had no sooner handed over his bail money than he displayed a cut and also, he alleges, a bitten left forearm and accused the complainant of having done it. He also himself lost no time in going to Justice Dunham's home and swearing to a complaint against Karos similar to that on which the warrant for his own arrest had been issued.

Karos later was also arrested. He likewise furnished a $50 bond and was released. The cases will probably be heard this morning.

HOLD DIFFERENT OPINIONS.

The fate of Carmelita Playground will be determined at a conference to be held at 8:30 o'clock this morning between the City Commissioners and the members of the committee appointed at a mass meeting held last week at the Y.M.C.A. building.

The Commissioners have already announced their intention of closing the playground for the purchase of which the people of the city failed to provide bonds at the recent election, and some of them are in favor of taking the apparatus from it and installing it at Sheep Corral Springs, a site in the northern part of the city, which is municipally-owned property.

On the other hand, the committee appointed to seek to have the playgrounds maintained will lodge a vehement protest to any such move.

"We want a central playground retained for the children of the city," said Dr. C. D. Lockwood, one of the members of the committee last night. "We don't care whether it be the present one or some other, but we do not want the playground moved to an out-of-the-way location.

"The people of Pasadena did not vote against conducting a central playground. They voted against purchasing this particular piece of property that is now used for the purpose. We want the City Commissioners to conduct the playground as it is now conducted six months longer. In that time we think we can educate the public to see that a playground, centrally located, is necessary to the happiness and well being of the children.

The other members of the committee are Herman R. Hertel, Dr. J. H. McBride, H. I. Stuart, Rev. A. R. Tillinghast, Dr. George S. Abbott and H. Hallet.

WILL WAIT AWHILE.

The Shakespeare Club will not, as was contemplated, make its request of the City Commission that a policewoman be added to the force for the prosecution of white slavers until later in the summer, at least. The Civics Committee, which has this and other questions of public welfare under consideration, met last Saturday to consider it further. The women of the club will delay making their request until they have their plans for a campaign against vice more fully perfected.

Although no more meetings of the club will be held until next fall the Civics Committee, which has been granted power to act in divers things, will be busy all summer. It is probable, too, that improvements will be made to the clubhouse grounds.

WILL BUILD HOSPITAL.

The comparatively new Marengo Avenue Hospital, which is now using a group of improvised buildings at the corner of Marengo avenue and Villa street, will soon have a hospital building. On the same site a magnificent four-story concrete structure is to be put up. It will be fireproof and will contain many convenient features, including a roof garden and sleeping porches. Plans have been drawn and the hospital association will soon begin work on its construction. What is to be a north wing will be constructed first, and the remainder of the building built after that shall have been completed.

CITY BRIEFS.

Additions and enlargements are to be made to the Nazarene University this summer. The college has just received a gift of $120,000, the name of the donor of which is withheld. Part of this sum will be used to enlarge the music hall, to provide an addition to the grammar school and to improve the gymnasium.

Campers for miles around last Saturday night went to Switzer's Camp in the Arroyo Seco, where the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A. girls and the Pasadena Campfire girls, both of which parties are encamped there, joined in giving an entertainment that had many novel features. An aeroplane dance was introduced.

SECRETARY RESIGNS.

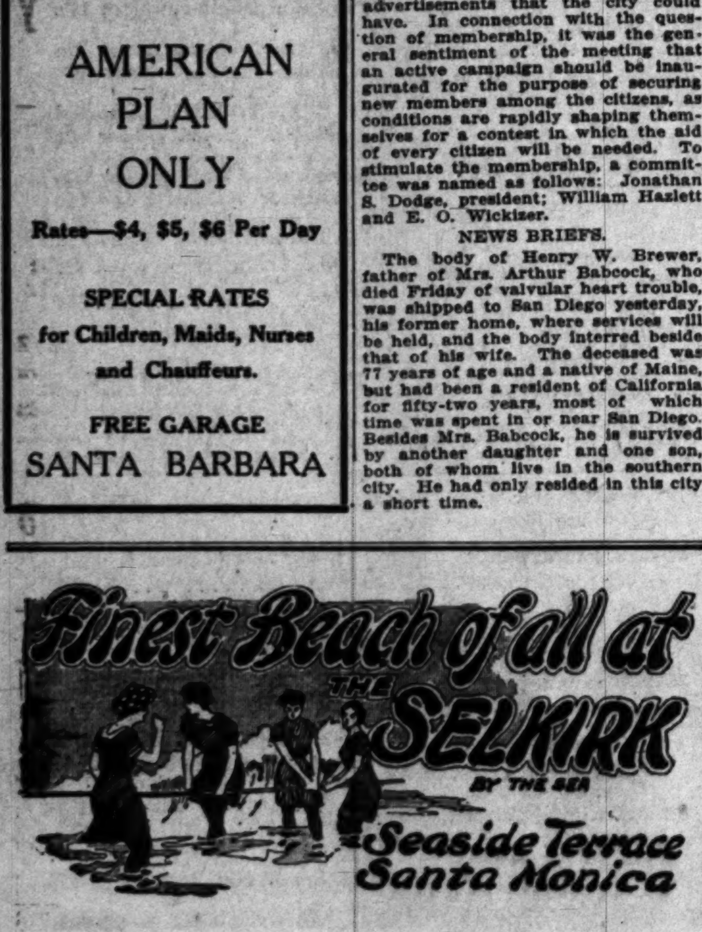
SOUTH PASADENA, July 13.—The feature of the meeting of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce last evening held in the Council chambers, was the resignation of Seward C. Simons, to take immediate effect, and the selection of N. Ledgerwood, the well-known local garage man, for the post.

Simons stated that he was about to leave for an extended eastern tour for the purpose of studying sewage questions in connection with his Intercity Commission work, and inasmuch as the chamber is on the eve of an extremely vital and active period during which several big questions are to be handled, he felt that retaining the office of secretary would work a hardship on the directors, who will need the earnest work and active co-operation of all their officers in solving the problems now looming on the horizon. Simons also made a pertinent suggestion to the directors—that signs showing the location of the city limits of South Pasadena be placed at the principal points of approach to the city. Under present conditions visitors to the city are seldom aware of the boundary lines, and many of our local attractions are credited to Pasadena or other bordering towns.

The question of the purchase of Garfield Park, located on Mission street, was brought up before the board by the reading of a letter from General Superintendent H. V. Platt of the Southern Pacific Railroad, in which the statement was made that the latter corporation will entertain a proposition on part of this city to purchase the park site. A committee of two experts on land values was named to look into the matter and report at the next meeting of the directors. R. W. Pridham, president of the County Board of Supervisors, and H. Hawgood, a member of the City Trustees, compose this committee. A question discussed for the first time was the selection of an official slogan and emblem for South Pasadena. It was conceded that such a slogan and emblem would be one of the best advertisements that the city could have. In connection with the question of membership, it was the general sentiment of the meeting that an active campaign should be inaugurated for the purpose of securing new members among the citizens, as conditions are rapidly shaping themselves for a contest in which the aid of every citizen will be needed. To stimulate the membership, a committee was named as follows: Jonathan S. Dodge, president; William Hazlett and E. O. Wickizer.

NEWS BRIEFS.

The body of Henry W. Brewer, father of Mrs. Arthur Babcock, who died Friday of valvular heart trouble, was shipped to San Diego yesterday, his former home, where services will be held, and the body interred beside that of his wife. The deceased was 77 years of age and a native of Maine, but had been a resident of California for fifty-two years, most of which time was spent in or near San Diego. Besides Mrs. Babcock, he is survived by another daughter and one son, both of whom live in the southern city. He had only resided in this city a short time.



Long Beach.

SAN PEDRO MAN IS ARRESTED.

Doctor Charged With Criminal Operation.

Released Under Bonds of Five Thousand Dollars.

Two Thousand Dollars Damage Done by Tides.

LONG BEACH, July 13.—Charged with having performed a criminal operation upon Mary Benton Haley, 18 years old, Dr. Albert T. Winn, a prominent San Pedro physician, was arrested late last night on a warrant issued from Justice S. H. Underwood's court in this city. He was released on $5000 bond and will be arraigned before Justice Underwood at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

His arrest followed that of Jesse Bishop, a young man employed by the Southern California Lumber Company at Terminal Island and living at that place. Bishop was arrested during the afternoon on a warrant issued from Justice Underwood's court charging him with aiding and abetting in the physician's alleged offense. According to the police Bishop, who was arrested by Constable George Austin, corroborated admissions said to have been made by the young woman in the case to Chief of Police A. B. Austin and Detective Robert O'Rourke of Long Beach and to two physicians of this city, as to the doctor's alleged acts. Following the corroboration steps looking toward the physician's arrest were taken at once. Dr. Winn sent his counsel, Attorney Jess E. Stephens, to Long Beach to arrange his bail.

Mary Benton Haley was removed to the County Hospital in Los Angeles yesterday afternoon in the J. J. Mottell automobile ambulance from the home of her father, E. L. Benton, No. 3001 East Fifth street, this city. It was said then that her condition was critical and that she probably would not live long. Today, a local physician received word from the hospital that she seemed to be improved and might recover. It was feared yesterday that peritonitis had developed and would prove fatal.

The young woman was married last December to a man named Haley. They lived together, according to the girl, only two weeks and she does not know his present whereabouts. The operation which Dr. Winn is alleged to have performed is said to have taken place about two weeks ago. She was brought to Long Beach a few days ago and the family called in a local physician. Yesterday he turned the case over to Dr. W. H. Newman, Long Beach health officer, who made arrangements for the young woman's removal to the County Hospital. Dr Winn is known in San Pedro and other Southern California cities. He resides at No. 448 East Sixth street, San Pedro, and has an office in the Alexander building in that city. It is said that he denies the charge against him and states he was following legitimate and proper practice in all his professional relations with the young woman. Young Bishop, who is a step-son of a former Councilman of Long Beach, now deceased, is in the Long Beach jail.

ROUGH SEAS.

The same condition of roughness which characterized the surf yesterday made bathers cautious again today and the life-guards stationed in front of the bath-house and elsewhere along the beach warned all against venturing out too far.

The damage done to the west seaside walk and wall by the high tides of the last few days is estimated at about $2000 by the superintendent of the work. The Hotel Virginia's lifelines were broken by the force of the waves last night and could not be repaired today as the big breakers made the work impossible.

Despite the condition of the surf, a group of about twenty guests of Hotel Virginia made up a bathing party at 11:30 last night, enjoying themselves in the surf until midnight.

NOVEL RACE.

A novel race will be the attraction at the Forum on the beach, Friday, July 18, when prizes will be given to those making the highest mileage in a "go as you please" contest beginning at 8 o'clock in the morning and closing at 8 at night. Each racer will wear a speedometer and, according to the rules, must be on the track fifty minutes of each hour during the day. Hourly records of the space covered by the racers will be posted for the information of spectators. The rules state that any racer found tampering with his speedometer will be disqualified.

FIRE RECORD.

A report just filed by J. E. Shrewsbury, fire chief, shows that during the fiscal year just closed the fire department answered ninety-nine alarms and devoted 125 hours and 52 minutes to the business of fighting fire.

Losses on insured buildings is estimated at $26,639 and on contents $16,442.75. Insurance amounting to $52,000 was written on the buildings and $32,250 on the contents. Losses not covered by insurance were: On buildings, $1021; on contents, $2009. The value of property in which fires were extinguished is given as $166,075, of which $114,775 was on buildings. The fire department covered 397.9 miles and used 614 gallons of chemicals in fighting fires.

NEWS BRIEFS.

City Auditor L. W. Shuman today denied the truth of the report that he will resign from office. He states that his candidacy for the postmastership will not interfere with the discharge of his present duties and that there is no other reason why he should retire.

Pearl Wood, the 8-year-old daughter of T. L. Wood, No. 322 Golden avenue, was knocked unconscious and cut and bruised about the ears, lips, nose and the back of her head yesterday afternoon, when a heavy boxswing in Bixby Park swung back against her when she was looking the other way, striking her head.

Ellen Caldwell, 2-year-old daughter of C. S. Caldwell of Los Angeles, fell from the first floor balcony of the Surf View Apartments yesterday afternoon, sustaining a concussion of the brain. She recovered sufficiently to be taken to Los Angeles after a few hours.

At the summer school now in progress at the Atlantic avenue school building, a number of boys comprise a class in camp cookery. After taking lessons in the art of cooking for a few weeks they have extended invitations to the Superintendent of Schools, W. L. Stephens, and the Board of Education to attend a luncheon which they will give at the school at noon on Tuesday.

OVERLOOKED AUTOMOBILE.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SANTA BARBARA, July 13. [Exclusive Dispatch.] P. H. Rice left his suitcase in his auto a few days ago with his personal check book and a new suit of clothes inside. A thief took the suitcase, is wearing the clothes and several times a day cashes one of the checks. The average is three a day to date, in amounts varying from $10 to $25. Mr. Rice is wondering whether the checks or his bank account will be the first to run out.

HERMIT DIVERTS COURT.

Charges His Trouble to the Stupidity of Public Officials and Flashes a Plethoric Roll.

TULARE, July 13.—E. Herrick, a Celtic hermit, who lives in the Tipton district, was today bound over to the Superior Court to answer to a charge of obstructing the public highway, but only after Herrick had amused a courtroom filled with spectators, as well as the judge and prosecuting attorney.

Herrick was charged with having built a barrier of poles and barbed wire across fifteen feet of what is known as County Road No. 824. County Surveyor Lovelace and Supervisor Singleton were witnesses for the State.

Herrick, taking the stand in his own defense calmly stated that the surveys were wrong, that he did not blame Lovelace and Singleton, but they were acting in the light of the stupidity of their predecessors. He also stated, however, that he was forced to defend his contention or be judged as stupid as the others.

When held over to the Superior Court Herrick produced a plethoric roll of $50 bills from which he handed the judge $200 as surety for his appearance at trial.

AUTHOR IS OUTDONE.

VISALIA, July 13.—That immortal originator of the classic phrase, "My wife's gone to the country, hooray, hooray!" has nothing whatever on J. E. Tackett, a wealthy rancher of Lindsay, who was in court this morning to answer to a charge of intoxication.

According to Tackett, he came to Visalia in company with his wife and after putting her aboard a train for Missouri he felt so elated that he accepted several invitations to indulge in nips of whisky. Presently, so Tackett says, his memory failed him, for someone turned the lights out.

HOT WEATHER CUTS NO ICE.

Business Conditions in Imperial Valley Are Better Than for Years at This Season.

IMPERIAL, July 13.—The heat has come and has grown intense in the valley, but there has been no falling off in business. This summer has, so far, witnessed a wonderful change in this respect. In only one or two cases do merchants complain of a falling off in business. Banks, stores, lumber men and real estate dealers all report a far greater amount of business during the month of June past than during the same month last year, and most of them did as much business in this June as they did in May, the month just before the usual and expected slump.

INCREASED VALUATION.

The Board of Supervisors of Imperial county, acting as a board of equalization, have increased the value of lands owned by the Southern Pacific Company north of the third standard, from $1 per acre to $15 and $25 per acre. This increase will affect six townships in the neighborhood of Imperial Junction, that will come under the high line canal, and the amount which will accrue to the county from this increase will be between $6000 and $7000 a year. The total increase in valuation is about $400,000.

Is is expected that the increased valuation will be allowed to stand, but the Southern Pacific Company has five days in which to show cause why the board should not increase its assessments on the property. The opening of the high line canal and the laying out of a townsite at the Imperial Junction will very materially increase all the property in that section and the railroad company will reap a rich reward on their lands without expense of development.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Horace B. Day, president of the Home Telephone Company, after an inspection of existing conditions in the valley, has decided to install his system here. If present plans mature headquarters for the operations of the new system will be in Imperial, and the first towns to be served by it will be El Centro and Holtville. The estimated cost of doing the work to be done will be in the neighborhood of $50,000, and if possible the company will install the automatic system.

El Centro has completed its extensive street paving operations and now has several miles of streets that will compare with the streets of any California city. It was a desert some six years ago, and today it is a thoroughly modern city of some 5000 people, and is growing as rapidly as when it first began to develop.

State Horticultural Commissioner Cook has rendered a decision on the Mexican cotton question that is of great importance to the cotton growers of the valley, especially those operating below the line. He has decided that cotton raised in that part of the valley below the line in Mexico may be admitted into this territory for ginning purposes, holding that the seed quarantine law does not apply to field cotton. In this decision Cook has settled a question that for many months has sorely perplexed the cotton association of the valley.

San Bernardino.

DEMOCRATS IN PRETTY FIGHT.

Division of Spoils Causes Bad Feeling.

Woman Refuses Man for Unreasonable Reason.

San Bernardino Theaters Are to Be Improved.

SAN BERNARDINO, July 13.—Congressman Kettner has put one over on the San Bernardino County Democratic Central Committee. His appointment for the postoffice plum at Colton, R. H. Summers, has been confirmed by the Senate.

Kettner and the county committee came together hard a few weeks ago. The Congressman announced his selections for postoffice jobs all over the county. The majority of the county committee did not like Kettner's selections for the Colton, San Bernardino, Ontario and other postoffices.

The committee met, made up its slate and then resolved that the Congressman must abide by their dictum. But Kettner turned a deaf ear and went right on getting the plums for his own selections.

Summers's appointment was the first test. Kettner induced the President to name him. The committee then threatened a big fight over his confirmation, but he has been confirmed. Thus Kettner seems to be in the saddle, which indicates that Ernest Martin will get the San Bernardino job instead of T. W. Duckworth, who got the committee endorsement.

Incidentally, there are a few Bourbon politicians in the county who are nursing a very sore spot on their anatomy.

LADY BALKED.

A man, aged about 45 years, marched up to the marriage license bureau in the County Clerk's office and asked for a license. He said his name was C. W. Clane and that he lived in Los Angeles. His bride-to-be, at his elbow promptly announced to the clerk that his name was "Cline," not "Clane." He insisted that it was "Clane." "It is 'Cline' or I don't marry you," came back the ultimatum from the lady. "All right," observed Clane, and they left the office without revealing the lady's name. The night before "C. W. Clane and wife" had been registered at a local hotel.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Work is to be commenced this week on improvements on two of the local theaters. The Auditorium is to have an enlarged balcony and an enlarged stage, putting it in the ranks of the finest vaudeville and moving picture houses in the State. Its seating capacity is to be increased to 1100. The Liberty Theater is to have an entire new front, the name changed to the Isis, the auditorium enlarged and a new stage built. The improvements on both houses are to be commenced at once.

Lionel Heath an old-time resident of this city, is dead from injuries received several weeks ago when he was thrown from his wagon when his team ran away on a mountain grade. He was 84 years of age, and leaves a wife and one son here, Harry Heath, and several children in the East.

A. E. Scott of San Diego has been transferred here as manager for the Pacific Telegraph and Telephone Company to succeed G. C. Gross, who goes to Bakersfield as manager and to organize the work in the new exchange building just completed there.

BEANS GIVE RICH PROMISE.

Sawtelle Growers Say Prospects For Fine Crop Are Better Than For Years—News Briefs.

SAWTELLE, July 13.—Work on 15,000 shipping cases for sending Sawtelle lima beans all over the country has been commenced at the local cannery by a dozen men and more boys. Superintendent Mero gives it as his opinion that the crop this year will be the largest ever turned out, the cool weather and late rain doing a world of good to the lima bean crop.

The blossoms are set heavily on the vines, which are large and vigorous, and already meet in the rows. The lima beans will be put up green, and another month will see the cannery running in full blast, employing over 100 hands. This is the largest lima bean shipping point in Southern California.

NEWS BRIEFS.

A motor truck has been secured by the fire department, which is now splendidly equipped to put out incipient blazes. Fifty feet of chemical hose will be carried in addition to 900 feet of regular fire hose. The two chemical tanks have a capacity of 55 gallons each. The machine makes a speed of 30 miles per hour.

At a meeting of the Sawtelle Woman's Club plans for the erection of a handsome clubhouse were considered. The club membership has been divided into four parties which will strive to raise the remainder of the money needed to build the house. The captains of these divisions are Mrs. Nellie Bowers, Mrs. Pearl Finch, Mrs. Luna Haskell and Mrs. Lillie Wearne.

Petitions for the paving of Seventh street and Colorado avenue between Fourth and Ninth streets will probably be acted on by the City Trustees at their meeting tomorrow night. Sawtelle is proud of her record of street improvements this year.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS.

Several Hundred Members of the Order Convene at Pomona for Exemplification of Work.

POMONA, July 13.—Several hundred members of the Knights of Columbus from all of the chapters of the order in Southern California gathered here today and participated in the exemplification of the second and third degrees. The visitors arrived in special electric cars and automobile trucks and were met by the Pomona members of the order and the Seventh Regiment band and escorted to the Fraternal Aid Theater where the ceremonies occurred. The degrees were conferred upon a class of sixty candidates by Hon. Frank M. Cilva of Napa, grand deputy of the order in California, assisted by the Oxnard degree team.

This evening an elaborate banquet was given the visitors at the armory on West Second street, being served by the ladies of St. Joseph's Church. The local committee having charge of the meeting here was composed of Messrs. Norris Wilkinson, Harry Fay, Frank Balfour, J. F. Becherer and M. C. Kennedy.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Members of Pomona Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, met at Masonic Hall last evening for the regular monthly session and banquet. Candidates were initiated and about forty members of the Azusa Chapter were present as guests. There were numerous speeches at the repast which followed the ritualistic work.

Last evening an interesting farewell party was given at the California George Junior Republic southeast of here in honor of Carl S. Haynie, lately president of the Republic, and Jack Ferdinand, Calvin Enoch and Parker Burt, young citizens who now have their releases from the Republic and go forth to life in the larger republic. The affair was given in the commodious club-room in the gymnasium at the Republic. Games were enjoyed and there were good-bye addresses by Messrs. Haynie, Ferdinand, Burt and Enoch. Robert McDonald, president-elect to succeed Carl Haynie, spoke for the citizens, and Supt. Gerald Waterhouse of the Republic, spoke for the association. Assistant Superintendent Clyde Doyle was master of ceremonies. The affairs of the Republic are in excellent condition and are running now with clock-like regularity.

BODY FLOATS ASHORE.

Remains of Ohio Man Drowned at Venice Wednesday, Discovered by Swimmer Near Nat Goodwin Pier.

SANTA MONICA, July 13.—Early surf bathers found the dead body of a man floating in the breakers near the Nat Goodwin pier at 7 o'clock this morning. When O. S. Black and Charles Harding brought the body to shore, a man in the crowd which gathered, identified the body as that of C. E. Clark, who drowned while swimming with his brother off Sunset avenue, Venice, Wednesday. The body was taken to the Todd undertaking parlors.

Todd states that this is the first time, in his experience, that the body of a drowned man drifted north, the current almost always running south. Coroner Hartwell will probably sign a certificate of accidental drowning. The funeral arrangements have not yet been made. Clark was 28 years of age, and was a visitor here from Ohio.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Great interest attaches to the meeting of the City Council tomorrow night. City Attorney Taft, who has been away on a vacation and whose resignation has been asked for, will return, and probably give his answer, which will, it is said, be sensational and peppery. In the event that Taft bows to the will of the Mayor, with whom he has been at outs for some time, former Judge Hutton will probably be appointed.

A great crowd of visitors came to this beach today, enjoying the delights of North Beach, and Ocean Park, and promenading in a never-ending stream along the ocean front. Although the police were busy straightening out traffic tangles, no accidents were reported.

BACKBONE IS SHORTENING.

Porterville Attorney Finds He Is Three Inches Short Since Participating in Auto Disaster.

PORTERVILLE, July 13.—Through an injury in an automobile accident, from which he is just recovering, George B. Crittenden, a prominent attorney of this city, has lost three inches in height. Crittenden's stature before the accident in which his car went over a mountain grade near Tracey, measured five feet, nine inches. Today he had occasion to reach for a favorite pipe and was unable to more than touch the tip of his fingers to the shelf. Noting the difference he measured himself and found that his height now is but a fraction over five feet, six inches.

Injury to his spine is given by Crittenden's physicians as the cause.

THIS IS EXTRAORDINARY.

Plunging 200 feet down the mountain side on the Pine Flat road an auto in which were Mrs. L. A. Mills and her daughter of Coalinga, turned completely over ten times before the two women were thrown clear of the machine. Despite their wild ride neither woman was seriously hurt.

The car was being driven by F. E. McNitt, also of Coalinga, and with him was his wife. The engine stalled on a steep bit of road not far from the resort and Ford got out to crank up, Mrs. Ford stepping from the car as well. When the engine started again the brake lever became disengaged and the car plunged down the mountainside.

OCEAN PARK.

OCEAN PARK, July 13.—John F. Haeni, formerly of Aurora, Ill., died at his residence, No. 46 Rose avenue, yesterday, from the effects of a paralytic stroke. He was 81 years old. He is survived by the widow, Elizabeth Haeni, and four children, Emil Haeni of Santa Monica, Charles Haeni of Aurora, Ill.; Mrs. Wynne Meredith of Alameda, and Mrs. Richard A. Stassforth of Los Angeles. Mr. Haeni was a native of Switzerland. He was in the jewelry business in Aurora, Ill., twenty-seven years, coming to California in 1895. He has spent these years between Los Angeles and Ocean Park. The body will be cremated. The funeral will be private.

Quartette of Police Fail to Appreciate His Art Posing on Principal Streets and Lover of Nature Is Landed in City Jail to Await His Trial.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SACRAMENTO, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Charles Darling, nature man, who recently visited Sacramento in few clothes, has been outstripped. The scene that Pat Dunn created this morning at Second and J streets is enough to make the noted anti-raiment advocate turn green with envy. The Stanford graduate has been ignominiously defeated by a mere vagrant. But Darling may have one consolation. Pat Dunn wore shoes and a hat in public, but that was all.

Pat Dunn, in a cell at the City Jail, declares that the police of Sacramento have no appreciation of the human form divine. He points with pride to the crowd of 2000 people that gathered about him as he walked up J street from Front to Second in the altogether.

When interviewed in his cell this afternoon Pat divulged the reason he had come forth in the nude.

"It is not unlikely that you have seen the pictures 'September Morn,'" he said. "I am a dear lover of art and the height of art is the human form. I am also aware of the fact that Sacramento is noted for art lovers. I had been intending to pose for a painting to be known as 'July Afternoon.'

"Well, this morning climatic conditions broke right and I decided to take a little practice in posing. It was my intention to accustom myself to the sun and to the embarrassment by strolling to the South Side Park and assuming the posture there.

"I found to my disgust that four policemen broke into the proceedings at Second and J streets, just as I had gone a block. Among them was Martin Pennish, whom I understand distrusted the intentions of my dear friend, Mr. Darling. Mr. Pennish introduced me to the other policemen, F. A. Pennish, Mr. Thielen and Mr. Gorman. Then they all arrested me."

AUTOS COLLIDE, FIVE ARE HURT.

Four San Francisco Society Women Among Injured.

Steamship Company President Held by Police.

[BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

SAN FRANCISCO BUREAU OF THE TIMES, July 13.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Four women, all socially prominent in this city and San Jose, and a president of a steamship company, were victims of an automobile collision today at the intersection of Eddy street and Van Ness avenue. Mrs. E. Feeley of No. 1700 Sutter street and Miss Gertrude Pyle of San Jose are now under treatment at a local hospital, and it is said that their injuries may prove fatal.

Mrs. Feeley is the mother of Dr. Matilda A. Feeley, who is a well-known medical practitioner. Miss Pyle is a prominent society girl of San Jose.

Both Mrs. Feeley and Miss Pyle are thought to have sustained fractures of the skull. Mrs. Feeley is thought to have but a slight chance for recovery. She is an elderly woman, and was in feeble health. In addition to the injury to her skull, she suffered a long, deep scalp wound, and a fracture of one rib.

ACTIVE IN PHILANTHROPY.

Miss Sullivan, the daughter of Francis J. and the late Mrs. Sullivan, is prominent in San Francisco society, as well as being an active figure in philanthropic work.

The accident, which, it is feared, may cost the lives of Mrs. Feeley and Miss Pyle, occurred shortly after noon, while Miss Sullivan, Dr. Feeley, Mrs. Feeley and Miss Pyle were motoring south on Van Ness avenue in Miss Sullivan's machine. All the women had just attended mass at St. Mary's Cathedral, and they were only two blocks distant from their place of worship when the collision occurred.

Charles P. Doe and Mrs. Doe were motoring north in Van Ness avenue, with Doe at the wheel of his car. Miss Sullivan's was being driven by her chauffeur, J. C. Byrd.

At the intersection of Van Ness avenue and Eddy street, Doe was driving his machine at a lively clip in order to negotiate the heavy grade, and he saw that he would smash into the side of the street car unless he could turn his machine to the west and parallel with the street car. This he attempted and in doing it, he sped his machine out ahead of the street car and struck Miss Sullivan's car, which had just cleared the street car track.

STRIKES CAR ON SIDE.

The Doe car struck the Sullivan car fairly on the side. The shock of the impact hurled Mrs. Feeley and Miss Pyle out of the tonneau of Miss Sullivan's car, and they struck the pavement on their heads.

Miss Sullivan, who was riding with Mrs. Feeley and Miss Pyle in the tonneau, and Dr. Feeley, who was seated beside the chauffeur, managed to cling to their seats. Doe's version of the accident showed that it was his effort to avoid a collision with the street car that sent his machine smashing into the car of Miss Sullivan.

"As I neared the break of the grade at Eddy street," said Doe, "I saw the street car start to move west across Van Ness avenue. I had not anticipated that, and I was so close to the street car that I had either to swing around parallel with it or run into it. In doing this I struck the other automobile, which had just crossed the street car tracks in front of the street car."

After the injured women had been removed to a hospital a policeman arrested Doe and booked him on two charges of battery. Doe was later released on bail.

Two witnesses sent for appeared and were questioned by Special Prosecutor Ernest Ringo, representing Gov. West. Two others can not be found and the other two have agreed to appear.

Two who have been questioned are Mike Arndt and Karl Mageski, Minnie Clary and Joe Weaver are to appear, and L. E. Burgett and J. Y. Yaykos are missing.

Stockton Laborer Is Thought to Have Killed His Companion With a Razor.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE TO THE TIMES.]

STOCKTON (Cal.) July 13.—Frank Sears, a laborer, was arrested last night and booked as a murder suspect in connection with the killing of Frank Figunari, whose body was found yesterday on the shores of the McLeods Lake.

Sears has been identified as one often seen with the dead man and they were together, according to witnesses, up to within a few hours of the murder. Figunari's throat was cut from ear to ear with a razor, following what is believed to have been a drunken quarrel.

GOAT HUNT AND SOCCER ENTERTAIN 'TIMES" BOYS.

AVALON, July 13.—The Dyas-Cline's and the Reach squads turned their attention to "soccer" football this morning while the rest of the camp were preparing to go on "Goat hunt No. 3." The game was fiercely contested throughout and an extra period was necessary to decide the winning team. The final score stood 3-2 in favor of the Dyas-Cline team.

The stars of the game were Neal Johnson for the winning team and Earnest Hartman for Reaches. Both these boys played center forward and it was boots and physical strength which scored every goal.

Immediately after the game ended the boys started off for the much-prized goat which would carry off the beautiful loving-cup presented to the camp by Gen. Harrison Gray Otis. Several of the more enterprising guests of the camp have tried secretly to outstrip one of these fleet-footed little animals and secure the prize, but none have been successful. The episode always ends in consumed provisions and a long tramp back to camp from different points of the island. Before starting every boy equips himself with a good supply of water, "Blue Ribbon" raisins, sandwiches made from Bradford's bread, cooked ham and "Santa Anna butter," assorted cakes made from "Sperry's" flour, and other delicacies, but about noon his entire supply has disappeared.

Daily letters are received at the Times' camp from boys who "must show their gratitude" for the kindness which have been shown to them while guests for having secured subscriptions for The Times. The following communication has been received:

"About three weeks ago a man handed me a circular and some subscription blanks for The Times Catalina Camp. I told him of other boys who would like to try for this prize, and we all got six subscriptions. But some of the boys thought it was too hard a task at first to get so many subscribers to take the paper for one month until ordered stopped, and others who didn't like to work at all, laughed at us. But since I got back from the camp I find they are all working to get over to the island before the season closes.

"I couldn't just tell you how much fun I did have. I never did like night at home and if anyone had told me that I should want to sleep out in the hills—it's like that you know at The Times camp—I'd been scared of tackling it. But I just think that I can face a big black bear now. There is nothing to sleeping in the hills. Every day we had more fun than if we were all a barrel of monkeys. Pillow-fights—Uh! I got hit one morning—but the things I did to the other guy—wasn't any tamer than his own mother would do for him if he'd hit her. I tried hard to win the goat cup and also the fishing cup and if Mr. Johnson had 'ave loaned me the Howland and Dewey camera, I'm sure I should have won that, too. Both my brother Germey and me are going to have another stab at them ornaments, for I've got five new subs now and Germey's got three. I'm going to be Germey's chaproon—them's things as escorts one, you know, as I know the ropes and Germey don't.

"Yours respectfully,
"LEONARD PARKS."

The Times camp is open during the months of July and August. For six new subscriptions any boy can secure a four-days' vacation, all expenses paid from Los Angeles to Avalon and return at The Times Catalina Camp.

Come in or write to The Times office, First and Broadway, for full information and subscription blanks.

The World For Christ.

tial institutions of education and philanthrophy in Japan. It is America that educated most of our Christian veterans who have done, or are still doing, splendid work in our nation.

"You say that you discovered Japan half a century ago by the brave voyage and generous action of Commodore Perry, and we Japanese, in turn, say that we Japanese discovered America, for Japan has proved the best soil in which you Americans have sown the seeds of Christian truth and up-to-date civilization. Japan has tested many excellent citizens of America, and shown their good works to the world.

"Although Christianity has done great work and has many excellent people as its members in Japan, it has not been treated by the government and nation at large as other old religions such as Buddhism and Shintoism were treated. But recently both the government and the people have begun to realize that those old religions are not good enough to rely on, especially in building up the character of our young people. Christianity is now genuinely welcomed by many government schools and by society at large.

"I desire to say to you American brethren that it is a very important time now for us Christian workers in Japan. Just one more effort is necessary for building a strong foundation for the Christian civilization in Japan. We are moving into a hopeful time now in Japan. Be patient and earnest a little longer and then you will be able to reap a great harvest in newest Japan.

"Allow me a word about the friendship between America and Japan. What is the essential thing in bringing two nations into truly friendly and fraternal relation? Is it not an acceptance of the Christian religion? Is it not the love of Christ? Have not you first given this precious thing to Japanese? I stand here representing many thousands of Christ's followers in Japan. We are doing our best to instruct our nation in the principles of Christ's gospel. Brethren, I beseech you to trust us and help us. And I trust you American brethren to do all in your power to evangelize, to Christianize those Japanese who are in this country already. Make them Christians and then they will be your helpful partners, true friends and loyal servants."

The progress of Christian Endeavor in India was related by Stanley A. Hunter of the Arthur Ewing Christian College, Allahabad. He said in part:

"California irrigation projects have impressed us all. We have seen gardens where there was waste, and we have witnessed the wonderful effects of water on sandy soil.

"After two years' work among young people in India, I come tonight to tell of the vast reclamation projects of the missionary enterprise there, in which 1870 men and women from the United States and Canada are now engaged. One of the great channels for the water of life is Christian Endeavor, bringing blessing to the fields of forty missionary societies. For workers, it has 45,000 members. In all India, Pentecost is duplicated every two weeks, but numerical results alone can never show the great change.

"Endeavorers have a prominent part in the in-gathering. Wrom what different walks of life they come! I think of the C. E.'s among our thirty-eight mission colleges, 31,000 students in college in India and only one in thirty-one Christian; less than a thousand college students are baptized Christians, and yet how great is their influence. I think of our own Allahabad school boys meeting this first Sunday night of the school year in the old building on the Jumna banks. Fifty-six years ago it was pillaged in the Indian mutiny. Missionary and Christians fleds for their lives. Now the mutiny and its martyrs are only a memory and India is wide open for the preaching of the gospel.

"India, too, has some great conventions. In the south, the Syrian Christians gather twenty thousand strong, young and old. Their auditorium is a dry river bed. A few months ago a speaker divided Christians into three classes, according to their supply of the water of life: The water-bag Christians, (the water bag is the village water works system;) the well Christians, and the fountain Christians. I recall the happy faces of Indian friends who belong to this third type, whose love and trust overflowed.

"Remember India; her vast population of 315,000,000, ninety-nine out of the hundred still out of the fold; her illiteracy, (only 9 per cent. of the men, and 1 per cent. of the women can read;) her idolatry and priestcraft; superstition is still entrenched. The land of social tyranny with caste, polygamy, child marriage and its awful sequel, child widowhood, need of Christ. Remember India's potentialities—she gave Buddhism to China and Japan. Remember her religious aspirations. All through the centuries she has been climbing."

WHAT A RAIL MUST STAND.

The Surprise Is That It Is Not Ground Into a Powder by the Heavy Locomotives and Trains.

Have you any idea of the strain to which a steel rail is subjected? The Metropolitan Magazine illustrates it by picturing the passing of the Cannon-Ball Express. It is drawn by two engines. The largest weighs one hundred tons; seventy-seven tons of the weight are carried on the six driving wheels, which means almost thirteen tons to a wheel.

Thirteen tons of weight upon each wheel! That means that thirteen tons of weight falls for a flying instant upon a rail surface perhaps no more than an inch square, and then moves rapidly forward. It is like a succession of whirling blows from a thirteen-ton hammer.

If the train is going thirty miles an hour, an imaginary square inch has only one-five-hundred-and-twenty-eighth part of a second in which to receive the blow, wince under it, distribute the terrible force of it through its elastic elements to the surrounding mass of the rail, brace itself to help distribute stresses that are being taken by the adjacent surfaces, and passed back and forth in all sorts of ways through the mass of rail, and then to receive the blow of the next driving-wheel.

If the train is going sixty miles an hour, instead of thirty, the rail has to receive, withstand, and pass on all this stress in one-ten-hundred-and-fifty-sixth part of a second.

That is not all that happens to the rail. We have taken account of the compression strains only. There is another set of strains; for these big driving-wheels are pulling the train. They have caught hold of the rails just as your hands grip the rope in a tug of war, and they take a fresh hold every fraction of a second. The tendency is to pull the top off the rail, for rail and wheel stick together, top and web and flange, in every single and separate molecule with all the tenacity of which steel is capable.

But still we have stated only one-half the tension strain. The strain is reversing all the time; for while the huge drivers are pulling one part of the rail toward them, they are pushing another part away from them. This plucking and spurning, hauling and kicking, tension and compression goes on continuously. Complete reversal from compression to tension and back again takes place with every half-turn of a driving-wheel, and at a frightfully rapid rate. The marvel is that the rail is not ground to powder.

Birmingham's Odd Industry.

[Consular Reports:] The pre-eminence of Birmingham in the manufacture of guns, jewelry, pens and bedsteads is known all over the world, but a number of small articles are also produced, some of which are of a decidedly curious character, and for which the Birmingham maker has to some extent created his own market.

For example, it is not generally known that Birmingham is the principal source of the world's supply of jew's-harps. For sixty years the industry has been carried on in the vicinity of Ashtedrow, a venerable quarter of the city, by members of the Troman family. Originally the industry came from Halesowen, and the jew's-harps are still made in a little home smithy strongly reminiscent of its black country origin. Great Britain is no longer the best market, enormous quantities being exported, especially to half-civilized countries. The Zulu musician, for example, has taken very kindly to the jew's-harp, and needs a specially large size to suit his somewhat capacious mouth.

THIS is to be a great week in the scholarship contest.

There was every indication of it, when on Saturday afternoon, boys and girls called at scholarship headquarters for the week's round-up. Plans as to work were many and enthusiastic.

You see this is the week, and Thursday is the "day in the evening," as Pat said, when the moonlight excursion takes place and every one wants to make such a record that he or she shall be known as some one of great account in the count.

That excursion has proven a great incentive for work. It is given to the hard-working ones—those who have ably scored—upon invitation of the American Potash Company (Inc.) This company is very interesting, or rather what it does is interesting, even when it is not giving excursions to scholarship contestants. The company is organized for the purpose of extracting from the giant kelps of the Pacific at least a dozen different chemicals, potash being one of the most important, as it is used very extensively as a fertilizer for land. This explains what a number of the boys and girls have asked about; namely, the meaning of the picture upon the cards sent to them by this company. The picture presents a huge tree of the kelp held up to view by two men who are dwarfed by the giant plant. Those receiving the cards are to meet at the Pacific Electric station in Los Angeles on Thursday evening at 6:35 and are to go in a private car, upon invitation of the American Potash Company, to Long Beach, where one of the launches owned by this company will be in waiting to take them upon a moonlight trip up and down the coast. An early hour is fixed, in order that the return may be made early enough for all to reach home in seasonable time. This excursion will afford an oportunity for the workers to become acquainted and to compare notes as to methods and plans of campaign. Although many have from time to time visited scholarship headquarters, few have met, often missing each other by just a few moments. "I wish I could see Pasadena Polly!" one has exclaimed; and another has said: "How does Jerome really look?" "Oh, dear! Some one says Paul Webb was here just a few minutes ago and I didn't see him!" regretted another. "Is Walter Little really as good looking as his picture?" some one else asked. "If Helen Wilkins is as pretty as her photograph"—and so on. On Thursday evening you will all have an opportunity to see.

Several new ones came into the tally box on Saturday. Among these was Adeline Button.

Adeline Button of No. 553 North Ninth street, Colton, is the daughter of J. C. Button, a railroad officer who has been with the Southern Pacific at Colton for the past three years. Adeline will begin her third year in High School in September, and is very popular with all who know her. She is an able representative of this fine district and all will take pride in the record which she will undoubtedly make. Beautiful, she undoubtedly is, unless the photographer's art is more potent than we are willing to believe.

Another girl who has recently enrolled and has appeared in the tally list, is Nina Larson.

Nina Larson of No. 447 Ezra street, Lorena Heights, is 16 years of age and lives with her father, who is a machine operator. The principal of the Lorena school recommends her very highly as a good student and a good worker. She and her sister will work together in the contest.

Earle Weller came in to scholarship headquarters late Saturday afternoon so bedecked with badges and banners that one had to look twice to find the boy. He had been acting as usher all the week at the great Endeavor meetings; but he says that by the middle of this week he hopes to make his tally look like something really worth while and he is capable of doing so.

Dividing the tally list in half, there are eight girls in the high half and eleven boys. So it is evident that the girls in the lower half must work hard enough to crowd up among the higher half. It will never do to allow the boys to have the best of it to this extent.

What girl will be first to make the move from lower half to higher? There are several who are likely to do this. In fact, I would be almost willing to risk a guess, out loud, as to what four will see to it that girls and not boys predominate in that higher half within a very few days. Now, let us see if I am right!

The pictures of every one of the girls who help to do this shall be printed large and plain for every one to see. Now, girls, hold up the honor for feminine ability. Score early. Score often. Score high.

CAUTION.

Once more caution as to those subscription blanks! Be sure and write every letter, every name, every figure plainly on every subscription blank. It will save lots of trouble, and will make sure your count.

This is so worth while a contest that nothing must be lost by carelessness. The contest in itself is inspiring. It is jolly to gain places ahead of the others, it is jolly to be known as an able worker, and last but best of all—great and worthy are the prizes to be won in the final count.

"PRETTY SOON."

SAN DIEGO, July 13.—[By A. P. Night Wire.] Although U. S. Grant, Jr., took out a license a fortnight ago to marry Mrs. America Workman Will of Los Angeles, the wedding has not yet taken place. When questioned on the subject today, Grant and Mrs. Will smilingly declared that the ceremony would be performed "very soon." Neither was willing to be more definite. Justice George Puterbaugh has been chosen to officiate.

Hand Painted Coffins in Munich.

[Dundee Advertiser:] The installation of the first crematorium in Bavaria at Munich has met with unexpected success, and has already led to a new fashion. The authorities forbade the usual decoration of the coffins with studded plates and metal wreaths, and stated that only caseine paints would be admitted on any coffins for the crematorium. Choice seemed so limited by these stipulations that there were many who believed that decorations were practically an impossibility. A rich customer, however, approached Prof. Berndt for suggestions, and the professor at once furnished a sketch of a scheme for decoration. The scheme met with such approval that there were soon many more demands. With hand-painting and stencil work extensively carried out in caseine paints, both Prof. Berndt and another artist have made names for themselves in this new sphere of art, and established quite a new fashion in the decoration. The introduction of an ancient rite has led to a return to an art that, among [illegible] cient Egyptians [illegible] enduring success.
